He Hasn't Got Paper, Cossitt Tells House

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative MP Tom Cossitt told the Commons today he does not have a top secret document the government has ordered him to return.

Cossitt said Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais demanded the return of a document entitled Canadian Related Activities of the Russian Intelligence Service, dated March 24, 1976, in a letter delivered Friday.

However, Cossitt told Blais he does not have such a document, and therefore cannot comply with the demand based on the Official Secrets Act.

Blais responded immediately by telling Cossitt he must return any documents in his possession that are classified top secret, and that are a patent breach of the Official Secrets Act.

It was not immediately clear what step the government would take next in its effort to have documents in Cossitt's posession returned to the RCMP's security service.

Cossitt rose at the end of the daily question period to deliver his answer to the demand to return the specific document or face the possibility of arrest under the act.

He charged, and Blais denied, that he has been under surveillance since Thursday. Blais said he specifically ordered the RCMP not to keep the MP under surveillance.

The controversy revolves around Cossitt's charges that Soviet money is coming into Canada to assist terrorism.

Earlier, RCMP investigators gave the justice department evidence they had gathered during a weekend of interviews — many with reporters — concerning the case.

Deputy Justice Minister Roger Tasse was handed the RCMP findings, and Justice Minister Ron Basford will decide whether there is enough evidence to prosecute Cossitt under the Official Secrets Act for possessing secret documents.

"It's a vendetta for which I do not blame the Mounted Police," Cossitt said. The force was acting on orders from Solicitor-General J. J. Blais and Prime Minister Trudeau.

Trudeau, he said, "is obviously extremely vindictive."

"He wants to get rid of Tom Cossitt."

But Stanley Knowles, veteran New Democratic MP for Winnipeg North Centre and party House leader, suggested in a telephone interview Sunday that Cossitt's Commons statement today may be the last heard of the affair in the Commons.

A ROSE BY ANY OTHER NAME. . .

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — South African government leaders are discussing whether to change the country's name, the Sunday Times newspaper reports.

One name canvassed, the paper said, is the Republic of Good Hope. Another is Azania, the black nationalist name for South Africa.

The Sunday Times said the proposal to change the name is inspired by Connie Mulder, minister of plural relations, whose portfolio covers black administration.

Dr. Mulder was not immediately available for comment.

BUS STRIKE NEARER

The threat of a bus strike loomed today after B.C. Hydro rejected what was described by the Amalgamated Transit Union as a last-ditch attempt to avert a bus strike.

The proposal, presented to Hydro at a meeting today, called for a one-year contract.

But after considering the ATU proposal, Hydro issued a statement rejecting it and saying a one-year term did not make economic sense.

The ATU scheduled meetings with the gasfitters and clerical unions — the other two unions in a position to strike against Hydro.

The three unions, which represents 8,000 Hydro employees, were to map strategy with the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Hydro has proposed two-year contracts with wage increases of six per cent in the first year and four per cent in the second year.

Carter Acts To End Coal Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, invoking the Taft-Hartley Act to end the U.S. coal mine shutdown and a worsening energy crisis, said today he will ask the courts to order striking miners back to work.

"The time has come for me to take action," he said after conferring with Congressional leaders.

Carter's decision was announced amid predictions that the drawn-out work stoppage might force more power cuts and millions of layoffs.

He called the cabinet and congressional leaders to the White House for separate meetings to review with them the latest developments in the strike and what he considered "the likely events of the next few days and weeks."

Today's action might find miners ordered back to the pits within a few days. One official said a federal judge could get the government's request to order an 80-day "cooling-off" period by Wednesday.

But there were indications that some miners, following their overwhelming rejection of a contract to end the longest mine walkout in the U.S., would not obey a back-to-work order.

Even if the miners return, the first trainloads of coal would not enter the energy pipeline for one week to two weeks, depending on the condition of the mines, said coal industry spokesmen.

As the strike, which began Dec. 6, went into its fourth month today, Carter scheduled his announcement after planned meetings with congressional leaders and his cabinet.

With returns in from 88 per cent of the United Mine Workers 794 locals, the vote was 79,753 to 34,689 against the pact, a margin of more than 2 to 1.

Some predicted the strike will continue.

"I think we've got no choice but to stay out on strike," the president of a West Virginia local said.

While a Kentucky miner predicted federal action would not succeed unless Carter coupled Taft-Hartley with government seizure of the mines, a Virginia UMW official predicted that tactic would also fail: "If that's his

Action Rallies Dollar

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar rallied on European money markets today when it became clear that President Carter would invoke the Taft-Hartley Act to force striking coal miners back to work.

European dealers marked the dollar down against all currencies at the start of trading after it fell to a record low in Tokyo, but it rebounded and passed Friday's closing figures for everything but the British pound.

In Victoria today, U.S. dollars cost 1.1105 in Canadian funds. The rate in Montreal was up 1-100 at $1.1202 Canadian.

The dollar dropped nearly two yen in Tokyo to close at 235.175 yen despite an estimated $400 million in intervention buying by the Bank of Japan in an effort to stem the slide. It had closed Friday at 237.125.

The opening price in Frankfurt was 2.0030 marks, nearly two pfennigs below its closing rate of 2.0222 marks in New York Friday. Then it advanced to 2.0310 marks.

Gold also rose, as it usually does when currencies fluctuate. The opening price in London was fixed at $184.10 an ounce, up from $183.80 at Friday's close. Bullion gained $1 in Zurich, the other major European trading centre for gold, and was quoted at $184.125 an ounce.

In Saudi Arabia an official says oil exporters may increase their prices because of the U.S. dollar's fall on currency markets, but they will not abandon it as the currency in which oil payments are made.

ICBC GETS ITS MAN: SHERRELL PASSES

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. has finally got its $80,000 a year man.

Education Minister Pat McGeer, the minister responsible for ICBC, announced today that federal authorities have had a change of heart and will allow Robbie Sherrell to take over the presidency of the corporation.

McGeer was informed of the decision in a telegram from federal Manpower Minister Bud Cullen.

Cullen, who met late last week in Ottawa with ICBC officials, said in view of the special skills required by the corporation and the fact a Canadian is chairman of the board, he will recommend an order-in-council be issued authorizing Sherrell's admission to Canada as an immigrant.

Cullen said this will take some weeks, but in the meantime he will issue a minister's permit authorizing Sherrell's entry into Canada.

Sherrell is expected to arrive in B.C. shortly.

McGeer said he does not expect Sherrell to have any difficulties with his new job despite the controversy surrounding his appointment.

"Sherrell's a very talented man," McGeer said. "We sought the best and I believe the best has been found."

The news that Sherrell will be allowed to come to B.C. ends weeks of controversy over the appointment.

BUGS IMPORTED TO FIGHT WORM

British bumble bees and flies will be buzzed into the Greater Victoria area to do battle with a mysterious worm that has been chomping its way through Saanich and Victoria trees for the past seven years.

The worm, which in moth form, has ravaged the tender buds on the fruit trees to the complete bafflement of scientists, was only recently identified by a graduate biology student.

Agriculture Canada plant quarantine division spokesman John Fitz-Gerald says David Gillespie's positive identification came despite the fact federal officials in Ottawa insisted the tree-muncher was a Bruce span worm, a cousin to the winter moth.

NEWS BRIEFS

Fire at Heathrow

LONDON (Reuter) — Thousands of passengers were evacuated from the intercontinental terminal at Heathrow airport today when fire damaged a duty-free shop and departure lounge. No one was injured, but all outgoing flights were stopped for 90 minutes.

Alert on Oranges

EDINBURGH (Reuter) — Police said Sunday they were trying to trace thousands of Israeli Jaffa oranges from a consignment delivered in Scotland after one contaminated with mercury was found near here. The fruit was being peeled Saturday by a woman at nearby Haddington when she spotted the mercury.

Battles in Beirut

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Rightist and leftist gunmen fought Sunday in Beirut, where the Arab peacekeeping force threatened to use artillery to stop clashes in which a woman was reported killed.

Church Destroyed

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Church of the Immaculate Conception, which had stood for 87 years on Austin Street in north-central Winnipeg, was destroyed by fire late Sunday afternoon.

Victim Collects

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Crimes Compensation Board today announced it has awarded $5,750 to a 21-year-old Edmonton woman who was shot in the neck at a party in 1973 and paralysed from the neck down. The board said Teresa Hamilton's social assistance benefits had been discontinued.

Strait Tanker Curbs Killed

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court today struck down most provisions of a Washington state law limiting the size of oil tankers on Puget Sound and other state inland waters.

The decision means bigger tankers may be pressed into service off Vancouver Island's coast almost immediately.

Justice Byron White, writing for the court, said existing federal laws show that "Congress intended uniform national standards for design and construction of tankers, that would foreclose the imposition of different or more stringent state requirements."

In Victoria, B.C. Wildlife Federation oil ports expert David Anderson said the court decision means that "oil companies will almost immediately put larger ships into operation and tankers of 180,000 tons — perhaps up to 220,000 tons — will be coming into our waters."

Anderson, however, said that although oil companies will now be able to almost double the size of their vessels "it isn't as bad as it sounds because it doesn't necessarily double the risk."

Although the vessels will be larger there will be fewer of them.

Anderson said that the bigger tankers aren't more hazardous than smaller ones and the difference between 100,000 tons of oil being spilled and 200,000 tons "is the difference between you being blown up with five sticks of dynamite or ten sticks — not much."

He said perhaps the most significant thing about the court decision is that it may lessen the enthusiasm oil companies have been feeling for proposals to build a superport at Port Angeles.

Before the Washington State law was knocked down Port Angeles was the only possible spot supertankers could dock. Now they may be able to continue using Cherry Point.

Anderson said the Wildlife Federation is opposed to Cherry Point and in favor of the Port Angeles proposal because studies have shown that "there would be one third as many accidents and half as much environmental damage at Port Angeles as compared to Cherry Point."

In Washington State Frustration and disappointment were the words used by legislators to express their reaction.

"I'm just plain frustrated," said Representative King Lysen, chairman of the House Energy and Utilities Committee.

"Here's a case where the Legislature has taken action

Debbie Campbell of Victoria captured one title and added a third-place finish during the Canadian indoor track and field championships at Montreal, where the highlight was a world record effort in the women's 3,000 metres by American runner Janice Merrill. Page 14.

Another Victoria star, Philip Delesalle, was also at Montreal, where he added to his reputation as Canada's leading gymnast by dominating the senior men's events in national trials. Page 18.

Terry Metcalf is the newest, and maybe the richest, member of Toronto Argonauts. The spectacular running back, who played out his option with St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League last year, today signed a multi-year contract with the Canadian League Argos and reportedly could earn up to $250,000 per season. DO YOU THINK THE RUSSIANS ARE TO BLAME FOR OUR UNUSUALLY BAD WINTER?
YOU'VE NEVER HEARD OF THE COLD WAR?

We Used to be in Tropics

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Parts of the United States and Canada "sailed" from the area of the equator in a 1,000-year voyage to their present locations along North America's West Coast, scientific evidence released today reports.

The land mass, about 40,000 square miles in all, broke up while drifting and settled in areas ranging from inland areas of the western United States through Vancouver Island to Alaska.

Scientists of the United States Geological Survey said in a paper released today that the displaced block of earth, known as Wrangellia after a mountain range in Alaska, was discovered because it has a different geological formation than the surrounding terrain.

In fact, it is remarkably similar to geological formations found in equatorial regions and supports the new and broadly accepted theory of plate tectonics, the report said.

According to this theory, which would explain many formerly puzzling geological features of the world, there was only one continent about 200,000 years ago.

A skin shell on the earth's molten core, it began to drift apart and eventually came to form the present continents.

Among other things, this theory helps explain the fact that similar fossil remains have been discovered on different continents.

"We're not sure yet how Wrangellia fits into the over-all theory of plate tectonics, or how the chunks of Wrangellia broke up and were locked into their present location," said Dr. David Jones, a senior member of the research team.

"Right now it represents another interesting piece of the geologic puzzle that we are trying to rearrange and put together."

He said that so far chunks of Wrangellia have been found in the Hells Canyon region of Oregon, Washington and Idaho; Vancouver Island and the Prince Charlotte Islands in the Canadian North Pacific and in the Wrangell Mountains of Alaska.

The chunks are "quite different from the rocks they now butt against," said Dr. Jones.

Court Allows Keable to Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada today granted permission to appeal a Quebec Court of Appeal ruling which has shut down the Keable Commission since Feb. 21.

Mr. Justice Louis-Philippe Pigeon, sitting with Mr. Justice Willard Estey and Mr. Justice Yves Pratte, granted leave to appeal.

The proceedings lasted about two minutes as lawyers for the federal solicitor-general, justice minister, and the RCMP announced there would be no objections to the motion, which was brought rapidly by Quebec Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard and Jean Keable, the 31-year-old labor lawyer who heads the Quebec inquiry into illegal police activities.

The Supreme Court case is the final stage in a three-month legal battle between Keable and two solicitors-general, first Francis Fox and then Jean-Jacques Blais, over the provincial commission's right to subpoena confidential RCMP papers.

The federal lawyers lost in three attempts last December to suspend commission proceedings temporarily or to stop them altogether.

But they finally won before the Quebec appeals court, which ruled Feb. 21 that Keable had infringed on federal government authority by trying to subpoena documents from a federal cabinet minister.

CALIF. CLEANUP BEGINS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Flood warnings were in effect today for mountains and coastal valleys as residents of southern California began clean-up operations from torrential rains that officials said killed eight people and damaged about 250 houses.

Four storm-related deaths were reported in Los Angeles County and one each was reported in Orange, Ventura, Riverside and San Diego counties.

Mexican officials said at least 26 people have died there, thousands had been left homeless and up to $1 billion in damage has been caused by weekend rainstorms that created flood waters and mudslides.

The border town of Tijuana appeared hardest hit with 19 dead, officials said.

Ensenada, 100 kilometres to the south, was split in two by a torrent of water rushing through the city. More than 6,000 residents were homeless there with estimates reaching 100,000 for the entire 1,000-mile-long peninsula of Baja California.

All along the Baja coast, schools, churches, city halls and Red Cross centres were converted into refugee shelters.

For most people in Los Angeles, there was no death or destruction—just more unwanted rain. In a little more than two months, the city has received 70 centimetres

Man Held In Deaths

A man arrested in the shooting deaths of a Victoria couple three months ago was charged by city police Saturday with first degree murder.

George Auxi, of 117 St. Andrews, is to appear in provincial court Tuesday.

Insp. Angus Stewart said police have recovered what they believe is the murder weapon.

Sandor Kormos, 43, and Gizelle Schild, 41, were found the morning of Dec. 11 in Kormos' second floor room at 1242 Fort Street.

Both had been shot in the head and upper body with a small calibre weapon.

An autopsy confirmed this when four .22 calibre bullets were removed from the bodies and police began a hunt for a pistol to match.

The two victims were both Hungarian immigrants, Kormos following the 1956 uprising.

They were shot the day before Schild was to have buried her husband Bela, 38, who died of natural causes Nov. 30.

Mild Quake Felt

A mild earthquake felt here by some people Sunday about 10:30 a.m. is believed to have had its epicentre deep beneath Anacortes Bay.

Dr. William Milne, of the earth physics centre, department of energy, mines and resources, said seismological equipment registered a magnitude of just under four on the Richter scale.

He said the chances are that the quake was deeper than the normal sort of tremor felt on Vancouver Island, and estimated this one to have been 50-60 kilometres, about 40 miles, under the earth's surface.

Tanker Curbs Out Says U.S. Court

with the full support of the congressional delegation only to see it knocked out by the Supreme Court on a technicality," said the Seattle Democrat.

However, Governor Dixy Lee Ray, who several months ago took the wheel of a huge tanker and said the passage through Juan de Fuca was safe, said the decision was not unexpected and that she was not alarmed by it.

"The state, working together with the Coast Guard, can and will assure that all navigation, including the moving of oil tankers, will be handled as carefully and safely as humanly possible," she said.

She said she will continue to support "every possible precaution with respect to safety features on ships, crew and pilot training and shore-based navigational aids."

Senator Ted Bottiger, D-Graham, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, called the decision a victory for the oil companies.

"I'm disappointed that the supreme court has taken away from the state the right to look after the economic and sociological and environmental aspects of its inland waters," he said.

Bottiger pointed out, however, that the ARCO dock at Cherry Point is the only facility on Puget Sound that can handle tankers in excess of 125,000 deadweight tons.

"The others are going to have to go through the Energy Facility Site Evaluation Council if they intend to enlarge their facilities and that may be our ace in the hole," said Bottiger.

King and Bottiger also said the action may force the Coast Guard to draft stringent rules covering tanker traffic on the sound.

Lysen pointed out the tanker limitation law was the result of Coast Guard refusal to regulate tanker traffic in the past.

Lysen also said Senator Warren G. Magnuson's coup of last year banning establishment of an oil port west of Port Angeles on the Strait of Juan de Fuca may make the point moot.

"If they can't have transshipment, why would they want to bring in the larger tankers?" asked Lysen.

The court's voting was splintered, with many justices agreeing in part with White and disagreeing in part.

During oral arguments before the court last October, Washington Attorney-General Slade Gorton told the justices that officials fear a major disaster and that the state lacks the facilities to clean up such a spill.

State requirements on oil transportation, especially bans on supertankers, probably would have increased transportation costs—leading to rising prices for petroleum products.

Only Washington and Alaska had such tanker regulations on their books, but 16 states sided with Washington in friend-of-the-court briefs.

Those states were Alaska, California, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Missouri, Maryland, Delaware, Maine, Minnesota, New York, Florida, Idaho, Rhode Island, Virginia, Georgia and Hawaii.

They argued that states should be able to protect their natural resources.

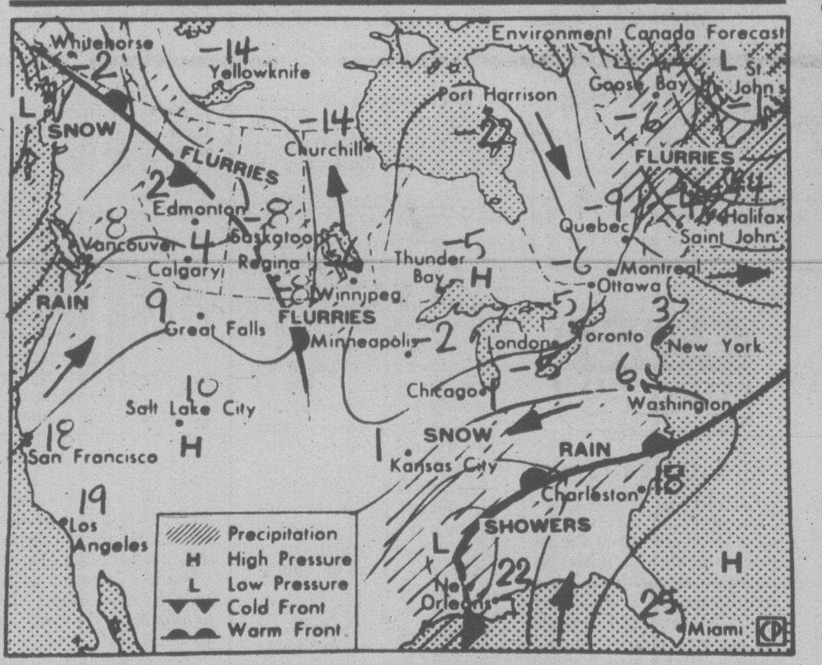

Map valid until noon Tuesday

Overnight patchy cloud was reported across the province with some light snow in Cranbrook and showers with gale-force winds over the north coast. A vigorous Pacific storm will give wet, windy weather to the entire coast today. Rain or wet snow is expected to spread to the Interior this evening with the disturbance. Showers will linger along the coast and inland Tuesday as moist un stable air follows behind the system.

YOUR NEW HOME FOR SAAB SALES AND SERVICE
Fourteen virtues that make the extraordinary car from Sweden the perfect car for Canada.
Roll-cage protection. Steel beams wrap up over doors and roof. Saab is a passionate advocate of safety.
Lots of space. Unusually generous leg, shoulder and head room in rear.
Rear seat folds down. A Saab will take anything from skis to Aunt Martha's floor lamp.
Rear window defroster. Copious blasts of hot air keep window fog and frost-free.
Nylon velour upholstery. Luxurious, plush, hard-wearing, easily cleaned. Never burning hot or icycold.
Low wind noise. Wind-tunnel tests produced wedge-shaped body. Air flows smoothly over and under the body, past curved windshield and side windows.
Custom-fit seat. Driver's seat can be raised or lowered horizontally, or tilted to give high front for knee support. Backrest infinitely adjustable.
Powerful, fast. Single-overhead cam, fuel-injected engine. 115 h.p.; 0-60, 10.7 secs.; 108 m.p.h.*
Foils rust. Lift hood, look behind headlights and fenders. See why snow and salt can't pack in. And Saabs are rustproofed at the factory.
Heated driver's seat. In cold weather, heating element in driver's seat switches on automatically, warms up derriere.
Bumpers repair themselves. Honeycomb core of reformable plastic resumes original shape after collision. Lightweight, cheap to fix.
Beats deep snow. Big 15-inch wheels, steel-belted Michelin radials, 6¾-inch ground clearance, smooth underbody—and front wheel drive—combine to beat deep snow.
Front-wheel drive. No ordinary car can carve through bends, bull its way through snow, or grip on ice like the Saab.
Disc brakes all 'round. Self-adjusting, power-assisted and huge (380 sq. ins. friction area).

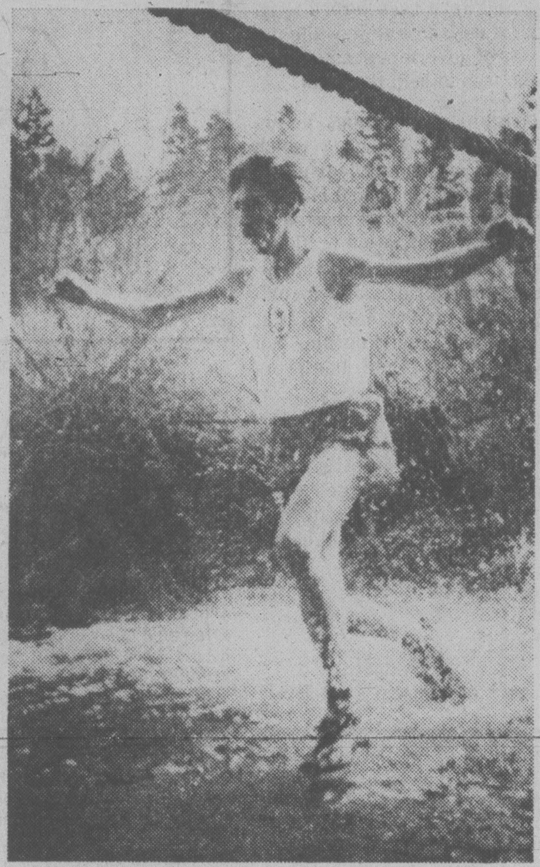
FUN RUNNERS turned out en masse Saturday for annual Basil Parker cross country run in Centennial Park. Top picture shows crowded starting line and some of the estimated 500 participants in popular event. Winner in open men's category was Dave Weicker, shown here zipping across stream to complete five-mile course in 28 minutes, 35 seconds. Water crossings drew most attention from spectators, who appeared to enjoy remaining dry while weary runners slogged and sogged around course. See story on Page 18. (John McKay photos).



Soviet's Czech Stars in Salyut

MOSCOW (AP) — A pilot from Czechoslovakia was the star of a televised program beamed to earth from the Soviet Union's orbiting Salyut 6 space station Sunday.

Capt. Ladimir Remek, the first person sent into space who is neither a Soviet nor U.S. citizen, expressed delight at his space experience.

He said his first view of the earth was one "never to be repeated."

Remek and Soviet flight commander Alexei Gubarev were launched into space last week and linked up with the Salyut 6 space station Friday. They joined Georgy Grechko and Yuri Romanenko who have been in orbit for a record 12 weeks.

Grechko and Romanenko broke the previous space endurance record of 84-days Saturday. The old mark was set in 1974 by U.S. Marine Col. Gerald Carr, civilian Edward Gibson and U.S. Air Force Col. William Pogue aboard Skylab 4.

Remek's flight marked the first time an international team has been launced into orbit. In 1975, U.S. and Soviet crewmen in the joint Apollo-Soyuz program were launched separately and linked up in orbit.

Remek, squeezed into the Soviet space station with his three Soviet colleagues, said he hoped other East Bloc cosmonauts would follow him into space in the near future.

"We have all become good friends on earth" at the Soviet space-training centre near Moscow, he said. "I have been preparing for the flight with comrades from Poland and East Germany for a year. I wish all of them good space health and successful flights in the near future."

Moscow has announced that Polish and East German cosmonauts will take space rides on Soviet ships before the end of the year and that men from other countries, including Cuba and Mongolia, will follow by the end of 1983.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported all four cosmonauts were feeling well, that all orbital systems were functioning normally and that the four space flyers were carrying out scientific experiments together.

Scott's Vessel Offered

LONDON (Reuter) — The British defence ministry is looking for someone willing to take over HMS Discovery, the wooden-hulled bark that took Captain Scott on his first expedition to the Antarctic 77 years ago.

The defence ministry says it cannot afford the $950,000 it would cost to repair Discovery's rotting inside hull.

"We do not want to scrap her but we do not need her anymore and we cannot afford the repairs," a ministry spokesman said. "We are confident someone philanthropic will come along and take her from us."

Discovery is tied up on the Thames, in central London, and maintained as a museum of Scott's Antarctic expeditions, including his ill-fated last journey in 1912. More than 250,000 people visit the three-masted ship each year.

The 1,620-ton Discovery was designed specially for Antarctic exploration. Parts of the 52-metre hull were built 30-centimetres thick to withstand the enormous pressure of Antarctic ice.

After Scott's first expedition returned in 1904, the vessel was bought by the Hudson's Bay Company as a transatlantic stores ship. She later was used by the French during the First World War to transport munitions, mostly to Russia.

In 1929, Discovery returned to the Antarctic, her last voyage, for an expedition led by Sir Douglas Mawson. Although used as a training and drill ship by sea scouts and the Royal Navy Reserve, she never went to sea again.

A Crazy Feud

One of the most discouraging federal-provincial debates that has taken place in recent months must be last week's arguments between Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm and the federal Employment and Immigration Commission (formerly known as the Unemployment Insurance Commission).

Vander Zalm first raised the issue on Thursday when he charged that inefficiency and ineptness in the commission offices are forcing as many as 1,000 people per month to seek welfare while they are waiting for their unemployment insurance to start. A two-month provincial survey showed that between 39 and 46 per cent of new welfare applicants are awaiting UIC benefits. Although the UIC benefits are retroactive when they finally start, the provincial ministry has no way of getting back whatever welfare monies they have paid out, he said.

The Employment and Immigration Commission (is it shortly to be known as the EIC?) promptly countered Friday with its own statistics which, it said, showed that the number of B.C. residents collecting unemployment insurance is increasing while the number of people disqualified is decreasing. A random survey taken in Feburary, 1977, showed that 4.1 per cent of applicants were being disqualified, while a similar survey last month showed only 2.2 per cent were disqualified.

The commission added that it didn't quarrel with Vander Zalm's statistics, but said they were caused, not by inefficiency or ineptitude, but only by normal commission rules (a six-week waiting period for those who quit their jobs, for instance) and by backlogs caused by the huge numbers of unemployed.

All these figures are undoubtedly a matter of fascination to government statisticians at all levels and perhaps also to the politicians who can discover whether the federal government is paying all of the costs of an unemployed individual (through unemployment insurance) or only half of them (through welfare).

But they do absolutely nothing to help the unfortunate persons who have become unemployed, often through no fault of their own. Moreover, it appears the debate may actually be having a negative effect on those who are forced to look for help.

Neither side, it seems, is particularly keen to provide service and funds to persons who they really think should be getting aid from the other level of government. Applicants are often shuffled back and forth from one to the other — unemployment insurance sends them off to welfare to wait a while; welfare promptly sends them back with its own interpretations of the UIC rules.

Even worse, we have heard of a few cases in which the deadlock could not be broken so neither side was willing to grant assistance to the applicant — at least not in time for him to pay, for example, his monthly rent. Persons have been evicted from their living accommodations and have been forced to go hungry for days at a time while the two levels of government squabbled over who was to help them out.

Clearly this is ridiculous, an unfair aberration in a society which prides itself on its mechanisms to ensure that no one need go hungry. It's the best reason in a long time to justify the rationalization of all social assistance programs (unemployment insurance, welfare, old-age pension supplements, GAIN, and so on) into one program, run jointly by Ottawa and the provinces.

In the meantime, both the human resources ministry and the Employment and Immigration Commission should forget their crazy feud and get on with the business of helping people in need.

Last Word on Cook

We offer the positively last word on whether Capt. James Cook had, ah, a social disease.

Historian Michael Hoare, who edited five volumes of the great explorer's journals, agrees with Tourism Minister Grace McCarthy that such an accusation slanders Cook.

"Cook was a morally upright character who didn't indulge in that sort of thing at all. But if he had had it off with any young ladies, it would have been impossible to have kept it secret."

And there is no record anywhere that was so. But his crew could have been carriers of venereal diseases, although Capt. Cook was strong on preventive measures, says Prof. Hoare.

Medical examinations were the rule before his men went on "shore leave."

"Not only that, but he actually ordered his surgeons to take down their own pants and be examined along with the men."

RICHARD GWYN

Permanent Governing Party

OTTAWA — A question worth asking before the election thunders down upon us, is whether Canada may not have lucked into inventing a political system that is unique among democracies. The system, that is, of a one-and-a-half-party state.

Given a large enough Canada Council grant and a long enough sabbatical, I could answer the question properly, complete with three footnotes to a page and balanced selection of quotations from French cynics, German melancholics and Russian anarchists. In the absence of either of those succours to scholarships, all I can do is set up the subject and take a couple of wing shots at it.

Excluding muddled, multi-party states like France, which as a consequence of their political muddle are run entirely by their bureaucracies, western democracies function on either a one-party or a two-party system.

The Rainmaker, Sen. Keith Davey: going to let Trudeau lose on purpose?

Dull, But Reassuring

In two-party states, like Britain with its Conservatives and Labor and like the U.S. with its Republicans and Democrats, power changes hands more or less regularly. Once actually in power, the paired parties exercise it a little differently: in Britain, Labor has imposed more stringent wage controls than the Conservative ever dared attempt. Voters, though, enjoy the periodic satisfaction of heaving out one set of rascals and of allowing in another set.

One-party systems are duller, but more reassuring, not only to those actually in power but to the public which knows that the same old rascals still are there. In Sweden, the Social Democrats held power for 44 years until defeated in 1976. Voter restiveness has since proved contagious. After holding office for close to 30 years, both India's Congress party and Israel's socialist Labor party have now been defeated.

Superficially, the federal Liberals are to Canada as was the Congress party to India. The Liberals have held office for 46 of the last 57 years, and have held it continuously since 1935 excepting only the six unseemly years of John Diefenbaker.

Only "gloomsters and doomsters," like those who believe in parliamentary democracy, could quarrel with Prime Minister Trudeau's description of the Liberals as "probably the most successful political party in the history of modern democracies."

The nature of this Liberal success, though, has not as yet been properly analyzed. The drawback to the classic one-party system is that it is brittle. It makes no allowance for the repressed desire of voters every now and then to demonstrate their power by changing the political label of those who govern them. At the other extreme, the British and American two-party system is untidy and unpredictable. In between is the supple, resilient, Liberal one-and-a-half-party system.

The point here is that voters, once stirred by simple boredom or by a desire to punish those in power, need in a well-run state to be offered an alternative to the governing party. This alternative, the Liberals themselves provide. At each election, Canadians are invited to cast their ballots either for a majority Liberal government or for a minority Liberal government.

The one-and-a-half-party system is inscribed in our political history: 1963-68, Liberal minority; 1968-72, Liberal majority; 1972-74, Liberal minority; 1974-78, Liberal majority. The polls make it probable that, on cue, a Liberal minority will take power after the next election.

The record is self-explanatory. The only question still to be answered is whether we have lucked onto the one-and-a-half-party system by design or by accident.

For lack of time and money to do in-depth research, I can only guess. My guess is that our politics are unfolding according to a long-laid Liberal plan.

In his recently-published book, The Government Party, Reginald Whitaker writes that the Liberals had, by the 1950s, "embedded themselves into the institutional structure of government." By the 1970s, the Liberals have embedded themselves permanently into government by avoiding the fatal flaw of one-party systems. This flaw is, that once a governing party is actually defeated, as has to happen, even in so docile a country as Sweden, voters, by force of habit, may keep the new guys in forever. By providing a Liberal minority as an alternative, the Liberals allow Canadians the satisfaction of periodically punishing them without actually defeating them.

Intriguing questions of detail now demand to be answered:

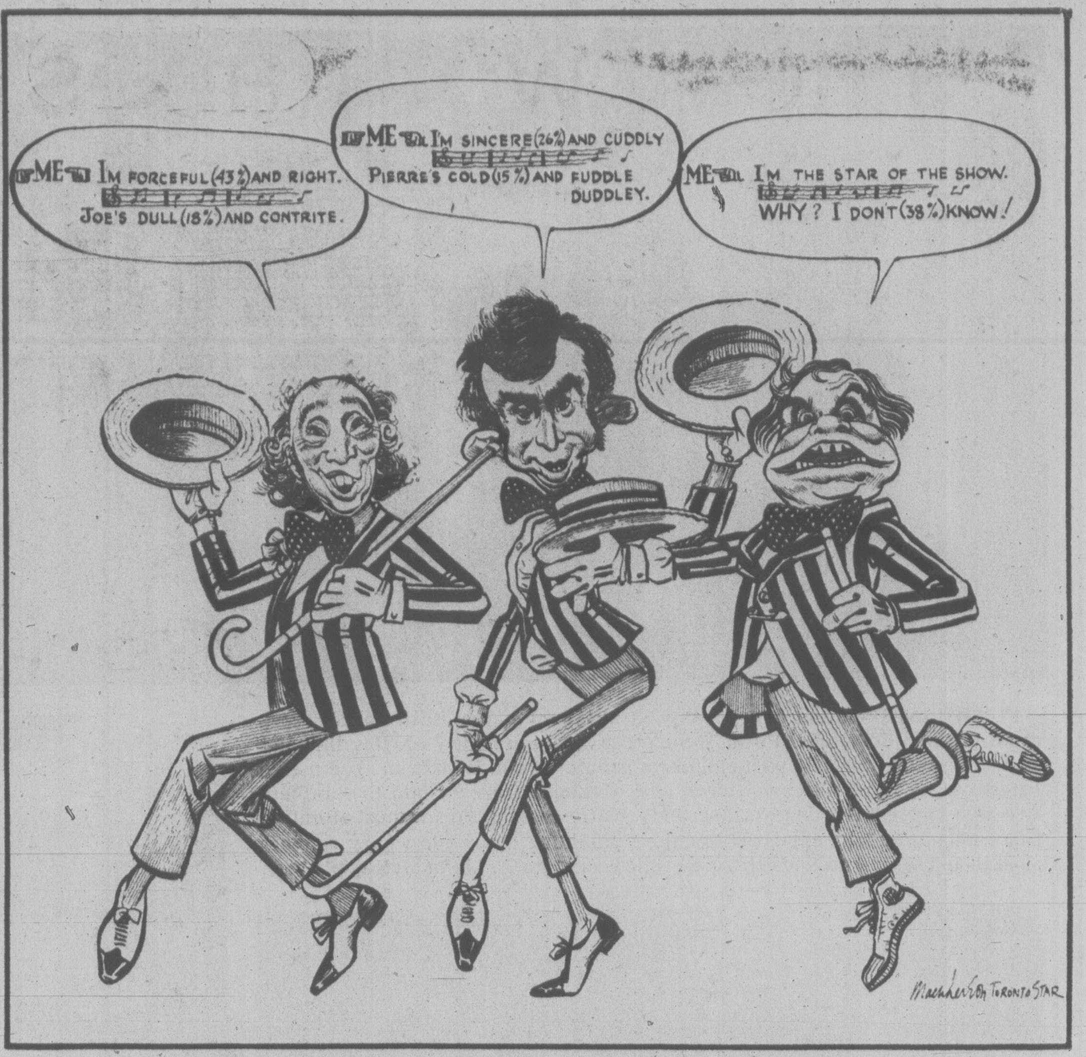
To the Details

☐ Are the Ontario Conservatives, who have allowed themselves to be reduced to a minority after 32 years as a majority, adopting the same technique?

☐ Are Keith Davey and Jim Coutts planning deliberately to win only a minority government for Trudeau so that, at the next election in 1982, Canadians will be reassured enough to re-elect a Liberal majority government? And, if so, is Trudeau in on the plot or will he be allowed to stumble around trying to win a majority?

☐ Did Finance Minister Jean Chretien, when he commented the other day that while his government might have mucked things up "the alternative would be even worse," have in mind, not the Conservatives as everyone supposed, but sweaty uncertainties of a Liberal minority government?

As soon as the Canada Council cheque arrives, I'll provide the answers.



ME I'M FORCEFUL (43%) AND RIGHT. JOE'S DULL (18%) AND CONTRITE.
ME I'M SINCERE (26%) AND CUDDLY PIERRE'S COLD (15%) AND FUDDLE DUDDLEY.

Bourassa Weighs Future

WASHINGTON — Robert Bourassa, academic-at-large, is maintaining the same kind of strict physical regimen as he did when he was Robert Bourassa, premier of Quebec. No smoking, no drinking, a careful diet and several laps of the swimming pool at a nearby university every day.

In an amiable way, he also insists that any comments he makes about the current state of Quebec politics be kept strictly off the record. This is important, since he talks about little else.

If these things are any clues to Bourassa's intentions when he comes out of his self-imposed exile next June and returns to Montreal, well, he isn't about to elaborate.

Now a Lecturer

"I don't expect to get into politics for some years at least," he says, quickly adding: "if ever."

When the time is right, he adds, he will express his views in some kind of forum, "maybe by journalism, or by teaching." The decision will likely come in June, when his itinerant sabbatical — the stops included Brussels, France and now, Washington — comes to an end. Bourassa, who left Canada shortly after his Liberal government was ousted by the Parti Quebecois in the November, 1976, election, arrived in Washington a few days ago. He will be giving a number of lectures as a visiting professor at the Centre for Canadian Studies, a section of the John Hopkins school for advanced international studies.

Inevitably, his main topic will be Quebec, its social, economic, cultural and political problems. In the coming months he will also be speaking on a number of U.S. college campuses.

One stop will be Harvard University, where he once studied public finance and corporate law. Ironically, Bourassa will be there three weeks before the arrival of Rene Levesque, who will also be expounding his vision of the future of Quebec.

"I'd prefer to be speaking after Levesque," Bourassa says wryly.

Since February, 1977, he has lectured and taught at institutions in Brussels and Fontainbleu, France. "Teaching is the best way to learn," he says, adding that the sabbatical has given him a deeper perspective on the political and economic problems faced by western democracies.

He describes it as an "extremely precious" period of his life, a time of seasoning and reflection on his mistakes during his seven turbulent years as premier of Quebec — whose "rhythm of change is probably without parallel in any society in the world."

During the past year, he has visited Quebec only once, as part of an apparent effort to remove himself entirely from any discussion of provincial politics. At the moment, he is waiting for things to crystallize. Any comment he makes now, Bourassa reasons, could have an impact on the Liberal party leadership race. He also wants to wait for Rene Levesque to provide more details about his scheme for some kind of economic association with the rest of Canada, and for Prime Minister Trudeau to outline his specific constitutional proposals for Quebec.

"In light of those proposals I will see whether I can be of any use," he says. In an interview with The Canadian Press, he added that he might also consider a Canadian speaking tour after he returns to Montreal.

At 44, he admits frankly that he does not intend to settle into the role of an elder statesman, or even a middle-aged statesman. Nor has he followed the familiar pattern of a defeated politician sliding into the lucrative world of corporate board directorships.

"I'm keeping all my options open," he says.

He drops tantalizing clues everywhere about how he will participate in the Canadian political process after his return next summer. He says his wife is adamantly opposed to his ever returning to active politics, "but all wives say that."

He is well informed on what is happening in Quebec, everything from the Liberal leadership race to the La Presse newspaper strike. He shakes his head when discussing the province's 12 per cent unemployment rate, and says a statistic like that in a western European country would result in chaos.

One of his particular areas of study in the past year has been the social impact of mushrooming public expenditures and increasing dependence on the state for job security — a particular area of concern for Quebec.

Perhaps a Role

Looking back on his only political demise, Bourassa suggests that he was one of many political leaders who in recent years has succumbed to the growing impatience of the electorate in all democracies. As other examples, he mentions such disparate figures as Gerald Ford, Ed Schreyer in Manitoba and Olof Palme in Sweden.

"Schreyer didn't have anything like the problems I had in Quebec, and he was thrown out. Now, what does that mean?"

He realizes now that his defeat in November, 1976 was inevitable. "If you fit the blocks together in any logical way, there was no way I could win," he says.

But now, 16 months later, Robert Bourassa suggests in his guarded and tentative way that he may yet have an important role in Quebec as an entirely new set of building blocks is being erected.

Normal School

Did you graduate from the Victoria Normal School in 1928 or do you know anyone who did? The class of 1927-28 is organizing a reunion to celebrate our 50th anniversary of graduation, to take place in Victoria on March 30-April 1. We are anxious to reach as many of our classmates as possible. Please write or telephone 477-4351 to the undersigned. — Esme N. Foord, 16-3969 Cedar Hill Road, Victoria.

Truancy

Why are there so many youngsters wandering the streets and malls of this city learning the ways of the street when they should be receiving a more legitimate education?

I am hopeful that someone may be able to provide me with some good reasons; otherwise it appears that the school board is showing a marked degree of apathy towards these kids. Is it that we only wish to educate those who will sit silently in their desks and follow the core curriculum? Would schools rather ignore those students who pose a challenge to the system due to their cultural and emotional disadvantages? Would school boards prefer to ignore these truants rather than to spend the extra time, effort and especially money to keep them in school and give them the support and encouragement that they perhaps do not or can not receive at home?

If the policy for treatment of behavior problems is simply to ignore them and hope they go away, then the system is highly successful. The only problem is that the child's problems do not disappear, only the child. This seems to be good enough for our school boards who appear to look at these children as Sergeant Schultz of Hogan's Heroes looks at the world: "I see nothing, nothing." I certainly hope that my speculations are not correct and that someone will prove to me that the situation is not what it appears to be. — Peter A. G. Menzies, 2855 Graham Street.

Misrepresentation

I wonder if you could print this complaint so I might get a sensible answer.

My son has had a truck for two years. No accidents, dents etc.

He bought a new car in January and when he applied for licence he was told he could not get a safe driver deduction because it was the car who is the safe driver and a new car has not proven itself.

Safe driver deduction? Where does the driver come in? Isn't this whole thing misrepresented or misquoted or whatever?

Can someone explain this way of thinking? — Elizabeth La Bossiere, Sooke.

School Closures

Are community schools fact or fiction? The closure which faces some Victoria schools is devastating.

Schools are not financial institutions but rather educational institutions. The issue of closure, according to trustees, was based on financial need. This conclusion was founded on a study of outdated statistics. Is a brief study of this calibre, with its main objective to save a few dollars, worth uprooting children, boarding up schools and destroying the spirit of neighborhood, of community and belonging? A totally irresponsible government action may take place in your city very soon and the only thing that will stop it are voices, asking elected officials to stop, reconsider and at least try to find alternative solutions. School closure affects everyone and should be done only as a last resort.

Keep the concept of community schools alive and attend a meeting to voice your opinion on March 8 at 8 p.m. at Margaret Jenkins Elementary. — Vivian Glover, 264 Beechwood Avenue.

The Two Faces of South Africa

By MALCOLM GRAY
The Globe and Mail

JOHANNESBURG — The trains pull into the central station, car after car sparsely filled with white commuters, spaced throughout the seats, staring out the windows.

Two thirds of the coaches show white faces at the windows. The last section is crowded with people, some of them hanging dangerously out of the open doors. The faces are all black.

This is one of the rules of apartheid — a policy, a way of life that permeates every aspect of society in South Africa. Black and white commuters may not share seats in trains and buses even though they will bump together in the streets and buy socks or toothpaste from the same counter in department stores.

There is no consistent line to the pettier aspects of apartheid, or separate development of the races as the government prefers to call it. Particularly now when some of its harsher aspects are slowly being modified under pressure from the country's huge black population and the more enlightened of the whites.

Obsession

Blacks and whites can read together at the same tables in libraries or sit together under the late summer sun in Johannesburg parks. But although black and white men and women may drink and dance together in one of six multi-racial nightclubs in Johannesburg — the latest fashion — they risk jail if the night ends with them in bed together.

This web of laws and restrictions makes South Africa, one of the most beautiful countries in the world, a tiring place. Here in a land where the white man is absolutely supreme, race is a constant obsession. For while the whites, or more particularly the 2.5 million Afrikaners, hold unchallenged political and military power, the 17 million Africans have time and a growing population on their side.

Particularly now when the advance of black nationalism has reached almost to the Limpopo River, the border between South Africa and what will soon be Zimbabwe. South-West Africa too will soon become independent, shrinking further the territory under white control.

Still, in the face of growing international pressure against its internal policies, the Nationalist government pushes on with its plans for separate development. The Nationalists can point to the overwhelming support given by the total white population of about 5 million in the elections last year.

This country could have been a sort of African California, with people of all races mixing together, said a Durban air freight manager. He is a second-generation Englishman who keeps a British passport active just in case things turn nasty here.

You can see what might have been in Cape Town, a relaxed place where everyone gets on together. But the chance vanished when the Nationalists took over in 1948 and they have been in power ever since.

One aspect of apartheid, of course, is the continuing domination of the economy for the white minority. The government is going ahead with plans to grant independence to black homelands. This will mean Africans will be forced to give up what privileges they have as South African citizens, becoming nationals of scattered enclaves — new countries that will take up about 14 per cent of the territory within the Republic's borders.

They will still live and work within the white areas of South Africa, but as foreigners without any rights. Schalk van der Merwe, the minister of statistics, estimates that 70 per cent of the workers and 45 per cent of the civil servants will be foreigners once all the homelands are independent.

All this is based upon a tractable labor force, and in a sense South Africa is hostage to its black workers. A general strike by blacks or sabotage in the gold mines that form the base of the country's wealth by a work force drawn from Botswana, Swaziland, Lesotho and Mozambique would cripple South Africa.

There is always the possibility of conflict between two independent countries, said Hennie Coetzee, professor of African Studies at the Potchefstroom University. "In a situation of this kind (after independence of the homelands) South Africa's economy and services could fall into the hands of enemies. Under such circumstances, the possibility of sabotage cannot be ignored."

There is no sign of that — yet. Blacks in the country were electrified by the riots in Soweto in June, 1976, and angered last year by the death of black activist Steve Biko while held in detention by police. But the black nationalist movement is hindered by divisions caused by having seven major tribal groups and by friction caused by the impatience of young leaders in Soweto with the slow progress toward black power.

Soweto has a strange surface calm to it now. But the signs of discontent are still there in this formless city of one million Africans just a few nervous miles away from Johannesburg. Whites need a special pass, stamped with the gloomy warning At Own Risk just to enter this enclave.

Today, a white visitor driving down the dusty, rutted tracks between endless rows of black houses is more likely to get curious glances instead of rocks directed his way. And bluntly expressed views that are surprising in a city filled with informers and watched over by the police.

"The government talks of Marxists coming in here and stirring things up," said a high school student. "Look around. We didn't need anyone to come and tell us things were bad."

'The choice is between prosperity and apartheid'

He, along with growing numbers of students here, has decided to return to school, slowly winding down a boycott against the education offered blacks. "It doesn't mean we have given up. It's easier in fact to meet and talk with people inside school than in the streets," he said.

Soweto's continuing protest was shown most recently in community council elections when something like three per cent of the electorate turned out to decide the representatives on a powerless body the government can ignore.

Tension Rises

Blacks are nowhere close to taking over power in South Africa. But already there are isolated signs that some are not willing to wait patiently for whatever handouts the government will give them. There are not yet compulsory parcel checks at the entrances of restaurants and stores as there are in Rhodesia. But crude bombs have been found in the heart of Johannesburg and a few blacks have been arrested for spreading leaflets on guerrilla warfare.

The distant sounds of skirmishes between army patrols and guerrillas fighting on the northern border of South-West Africa, the bomb scares and the growing confidence of the blacks swarming through the streets of the cities all have caused a noticeable increase in tension among whites.

Suddenly South Africa is not the sundrenched paradise it once seemed. Inflation has eroded the easy way of life around the pool with all the nuisance of housework and mixing drinks taken care of by two or three servants.

Gun sales are up, courses in self-defence and weapons-handling are increasingly popular. The newspapers run pictures of pretty models aiming at targets or showing off the latest South African development in home weaponry, — a revolver that can shoot six different calibres of ammunition.

Living in a society which has institutionalized discrimination has its costs. Not only in terms of money, although a Cape Town sociologist estimated recently that the whole structure — separate bureaucracies and transport systems down to the white or non-white plaques outside public washrooms — costs the country almost $15-million each year.

Michael Savage said that the gross national product would be 50 per cent higher without apartheid, a view shared by industrialist Zac de Beers, who says South Africa is facing a choice between prosperity and apartheid.

There are other costs as well. South Africa has divorce, suicide and violent crime rates that are among the highest in the world. Recently there has been an outbreak of murder-suicides in Johannesburg — five in one week alone.

With all this, with the jails filled with 100,000 people — most of them blacks imprisoned for violating the pass laws — South Africa continues to see itself as a bastion of Western civilization and asks why the Western democracies are not supporting it in its fight against communism.

As there are increased calls in the outside world for more sanctions against the country, the dominant Afrikaners cling ever more stubbornly to the society they have created. It is a society calvinistic in outlook, suspicious of innovation and prudish in sexual manners.

The play Equus is showing in Johannesburg now but two nude scenes are performed topless only. The director confessed that total nudity would have such an effect on South African audiences that dramatic continuity would be lost.

As a result there is a sexual atmosphere in the country like a 1950s high school at its prurient worst. The most popular magazine in the country is filled with shots of women in bikinis and the hottest night club act in the country features performers from Thailand. Packed audiences are willing to pay a cover charge of $11.50 and endure two hours of exposure to traditional Thai dancing and sword-fighting for two performances by Thai strippers, the real reason for the crowds.

The country's moral codes, religious flavor and stubborn insistence that the society built here after 350 years of settlement is correct, is shown in a single symbol just outside Pretoria, the administrative capital of South Africa.

Here on the windswept veldt, in massive carved stone, is the Voortrekker monument commemorating the journey of the wagon trains of oxen to the founding of a new culture in the untamed interior.

It recalls one of the most sacred dates in South African history, Dec. 16, 1838, the battle of Blood River in Natal. There, less than 500 men defeated 20,000 Zulus, confirming the belief of the commander before the fight that "this victory was an act of God," as the official handbook puts it.

On each anniversary of the battle, a shaft of sunlight floods down from the great high roof, shining on the words carved on a granite slab: Ons Vir Jou Suid-Afrika (We For Thee, South Africa).

From this date stems the mystical, irrational belief that the white man was meant to rule over this land and its black inhabitants. Outside the building is another favorite image of the Afrikaner, the wagon trains drawn into a protective laager or circle.

Ready to Die

The symbol comes up in conversation again and again. "If the world doesn't like what we do here, then it's back to the laager. We are willing to die to defend our way of life," said a Pretoria businessman.

South Africans say this means the West cannot afford to break all links with the country or see it fall into the hands of the Communists. Perhaps.

The ties work both ways, however, and cannot be easily broken. South Africa still has the choice of transforming its society peacefully instead of a new, glorious Blood River, with the Zulus winning this time.

As Zac de Beers says: "The choice is between prosperity and apartheid."

Not Another Saloon Dancer!

By GEORGE BAIN
Toronto Star

OTTAWA — Some Conservatives are upset by Maureen McTeer's persistence in going by the name of Maureen McTeer instead of calling herself Mrs. Joe Clark.

The other day, at the annual meeting of the Manitoba Progressive Conservative Association, there was a move — mercifully defeated — to "convey to Mr. Clark a resolution that his wife should be known as Mrs. Joe Clark."

Obviously what worries such people is that voters, whose virtue notoriously is exceeded only by their naivete, will see a picture somewhere with the caption, "Conservative Leader Joe Clark, Maureen McTeer, and their daughter, Catherine, frolic in the snow . . ."

"Great heavens," they will cry, "our leader is living in sin . . ." and the election will be irretrievably lost.

Even the fact that the Clark-McTeer union is also blessed with a Great Dane, which ordinarily would be enough to ensure them forgiveness for just about anything, won't be enough to set the matter right.

The Conservative party, the worried ones fear, will be condemned to another 20 years in the wilderness, Joe will drift back to High River, Alta., to live out his days searching titles, and, as for Maureen, alas, shunned by society she will wind up as a go-go dancer in a Yellowknife saloon.

However praiseworthy their concern, the Conservatives who want Joe to insist that his wife take his moniker as a real married lady should, are terribly uninformed about two things — one, an Ottawa institution, and, two, ladies.

The home of leaders of the Opposition is called Stornaway; it is found in the Crown Colony of Rockcliffe Park.

The capital of Canada surrounds Rockcliffe Park as Rome surrounds the Vatican — which, incidentally, Rockcliffe Park grudgingly permits to share its reputation as a centre of moral authority.

If anyone in Winnipeg, or anywhere else in our vast hinterland, thinks there's something improper about Ms McTeer going around calling herself Ms McTeer, he or she can think again.

If there was anything improper about it, the Crown Colony would never have let the Clark-McTeer menage in.

McTEER . . . Rockcliffe approves

(In the unlikely event of anything improper occurring between Rockcliffians in situ, as it were, the village elders drum them out, each with a big letter A branded on his and her — or his and his, her and her, his and their, their and her — forehead.

(The last recorded scandal within the borders occurred when the wife of a senior civil servant filed suit for alienation of affections against her husband's briefcase, with which he'd fallen in love and run off to Tahiti.

(She dropped the suit when he returned the contents, which included, in addition to the keys to their safety deposit box and their bankbook, for which she was looking, three Hansards, two drafts of a speech for his minister expressing diametrically opposite viewpoints, and a roll of Tums.

(No one has been burned at the stake in the colony since the Dark Ages, or 1956, whichever came later.)

So when they worry about Clark for one and McTeer for the other, Conservatives worry needlessly. What Rockcliffe sanctions, none can disapprove.

Where else the Conservatives are misdirected is in believing that telling a husband to tell his wife to do something necessarily will have any effect except, perhaps, to have her pack a camera and her tight blue jeans.

If there is anything a country beset by high unemployment, inflation, and the threat of internal break-up deserves to be spared, it's more pictures of an estranged wife boogeying in a cowboy hat in the 54 Club.

Minding Your P's and Q's

By KAREN OGDEN

To punctuate or not to punctuate: that is the question:
Whether 'tis better on the page to use
A comma or a semi-colon or a dash,
Or to finish with a period
And by stopping end the thought.

Hamlet's speech lends itself to parody. And another Dane, Victor Borge, in one of his comic sketches, uses various clicks and snaps to illustrate punctuation. We can make fun of rules of punctuation, but they confuse and frustrate us all at times. Lest we let punctuation become the hobgoblin of little minds, we can learn the basic rules and then be consistent in using them.

We punctuate to give our written communication the same kind of pauses and coherence that we give our spoken communication through inflection, pitch, tone, gesture, and pause. Where the speaker pauses to separate ideas, the writer uses a comma, a semicolon, or a period. Where the speaker changes the pitch of his voice to emphasize his point, the writer uses an exclamation point or a question mark. If you are not sure whether or not to use a punctuation mark, read aloud what you have written. You may need to punctuate where you naturally pause when reading. But you should check the rules and go by them since overpunctuating can confuse the reader as much as underpunctuating.

We punctuate to clarify and to emphasize. Professional writers sometimes ignore or change accepted rules of punctuation in order to achieve special effects, but for most of us punctuating according to the rules eliminates problems of misunderstanding.

Many books have been written about punctuation, but in this column I shall discuss only those areas where punctuating or not makes a real difference in meaning. For more detailed explanation, I highly recommend William Strunk and E. B. White's cogent little book, The Elements of Style. Any basic English grammar book deals with rules of punctuation, and so do some dictionaries such as Webster's, American College, and Random House.

The comma is probably the most frequently used and the least understood punctuation mark in the English language. Where you place it can determine what you say.

The teacher glared at Susan and Mary, who had caused the trouble, snickered.

In this sentence, not using the comma before the co-ordinate conjunction to separate the two clauses of the compound sentence confuses the reader at least momentarily.

Nancy Williams, who is a teacher, introduced the speaker.

The Nancy Williams who is a teacher introduced the speaker.

These sentences are nearly identical, but in the first one the clause "who is a teacher" is not necessary to the meaning of the sentence and is therefore set off by commas. In the second sentence, however, there are at least two Nancy Williamses, so "who is a teacher" is necessary to identify which one is being discussed. Therefore, it is not set off.

Whatever will be, will be.

When identical words are joined, you need a comma to separate them for clarity.

Our land lies down the lane past the sycamore tree by the lake.

Our land lies down the lane, past the sycamore tree, by the lake.

The words are the same, but the directions are not. In the first sentence the second prepositional phrase tells which lane, and the third phrase identifies which sycamore tree. In the second sentence each of the prepositional phrases gives additional information about where the land lies. The phrases modify "lies," not each other.

Using a comma where a semicolon belongs results in an error which grammarians call a comma splice. Such an error confuses the reader and detracts from the effectiveness of any piece of writing:

I had the flu, consequently, I missed an important meeting.

Here the connection between the ideas in the two main clauses is very close, but the clauses need to be separated by a semicolon after "flu."

A similar error in punctuation is the run-on sentence, which annoys any reader because it forces him to pause and separate the ideas.

Mary told me that Smith's was the best fruit market in town I never thought it would be so expensive.

To correct this run-on sentence, simply put a semicolon after "town."

The apostrophe is another commonly misused mark of punctuation. It has a triple function: to mark a contraction of two words, to show possession, and to form, for clarity, the plural of letters and numbers. "Won't," "can't," and "don't" are contractions of "will not," "cannot," and "do not," and in the contractions the apostrophe indicates the omission of letters.

"Boy's" and "boys" both show possession. In the first case we are talking about something possessed by one boy; in the second case we are talking about something possessed by more than one boy.

Sometimes there is a problem in punctuating when the possession is dual. For example, " 'The Pirates of Penzance' is my favorite of Gilbert and Sullivan's operettas." In this sentence only the second name uses the apostrophe in order to show that the operettas are the work of Gilbert and Sullivan together. However, if we say, "Chaucer's and Shakespeare's conceptions of Troilus and Cressida are quite different," we must use the apostrophe with both names to show that one conception belongs to Chaucer and another to Shakespeare.

The sentence, "There are three a's in Canada," illustrates the third use of the apostrophe. Without the apostrophe the sentence reads, "There are three as in Canada," and confuses the reader.

Is it "its" or "it's"? These two little words are troublesome because they do not follow the regular rules. In "it's" the apostrophe indicates the contraction of "it is." "Its" is the possessive form of the pronoun "it." So we write, "It's time that the dog ate its dinner."

Quotation marks are used to surround direct quotations. Sometimes through carelessness, a writer neglects the end quotation marks:

Hamlet said, "To be or not to be, but I have parodied his lines.

In order to show what Hamlet said, I need to use end quotation marks after the second "be." Writers often are not sure whether to put other marks of punctuation inside or outside the quotation marks. Commas and periods are put inside. Other marks of punctuation, like question marks, are placed inside only if they are part of the quotation.

One final word about punctuating — do not overpunctuate. Using commas where they are not needed makes writing choppy. Using exclamation marks too often make writing sound insincere, and indicates that the writer has to rely on punctuation rather than on well-chosen words for his effect.

When we are in a social situation, we mind our P's and Q's as part of conventional manners. When we write, we mind our Periods and Question Marks as part of conventional English punctuation.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market reversed an earlier loss to edge fractionally higher in active mid-afternoon trading.

Combined Metal Mines Ltd. was unchanged at 21 cents a share on the sale of 268,800 shares following its resumption at the opening after the announcement of a gas discovery in Pennsylvania.

Among industrials, Andres Wines gained ⅝ to $14⅞, Allarco Developments ½ to $20½, New Brunswick Telephone ½ to $20½, Nu-West Development A ½ to $13 and Texaco Canada ⅜ to $39.

Pacific Petroleums fell ⅝ to $38, Home Oil A ⅜ to $38, Calgary Power A ⅜ to $36⅞, Canadian Tire A ⅜ to $21⅝ and Canadian Imperial Bank ⅛ to $26½.

Teck Corp B advanced 15 cents to $5.00, Giant Yellowknife Mines ⅛ to $13⅜ and Roman Corp. ⅛ to $23⅝. Rio Algom was down ¾ to $26¼ and Denison Mines ¼ to $59.

Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum climbed ⅞ to $38, Canadian Superior Oil ⅞ to $53⅝ and Numac Oil and Gas ⅝ to $19. Siebens Oil and Gas slipped ¼ to $30 and Trans-Canada Resources nine cents to $2.20.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were fractionally higher in light to moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EST was 164,900 shares, compared with 272,100 shares traded up to the same time Friday.

Bell Canada climbed ¼ to $55¼, Gulf Oil Canada ⅛ to $26⅜, Velcro ⅛ to $10⅜ and Abitibi ⅛ to $11⅝. IU International Corp. dipped ⅛ to $12⅝, CP Ltd. ⅛ to $16¾ and Provigo ¼ to $16¼.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slowly as investors awaited the results of action by President Carter to get struck coal mines back in operation.

Trading was light.

In a weekend vote, members of the United Mine Workers rejected a contract proposal to end the three-month old coal strike.

President Carter invoked the Taft-Hartley Act Monday, setting in motion steps toward obtaining an 80-day back-to-work order.

But union leaders have warned of the likelihood of resistance to any such step among the miners. And market analysts said many traders seemed to be holding back today to see how the Taft-Hartley process would go.

Tropicana Products jumped 10½ to $44⅜. Beatrice Foods agree to acquire the company, paying $52 a share in cash for some of the stock and exchanging convertible preferred stock for the rest.

The NYSE's composite index dropped 0.32 to 48.35.

London

LONDON (CP) — Economic concerns kept prices only fractionally higher near the close of light trading on the London stock market.

The London Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 442.8, up 6.6.

Leading equities moved higher after earlier mixed trading, while gold issues recorded fractional gains.

Canadian stocks were mixed.

CATTLE

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 75 head, mainly slaughter cows.

Trade was moderate with a good local demand. There were no slaughter steers or heifers on offer. D3-5 cows sold steady.

Slaughter cattle D3-5 cows 27.50-31.50.

Prices quoted for feeder cattle and stock calves are Friday's close: feeder steers over 800 pounds 45-51.50; 600-700 pounds 46-53.50; good feeder heifers over 700 pounds 42-46; 500-600 pounds 42-47; feeder cows 29-37.50.

Stock steer calves 500-600 pounds 48-55.30. Good stock heifer calves 400-500 pounds 42-46.

Livestock reporter Gary Sparshu said the beef boycott by the Canadian Agriculture Movement appeared to be having some affect on deliveries although there were no pickets at the Calgary yards.

"I think its having some affect now," he said. "People are just holding back and seeing what happens."

He said last week's offerings were half the normal run but he could not say what a normal Monday's offering would be. Last Monday, there were 150 head of cattle on offer.

JAPANESE TVS SLIP

TOKYO (Reuter) — Exports of Japanese color television sets fell 23.9 per cent to 242,000 sets in January from 318,000 sets in December, the Japan Electronic Industries Association said today.

The figure was off 16.1 per cent from 288,500 sold in January, 1977.

The association blamed the decline on a U.S.—Japan agreement signed last July under which Japan agreed to limit its exports of color televisions to the U.S., where domestic manufacturers complained that imports were driving them out of business.

Trident: Most Expensive Weapon in History

How Trident evolved from what was originally envisioned as a slow, medium-sized and inexpensive submarine armed with long-range missiles, to be a fast, giant, expensive submarine with shorter range missiles, is a revealing glimpse of the Pentagon decision making process.

By GEORGE WILSON
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The navy's Trident missile submarine has now become the most expensive weapons program in the history of warfare, according to the Pentagon's latest estimates.

Fourteen of these largest-ever submarines — some of which are to be based at Bangor, Wash. — will cost $25.1 billion, or more than the B-1 bomber program President Carter cancelled partly on the ground of cost.

A Pentagon study obtained by the Washington Post warns that the navy will not have enough money to buy the submarines the nation needs unless changes are made.

Adm. James L. Holloway III, chief of naval operations, said in an interview that he sees "no alternative" to Trident, characterizing its high cost as "an industrial problem."

Critics contended that Trident, the submarine that is supposed to take over the sea-based nuclear deterrent role from the Polaris-Poseidon submarine fleet, got off its intended course when Adm. H. G. Rickover insisted on putting a big nuclear reactor inside it.

The nuclear power plant Rickover designed, they said, is so large that only a mammoth, costly submarine like Trident could accommodate it.

The counter argument, one made in an interview by Adm. Thomas H. Moorer who was chief of naval operations from 1967 to 1970 when Trident was moving from a concept toward a firm design, is that Rickover knows the realities of submarines.

"You can't knock success," said Moorer in stating that Rickover's nuclear reactors in ships and submarines have never failed in contrast to Soviet reactors which "have blown up and everything else."

Both Trident critics and backers agree that the new submarine is running way over estimated costs, is behind schedule and will keep the navy strapped for shipbuilding money or a decade.

Although inflation has contributed significantly to making Trident the most expensive weapons program ever, the navy acknowledged publicly in December that its first Trident was running 50 per cent over the estimated cost: $1.2 billion instead of $800 million. The ultimate Trident cost overrun could end up being a new record, exceeding the $2 billion on the air force C-5A cargo plane.

Since December, Pentagon officials have concluded that not only will the first Trident be late and over the target cost but the following four subs of that first group will be late as well.

William J. Perry, director of Pentagon research, told Congress last month that "delays in construction have occurred primarily as a result of inefficiencies and lower than expected productivity." General Dynamics' Electric Boat Co. yard at Groton, Conn., is building the Trident fleet.

Perry estimated that the first Trident would go to sea in 1981 rather than 1980 as the navy had planned. "It is expected" that Trident will be back on schedule by the time the sixth sub is delivered in December 1982, he added.

Despite the delays and cost problems, the navy has exercised its option with Electric Boat to order an additional two Trident subs on top of the five previously under contract. That contract amounts to $699 million for the two Trident hulls, not counting the missiles and other equipment needed to put it in combat shape.

How the Trident evolved from what originally was envisoned a slow, medium-sized and inexpensive submarine armed with long-range missiles, to be a fast, giant, expensive submarine, armed with shorter-ranged missiles, is a revealing glimpse of the Pentagon decision-making process.

It is a story of inner-service rivalries, of cozy contractor relationships, and of one Washington bureaucracy anticipating another in an internal process that shapes the super-weapons the nation buys in the interest of "the common defence."

The launching ramp for Trident was a special panel of the Pentagon commissioned in 1966 to assess the most cost-effective way to hurl extra explosives at Russia in case its anti-ballistic-missile system should prove effective.

Called Strat X for Strategic Experimental, this panel of experts sifted through about 125 ideas, participants recalled, ranging from hiding missiles under swimming pools to deploying them in abandoned coal mines.

Rear-Adm. George H. Miller, then head of the navy's strategic systems office, said in an interview that air force and navy submariners ganged up on him when he pushed the idea of moving Minuteman land missiles into surface ships.

Miller contended the idea made sense both then and now, "but never got a fair trial because the air force and submariners fought me every step of the way for fear of losing missions and money.

The Strat X panel, working under the Institute for Defence Analyses, a Pentagon think tank, filed its top-secret report in August, 1967. It concluded that a new missile submarine would be a cost-effective way to deliver additional nuclear punch.

The Washington Post, under a Freedom of Information Act request, obtained from the defence department a heavily-censored version of that Strat X report. The censored report and interviews with Strat X panel participants give this picture of the submarine that was envisioned:

—Strat X sub. A submarine going about 10 to 15 knots on the strength of the 15,000-horsepower nuclear reactor from the Thresher class submarine. The new sub would be 366 feet long, displace 2,700 tons and carry 24 missiles with a range of up to 6,500 miles.

The panel argued that high speed "is a minor consideration" since quietness and sonar countermeasures are the keys to evading an enemy killer sub.

—Trident. This new sub is expected to go about 20 to 25 knots — still slower than 30-knot Soviet killer subs — on the 90,000-horsepower nuclear reactor designed expressly for it. It will be 560 feet long, five feet higher than the Washington Monument if stood on end, and displace 18,700 tons. Trident will carry 24 missiles with a range of 4,000 miles. (A longer-ranged Trident II missile of 6,000 miles is under consideration for the future.)

Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., chief of naval operations from 1970 to 1974, said in his book, "On Watch," that Trident (originally called ULMS for underwater long-range missile system) began to take on "a Rickover shape" in 1974 because the admiral was insisting on building a 90,000-horsepower nuclear plant for Trident rather than use an existing one.

"Designing a ship from the power plant out," said Zumwalt, "never has struck me as an ideal procedure." But Zumwalt said he gave in to Rickover to hasten the construction of a new sub because Zumwalt feared the State Department bureaucracy was yielding the U.S. strategic edge to the Soviets at the arms limitation talks.

Zumwalt and Strat X participants said the size and weight of the new reactor, plus the navy's decision against positioning the missiles outside the main hull in free-floating capsules, forced Trident into its present giant size.

Robert M. Chapman, formerly an undersea warfare specialist, in a 1976 report warned that "the navy will not sustain its submarine force level objectives" if it keeps building bigger and bigger submarines rather than finding ways to compress both the nuclear power plant and hull.

"The submarine force building program has reached a critical" point where there soon will not be enough money to buy the needed subs "unless a significant change can be achieved in cost-performance relationships of the submarine itself" according to the report.

Because the Polaris and Poseidon fleet is scheduled to wear out before enough Tridents are deployed to match the current force of 656 submarine missiles, a new kind of strategic gap looms ahead for the United States.

Tax Tips '78

Q. I'm a divorced woman. Can I claim the equivalent married exemption of $1,990 for my 13-year-old child?

A. Yes, provided your child lives with you in a "self-contained domestic establishment" maintained by you alone or jointly with some other person, and in which both you and your dependant generally eat and sleep.

Q. I received a scholarship last year and had to move away from home to attend full-time courses at a university. Can I deduct my moving expenses?

A. Yes. If you moved to attend full-time courses at a university or other post-secondary educational institution in Canada you may deduct moving expenses, but only if these are claimed against award income such as scholarships, fellowships, research grants and similar awards and only to the extent that such income is reported on your return. Be sure to include Form T1-M with your income tax return.

Q. Can a university student claim a property tax credit for rent paid during the year?

A. Students who are roomers, tenants or boarders off campus in Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba and Ontario can calculate the rent paid during the year towards the property tax credit, up to a certain maximum. Students must be over 16 and their principal residence cannot be that of someone else who is claiming them as a dependant.

Q. In connection with the capital gains provision, what information should I keep to support values of my farm property as of December 31, 1971?

A. In support of your values, it will be useful to keep the following:

(a) The type of land (arable, bush or scrub).
(b) The type of farming done.
(c) A brief description of the property, including location, lot, building size, date and type of construction.
(d) The cost and date of purchase.
(e) The cost and date of any improvements.
(f) The property assessment for municipal tax purposes, insurance coverage and information on any sales of similar property in your area as of December 31, 1971.

Q. When filing tax returns, are commercial reserves and elevator deductions to be reported as income for the year they were paid out to a farmer?

A. Normally these will have been reported in the year when credited to his account, and would therefore not be included in his income when actually received.

Q. My husband has a farm tractor that he uses, not to earn his living, but to do his farming and a little logging and collecting of firewood. Can he claim any depreciation on this farm tractor?

A. If your husband is a farmer and is reporting income from farming or logging he would be able to claim depreciation on the tractor. However, if he has no income from farming or logging, and the tractor is not being used for the purpose of producing income, he would be unable to claim any depreciation.

Q. I understand that I may be eligible to claim two federal tax reductions this year. Please explain.

A. Everyone is eligible for the general tax reduction which has been increased to 9 per cent of the Basic Federal Tax for 1977. The minimum general tax reduction is either the amount of your basic federal tax or $200, whichever is less.

Beginning this year there is a tax reduction for children. Basically, you can claim an additional tax reduction of $50 for each dependent child living in Canada and under 18 years of age on December 31, 1977. (The number of children that you claim should be shown on line 63 on page 4 of your return.)

The maximum amount you can deduct for the two federal tax reductions is the least of:

a) The total of your general tax reduction and your tax reduction for children
OR
b) Your basic federal tax
OR
c) $500.

Cheers Ring Out As Sealers Sail

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The St. John's waterfront was lined with thousands of well-wishers Sunday as four Canadian sealing ships with Newfoundland crews received a blessing during an open-air ecumenical service and headed for the northern ice area known as the Front.

The Arctic Endeavour, Arctic Explorer, Carino and Lady Johnson Two, each carrying a crew of between 28 and 30, let go their mooring lines to the blast of whistles from other vessels as guns fired, church bells rang and flags dipped.

A crowd estimated by police at between 3,000 and 4,000 stood quietly throughout the 20-minute service.

Traditional hymns and the Ode to Newfoundland, the province's national anthem before Confederation in 1949, were sung by onlookers and crewmembers.

Extra police ashore and a Canadian Coast Guard launch in the harbor kept watch for seal hunt protesters, but none appeared.

The Sunday sailing was a break with tradition—it was once believed unlucky to sail on a holy day—but otherwise the sendoff was reminiscent of festivities held from the early part of the 19th century until the Second World War.

The event was organized by the Progressive Rights Organization (PRO), formed in 1977 by Fishermen's and citizens' groups to counteract worldwide adverse publicity against the hunt which opens off northern Newfoundland on March 10.

Capt. Morrisey Johnson of the Lady Johnson Two thanked those present in a brief speech.

A middle-aged lady jumped up onto the platform on which the service had been held to hug Capt. Ulf Snarby of the Arctic Explorer.

"Good luck, my son, good luck," she said to Snarby, a Norwegian now living here.

The firing of guns to celebrate the start of a sealing voyage has not been heard in St. John's harbor since before the war, some elderly bystanders said.

The vessels will be joined by four Norwegian ships when they reach the ice about 160 kilometres off Newfoundland's northern tip. A fifth Canadian vessel, the Martin Karlsen, is to hunt this year in the Gulf of St. Lawrence with a crew from Magdalen Islands, Que., and was not here for the ceremonies.

The Canadian ships on the front are allowed to take 62,000 harp seals, mostly pups. The Norwegian quota is 35,000. Both countries share the 15,000 hooded seal quota. The hood season opens March 20.

Although there were no protesters in sight, a scuffle broke out at one point after an argument that bystanders said involved a Newfoundlander who opposed the hunt.

Protest Takes Flight

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greenpeace Foundation will launch this year's seal-hunt protest with a North American publicity tour in an executive aircraft, says foundation president Pat Moore.

Moore said the flight, aboard a donated turboprop aircraft, will begin in San Francisco on Wednesday and end March 11 in St. Anthony, Nfld., the base for the protest against the harvest of harp seal pups.

On the flight will be Congressmen Leo Ryan, a California Democrat and chairman of the House of Representatives sub-committee on environment and natural resources, and Jim Jeffors, a Vermont Republican and long-time environmentalist.

The Greenpeace flight will include news conferences in Washington, D.C. and Ottawa, Moore said.

He said Friday that Ed Daly, president of World Airways, Oakland, Calif., will provide the 18-passenger aircraft.

Greenpeace will hold a news conference March 9 in Washington, D.C.

Earthquake After Boom?

HALIFAX (CP) — A Canadian Forces official says a United States research company has raised the possibility that the mysterious booms along the eastern seaboard of Canada and the United States may be forerunners of an earthquake off the Nova Scotia coast.

But Commodore Glen DeRosenroll, chief of staff for Maritime Command, cautioned that the theory is "highly speculative" and sonic aircraft remain the most likely cause of the booms. Nevertheless, he said, all military units and other civil protection organizations have been warned of the earthquake possibility.

The theory that the booms may warn of geological disturbance was put forth by Mitre Corp., an agency under contract to the U.S. Navy Research Laboratories.

Commodore DeRosenroll said Mitre's theory was passed on to Maritime Command on Friday from national defence headquarters in Ottawa, which received the information from the U.S. Government.

Frank Blackwell, Nova Scotia director for Emergency Planning Canada, said the federal organization is taking Mitre's theory seriously, although the earthquake threat seems ill-defined.

Dr. K. Whitham of Ottawa, director-general of the earth physics branch of the federal department of energy, mines and resources, said Mitre has been collecting data from a number of sources concerning booms off New England, North Carolina and Rhode Island.

He said there is no evidence on which to base a prediction of a large earthquake off Nova Scotia.

Feminists Attack Porn

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Pornography teaches society to view women as inferior, says an associate philosophy professor at the University of Toronto.

Dr. Lorenne Clark told a two-day feminist conference on the weekend that women should fight for laws which would ban pornography because it is an affront to their dignity as human beings.

"It is not a mark of personal depravity for a man to be sexually aroused by pornographic material," she said. "But men should be angry at being manipulated that way."

She said women cannot expect support from the Liberal party which would view a ban on pornography as censorship.

Ms. Clark said pornography is a $16-million business

Law Ad Ban Illegal?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Law Society of British Columbia could be contravening regulations of the federal Combines Investigations Act, by banning advertising by lawyers a committee of the society has been told.

Bill McEwen, an official of the combines investigations branch, told the society's Benchers that since 1976 the act has included the legal profession under a conspiracy section.

In his opinion, he said, Law Society restrictions on advertising are in contravention of the act. The society's regulations, however, have not been tested in court, he said.

McEwen was testifying at a hearing of the Benchers on charges against lawyer Don Jabour of North Vancouver.

The society's Benchers charged Jabour with conduct unbecoming a lawyer after he placed advertisements in newspapers here Jan. 26 and 27. The ads described Jabour's new law office, which opened Feb. 1, and included prices of typical services.

Jabour was chairman of the B.C. Legal Services Commission for two years, and has said that he formed the idea of a low-cost legal clinic while observing the delivery of legal services in B.C. and in other countries.

The Law Society had been studying the question of legal advertising prior to Jabour's test case, but the studies were expected to take some time. The Benchers have also cited Vic Stephens, B.C. Progressive Conservative leader and also a lawyer, for allegedly breaking the ad ban, and the Benchers now are trying to decide whether to continue the ban.

Jabour appeared before the Benchers after he asked for, and was denied, a court injunction banning the Law Society hearing. He is taking legal action against the Law Society, alleging that his practice has been harmed.

Similar test cases in the United States have resulted in decisions allowing lawyers to advertise under certain restrictions in some states. Earlier this year in England, the British Law Society allowed solicitors to advertise under certain conditions.

"People seem to be grateful that someone has done this. I think they (clients) are relieved to know ahead of time what it's going to cost.

"Our position is that in this day and age it's not unbecoming for a lawyer to advertise," Jabour said. "It's informational advertising rather than promotional. It gives information about hours and fees."

He said the reason given for the advertising ban is "lawyers just don't do that kind of thing."

Jabour said the rule is more one of ethical conduct than a legal regulation.

If the Benchers find against Jabour, he faces anything from a reprimand or fine to suspension or disbarment.

Bewley Criticism Studied

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Association of Provincial Court Judges will have a standing committee consider several areas of the Provincial Court Act, association vice-president Judge Jack McGivern said Sunday.

McGivern said the group discussed a letter from Judge Les Bewley which complained about "injudicious remarks" by members of the B.C. Judicial Council, but said it would not be proper for him to comment on it.

Bewley earlier asked the association to look into the conduct of Provincial Court Chief Judge Lawrence Brahan and Associate Chief Judge Laurence Goulet in events that led to his appearance before a six-member council panel in January.

Bewley has complained that the two men made no attempt to get his version of events before they ordered the council inquiry of Bewley's handling of a case in which he described the female witnesses as "a bunch of clucking females."

Victoria's Creeks To Raise Trout?

Artificial holding ponds to raise fingerling coho and cuthroat trout in the Colquitz and Craigflower River systems are being financed under a five-year federal fisheries program.

A one-man Victoria company, Aqua Science Consulting Ltd., has a $24,287 contract for the third year of the program, which aims to prove the two fresh water streams and the Gorge waterway can be restored as prime fish areas.

Starting this month, fresh-water ponds dug in suitable locations will be stocked with some of about 20,000 eggs taken from trout and coho and placed in incubation ponds in Goldstream last fall.

Next year, four to five-inch smolts will be released into the streams.

Company principal Dr. Bob Langford said the ministry of fisheries and environment, which awarded him the contract, and the provincial fish and game branch have a joint interest in the rehabilitation of Saanich waterways.

Although the small rivers once were important spawning streams for cutthroat, coho and chum salmon, the fish have declined to the point of extinction due to urban development, pollution and the absence of water management policies.

While in the ponds the fry will be pellet-fed to supplement their natural food supply and should reach better than normal size when released in May, 1979.

Langford said the fish should remain in the fresh water for two or three months to ensure they return to the same streams when it is their turn to spawn.

Withhold Hydro 7%, B.C. Indians Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Native Indians living on British Columbia reserves have been asked by the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs to consider withholding the seven-per-cent sales tax on their B.C. Hydro bills.

The union also decided to encourage Indians to turn out in large numbers for a court action here April 10 when a Skidegate Indian will claim exemption from the tax on grounds that the federal Indian Act prohibits direct taxation of Indians living on reserves.

A two-pronged resolution was passed supporting Lillian Brown in a class action that could lead to the repayment of sales and other taxes collected from reserve residents.

At the windup session of a three-day socio-economic conference held by the union here. Some speakers warned union president George Manuel against committing the body to a stand on the case without reference to the individual bands.

But Manuel said he had obtained legal advice before introducing the motion — and that it leaves the decisions in the hands of the Indians themselves.

In proposing the resolution, Manuel said Indians on reserves in other provinces do not pay provincial taxes because of the exemption extended them under Section 87 of the Indian Act, and that the intent of the motion is to sensitize the B.C. government to its callous position.

Mrs. Brown is contesting sales tax of $4.68 on her bill but Manuel said it is not just a matter of a few cents, but one of principle.

He said the B.C. government had failed to give emergency assistance to residents of Bella Bella during a blackout emergency there in December, and complained that although it refuses services to reserves, it collects taxes in industry located on leased reserve land.

Indians tax such developments themselves in other provinces, but B.C. has refused such rights, although Indians have attempted to get them for years, Manuel said.

Conference chairman Don Moses read from a B.C. Hydro memo written last year after the action was launched, instructing power district managers that power was not to be disconnected when sales tax is withheld "where the customer provides reasonable evidence of being a native Indian residing upon a reserve."

Skiing Safety Sought

CRANBROOK (CP) — Members of the Kootenay Nordic ski club are calling for tighter safety standards for ski guides and pilots for helicopter ski excusions but a spokesman for a Banff-based helicopter ski company says the club is simply upset because a member died in an avalanche last year.

Chuck Wills, a club spokesman, denied his group's campaign is directly linked to the death in an avalanche last year of Shirley Oliver, 31, of Cranbrook.

"What we want is safety regulations," Wills said. "We are not attacking the company."

Mark Kingsbury, company manager for Canadian Mountain Holidays of Banff, Alta., said in a telephone interview that "people who go into those areas assume a degree of risk."

He said his firm has lost only five clients in 20 years.

8,000 'Hometown Tourists'

Part of the line-up on the Causeway

The hometown tourist promotion attracted 8,000 Victorians and several thousand more tickets could have been sold if space had been available, Visitors Information Centre president Ted Balderson said today.

The promotion raised about $16,000 for tourist promotion work.

A $2 ticket enabled Victorians to visit eight tourist attractions and have a snack at McDonalds.

All revenues went to the Visitors Information Centre.

Balderson said the purpose of the promotion is to make Victorians aware of their local attractions as well as to raise funds for the VIC.

"It was very successful and we are only sorry more people couldn't participate. But 8,000 is about the limit or it would become too crowded."

Balderson said many people lined up at the Causeway bureau waiting for tickets to become available.

"There were a few cases of people who bought tickets and couldn't use them. The tickets were snapped up as soon as they were returned."

He said many Victorians came back to the Causeway bureau after the tour to rave about the tourist attractions.

They idicated they will take their visitors to the attractions this summer.

All this will help to boost the local economy, Balderson said.

CARTER: TIME COME

(Carter's) attitude, then he might as well get his pick and shovel and do it himself."

One government official said Carter has not ruled out eventually asking Congress for authority to seize mines.

Union President Arnold Miller said in an interview Sunday that any government action "will cause some violence in the coalfields."

Invoking the Taft-Hartley act—which hasn't been used since a 1971 dock strike—lets the president name a three-person fact-finding committee, operating under a presidential deadline to make its recommendations.

With the committee's report in hand, the president can then direct the attorney-general to seek a back-to-work order from a federal district court.

Such an order would send the miners back to the pits for an 80-day cooling-off period while both sides sit down with federal mediators.

A key issue in the strike has been pension and health benefits for miners and their families. Opposition has also focused on a provision permitting operators to fire leaders of wildcat strikes.

The proposed contract called for wage increases of up to 37 per cent.

Dog Food Reward For Hero

ST. PAUL, Alta. (CP) — Casey, a two-year-old Irish setter living on a farm near this community, 160 kilometres northeast of Edmonton, is a hero.

And his owners, Fred Gabrieau, 46, and his brother, Willie, 55, figure the least they can do is give him extra dog food rations for saving their lives last week.

Casey barked and threw himself against the door of the house when it caught fire last Thursday night until Fred awakened.

Knowing they had little time to escape, Fred roused his brother immediately and the two fled from the house.

Both of the Gabrieau brothers burned their feet and Willie had to be treated for burns on his hands and fingers.

RCMP PROBE DEATH IN MEXICO

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP has sent investigators to assist Mexican police looking into the death of Lonnie Neely, an RCMP constable from Blairmore, Alta. who died on vacation, an external affairs spokesman said today.

He said the RCMP was invited to send the investigators by the police in Mazatlan, the Mexican resort town where the 22-year-old constable died Feb. 18 or early Feb. 19.

Adoption 'Racist'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa Children's Aid Society may be examined by the Ontario human rights commission because of its alleged practice of discouraging inter-racial adoption.

A member of the commission said Saturday he is appalled by the society's practice of discouraging East Indian couples' adoption of white children.

He said he will discuss with his staff the possibility of investigating the Ottawa society on grounds of racial discrimination.

An unidentified East Indian couple, resident in Canada for 12 years, said they were told by an Ottawa society social worker that it is not the society's policy "to place white child with brown parents."

HOW TO BE A GREAT SPORT
A few words on jeans (and the bodies in them) from Levi's and Jeunesse

Face facts. You're not one of the boys. And putting a great body like yours into boy-shaped jeans is pretty silly... not to mention unnecessary. Because now there's a new kind of jean made especially for your kind of shape. Levi's Pantomime.

They've got everything you've always liked about Levi's... and something extra. A contoured waistline... just like yours. A curved hip design... just like yours. And a fit you have to feel to believe.

Levi's Pantomime from Jeunesse. Jeans that are made for a body like yours.

Shown on the left, the newest style for Levi's newest jean: The cigarette leg. You've never had it so lean. Pure cotton denim. 23.95. (All jeans in sizes 26 to 34 waist.) The essential high heels, from Jeunesse Shoes.

Seaweed Harvest

Farming the ocean offers man a tremendous food source . . . if it can be done successfully

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

For more than 30 years entrepreneurs and governments have been toying with the idea of harvesting the rich seaweed beds found along B.C.'s 17,000-mile coastline.

Over the years there have been several attempts but all have failed.

And the biggest reason, according to Dr. Alan Austin of the University of Victoria, is a lack of knowledge of the plants or the the algae to which seaweeds belong.

Austin, a phycologist, or algae specialist, says scientists are just now beginning to scratch the surface in their understanding of the algae, which include among their members some of the most fundamental life forms on earth.

He's devoted the past 20 years of his life to study and research on the subject.

Austin says in terms of quality and quantity, the deeply-indented B.C. coastline is one of the richest sources of seaweed in the world. Only the south coast of Australia is clearly richer.

Yet ironically neither B.C. nor Australia have even begun to tap the resource.

"They're like us. We've both got so many other resources to work with the thought doesn't enter. Why seaweed?"

Why, indeed. Austin cites several reasons. Seaweeds have an infinite number of uses, he says, as a fertilizer, cattle feed, and diet supplement. Their use in both the food and drug industries is rapidly growing.

In some countries — Japan, Scotland, the Scandavian nations — certain seaweeds are eaten as whole foods. In Eastern Canada the dulse seaweed is chewed like chewing gum, and in Ireland people for centuries have put the Irish moss seaweed into a bowl of hot milk to make a milky jello.

Seaweed extractives and gels are found in such diverse products as aspirin, homogenized milk, cottage cheese, ice cream, inks, ointments, laxatives, tires and even baby's rubber pants.

There is also research into using the plant biomass as an energy source. The kelps, through photosynthesis, produce organic biomass that can be converted to fuels such as alcohol or methane.

Commercial interest in seaweed only really started to develop during and after the Second World War when many nations were forced to look to alternative food and energy sources. Today the plants are extensively harvested off Chile, the coast of Africa, Indonesia, Japan, and Eastern Canada.

The once-rich commercial beds in the western Baltic Sea have been all but depleted because of over-harvesting. Parts of the sea off Denmark, says Austin, have become "underwater Saharas."

He doesn't want the same thing to happen here.

Despite his enthusiasm for taming the wild seaweed in B.C., he's guided by one thought — caution.

"As a wildlife resource it is so terribly fragile, . . . and so vital to the ecosystem."

He points out it has taken man millenia to work out methods of agriculture on land. Even with present-day technology, developing agriculture methods for marine plants won't come easily.

"We've got to know such an awful lot more before we can get into this area with any degree of confidence that we have the proper control over and understanding of the consequences."

For example, he says, hardly anything is known about cell division rhythms in seaweeds. And yet that knowledge is essential to cross species to get better crops, let alone ensure the plants' survival under cultivation.

Austin has been conducting research into the resource for more than six years. He's says 400 to 500 different kinds of seaweed are common to B.C. waters. There are tens of thousands of different kinds in the world.

He's pioneered a new approach in mapping the location of beds — using special photography.

He hopes to publish his findings in a comprehensive report that should be ready for the printers in a year.

"We want to be able to tell fishermen, entrepreneurs, governments or anyone else who's interested just what crops are growing here and where."

Austin is relieved B.C. has been largely ignored by the seaweed processors.

But last summer Marine Colloids, one of the world's largest seaweed processors, was carrying out a survey in the Campbell River area to determine stocks of the commercially valuable Iridescent seaweed.

Austin says the exploitation of the resource is as inevitable as the tide.

And when it comes, he wants B.C. to be ready.

Hospital Denies Abortion Charge

Rest Haven Hospital administrator D.L. Dunsfield said today the B.C. Federation of Women produced no facts or figures to back its claim that the hospital is one of three in B.C. which are overly rigid in applying of the abortion law.

In a study released on the weekend the federation said Rest Haven, along with Kelowna General Hospital and Fraser Canyon Hospital in Hope are rigid in their application of the law.

The study involved 36 hospitals and interviews with hospital administrators, doctors and women's groups.

Dunsfield said he definitely had not been contacted although a doctor on staff might have been approached.

"We have an abortion committee and any application that the medical staff feels is legitimate we go ahead with.

"We have had no complaints. They (the federation) don't give any facts or figures to back it up."

Rest Haven is owned by the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

The federation said women seeking abortions in B.C. sometimes face emotional harm and risky delays because of arbitrary interpretation of abortion laws by hospitals.

Researcher Jenna Jordison said in some areas women are unable to get factual information on abortion laws from doctors or hospitals.

She said red tape and foot dragging by medical authorities, including some hospital abortion committees, result in delays of two weeks as an absolute minimum and often much longer.

"The abortion situation in B.C. puts women in a degrading, powerless position, subject to the personal and often arbitrary predispositions of mainly male lawmakers and medical personnel."

The study indicated that 20 of the 36 hospitals canvassed require the husband's consent for abortion even though this is not required by law.

In nine hospitals, legal papers were required to prove separation.

POLICE ALLEGE ARSON

City police arrested a 22-year-old man allegedly trying to start a fire behind a downtown hotel Sunday night.

Firemen were called to the rear of The Yates Hotel, 712 Yates, and to 727 Johnson, after separate rubbish fires were reported. There was no property damage.

In another fire early today, an estimated $15,000 damage occurred in the apartment of Maybelle Pollard, 562 Simcoe.

The blaze apparently was started by a malfunctioning electric heating pad which set a bed on fire.

In another incident, a decorating job at the home of Lou Reda, 1303 Hillside, was spoiled when a drop sheet spread to catch paint splashes caught fire about 10 p.m. Sunday.

Firemen said the owner went out, leaving a lamp burning underneath the drop sheet, which caught fire and burned carpet and woodwork worth about $250.

AirWest Asking Ottawa To Intervene in Its Strike

The federal government has again been asked to step into the lengthy strike by Local 213 of the Teamsters Union against Airwest Airlines Ltd., company president Norm Gold said today.

Gold said AirWest has asked Ottawa to intervene in any way it sees fit, perhaps by appointing an inquiry commission to investigate the whole situation.

"This dispute has gone beyond the limits of normal bargaining . . . we've tried everything, we just have no place to go," said Gold.

He added he feels some Teamster members may be deliberately prolonging the dispute and there may be a dissident group that wants to shut the airline down.

Teamster spokesman Wes Anderson, however, rejected the argument that there is a hard core of radicals holding up settlement.

"His entire work force voted on the last proposal. They know how he operates and they just aren't prepared to go back and work for him unless he spells out the conditions clearly," said Anderson.

Regarding the airline's plea for federal intervention, Anderson said that it's unfortunate that Gold is not prepared to deal with his problems directly.

He said the federal government was unsuccessful when involved in the dispute before.

"There've been lots of interventions and Gold has just rejected the recommendations. I'd just see this as another intervention unless he's willing to indicate he'll accept the findings."

Gold said he hopes an individual of national stature who is respected by both the union and management would be appointed to look into the dispute which has centred recently on the issue of seniority advancement.

Gold said since the union rejected a tentative back-to-work agreement reached Feb. 15, employees have reiterated their demands for a seniority clause which conflicts with the nationally-accepted practice of airlines in promoting employees on the basis of merit and skill, as well as seniority.

AirWest said in a news release the situation is deemed so perilous that unless outside mediation is forthcoming this week, the present 125 airline jobs could disappear and the likelihood of those employees getting similar jobs is very slight.

The company said there also is the possibility AirWest will go out of business.

The union has been on strike since Nov. 13.

AirWest provides flights to Vancouver, Victoria, Nanaimo, Duncan, Powell River, Texada Island, Comox and Seattle.

Racquet Club Launches New Drive for Members

The Racquet Club of Victoria has scrapped the drive for 200 new members it began in January and has now launched a modified campaign.

Club manager Ernst Rieder said today two new members signed up only hours after the new campaign began Friday.

The January drive, which the club hoped would produce 200 new members at $600 per share, was unsuccessful Rieder said.

The modified plan allows people to become members by putting $100 down, Rieder said, and paying the remaining $500 by monthly payments of $10 over a five-year period.

The membership drive was organized to raise $120,000 of a $400,000 expansion to provide five covered tennis courts.

The club's 900 members gave approval in principle to the expansion at the December annual meeting.

Rieder said if the expansion goes ahead the whole project will now require financing by borrowing.

The executive will consider this at a meeting to be held later this month and, in all probability, Rieder said, the matter will be referred back to the general membership.

The Real Issue: Our Economic Health

ANOTHER FEDERAL election is in the making, which means that we the long-suffering people are going to be subjected to a frightful barrage of politically-motivated blather. The purpose of all this is to involve us emotionally on the side of one party or other, and in the process reason may fly out the window.

Take, for example, the perfectly ridiculous charges levelled against each other by our two leading politicians a couple of weeks ago.

Up rises Opposition Leader Joe Clark with a straight face to label Prime Minister Trudeau "a European Canadian."

Take the term. Analyze it. What does it mean? A Canadian who spends an undue amount of time in Europe? Or perhaps a Canadian too much under European influence? In any case, the term conveys a sinister suggestion that the PM is somehow alienated from our North American scene.

This, of course, is nonsense. Like him or not, we must give Trudeau his due. He was born in the land, and is about as intense a Canadian as a march across the provinces will turn up.

But an election is coming up, and the great game of moulding opinion is under way!

Hardly had we been given time to consider the Joe Clark canard about European Canadians when the prime minister cuts loose with a no less nonsensical charge of his own.

If one would find the cause of disunity in Canada, he declared in effect, one had only to look to the Progressive Conservative opposition.

We have become so conditioned to political sound without sense that at first hearing, the charge seems to merit consideration. Then outraged reason comes to the rescue.

How have the PCs, a party whose aims and ideals bear a dismaying resemblance to those of the Liberals, contributed to national disunity? In actual fact, not politically-motivated moonshine, they have fairly leaned over backward to avoid any move that might give offence to Quebec!

Like Joe Clark's "European Canadian" charge, the prime minister's "Canadian disunity" rejoinder disintegrated under pressure. A little though reduces both to piffle of purest ray serene.

Since these attempts to manipulate our minds are bound to continue, a certain wariness in approaching politicians' declarations is demanded of us.

You have but one vote. And it is important in what may well prove to be the most crucial election in Canadian history, that you should make it count.

For a start, then, you can discount the suggestion that Trudeau's Canadianism is suspect, and the countercharge that reflects on the Opposition's will toward unity. Those were no more than ranging shots, designed to bring the antagonists to grips.

Your chief problem as a cool-headed voter unswayed by the emotionalism that political manipulators seek to inspire may be whether to vote for the man or the party.

The party of your choice, let us suppose, fields a thoroughgoing chump as its candidate in your riding. Should he rate your backing for the sake of the party, or would you be wiser to look elsewhere?

When faced with a situation of that sort, my personal reaction is to send the best man to Ottawa regardless of party, in the pious hope that his presence there may help sweeten the mix. And, Lord knows, if ever there was a time when we needed solid, thoughtful, far-viewing men at Ottawa, it is now.

They must work toward recovering us from our economic plight. And they must realize that plight stems directly from our grave dis unity. So their assignment is two-fold, and the measure of their effectiveness will be in how they handle it. In Canada's next Parliament, it will not be enough to be a politician alone if the country is to be saved. At least a suggestion of statesmanship will be demanded.

Don't be fooled! The real and inter-dependent issues over which this upcoming federal election will be fought are Canada's economic health and national unity. All else is mere political window-dressing.

Two in Hospital After Cars Crash

Motorists Ross Regan, 57, and Dorothy Regan, 55, of 2380 Mount St. Michael, are in good condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital after a crash at Elk Lake Drive and Normandy about 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Regan, driver of one car, received a concussion, and his companion a broken leg, when their car was in collision with one driven by Ken Dosso, 17, of 2425 Sutton. Both vehicles were heavily damaged.

Dosso and a passenger were examined for superficial injuries.

FERRY BOOKING URGED

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber wants a reservation system on the two main B.C. Ferries Corp. runs between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Such a move, he says, would reduce antagonism to B.C. Ferries among its patrons.

Barber, in a letter to the chairman and directors of the corporation, presented proposals on how to improve the ferry system this summer.

He calls for the establishment of midnight runs on the Swartz Bay to Tsawwassen route, along with extra sailings in the 72-hour period surrounding Labor Day and Canada Day.

A downtown-to-downtown link should be established between Victoria and Vancouver, Barber said, served by smaller ferries carrying only foot and bicycle passengers.

AMERICAN RUNNER SETS WORLD MARK

JANICE MERRILL
. . .under nine minutes

MONTREAL (CP) — A United States runner set a world mark and three native national records were established during the weekend at the Canadian indoor track and field championships at the Claude Robillard Centre.

The world standard was set by Janice Merrill of Waterford, Conn., Sunday when she became the first woman to cover 3,000 metres in under nine minutes.

The strongest Canadian showing came in the men's 200 metres where Dan Biocchi of Montreal set a time of 21.4 seconds in a semi-final, and Hugh Fraser of Ottawa equalled the mark in winning the final. The previous record of 21.8 had belonged to Biocchi and three others.

Fraser also took the gold medal in the 50-metre final Saturday and was named as the outstanding man at the meet.

The other Canadian native records were set Saturday. Ron Jackson of Edmonton broke the tape in the men's 400 metres at 47.9 seconds, bettering the mark of 48.21, set by Bryan Saunders of Toronto in the same meet in 1977.

And, Joscelyn Richard of Montreal covered the women's 1,500-metre walk in seven minutes, 21.5 seconds, to erase the standard of 7:23.9, set by Jacinthe Theberge of Dolbeau, Que., a year earlier.

Veteran Diane Jones-Konihowski of Edmonton proved that marriage had taken nothing from her athletic ability when she emerged as both an easy winner in the pentathlon, and as women's long jump champion.

Francine Gendron of Montreal was another big winner with victories in both the 800 metres, and 1,500 metres for women.

Debbie Brill of Aldergrove, was not at her best, but nevertheless won the women's high jump with a leap over the bar at 1.85 metres.

Merrill, a mathematics major at Connecticut College in New London, stopped the clock at eight minutes, 57.6 seconds in spite of the fact she had no opposition in the race. Nancy Rooks of Toronto, the second-place finisher, was more than 40 seconds slower.

Debbie Pearson of Toronto was third in 9:40.1 while Cheryl Matthews of Victoria finished fourth in 9:45.3.

Merrill's record bettered the time of 9:02.54, set by Francie Larrieu-Lutz in San Diego, in 1974.

Debbie Campbell of Esquimalt Athletics was Vancouver Island's big winner. She won the 400 metres in 54.9 and also took the bronze medal in the 800, finishing 2.8 seconds behind Gendron and second-place Anne Mackie-Morelli of Vancouver.

Al Sheridan of Victoria won the bronze in the men's 50-metre hurdles and Craig Taylor of Courtenay, also a member of the Esquimalt team, placed third in the long jump with an effort of 6.97 metres.

DataTech Shot Down

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Burnaby Bullets made the most of a height advantage to shoot down Victoria DataTech twice at the weekend and capture the British Columbia senior "A" men's basketball championship.

Upset 86-71 on their home floor the previous weekend, Burnaby tied the best-of-three series with an 82-68 Saturday victory and then claimed a trip to the nationals by defeating DataTech 93-73 at the McKinnon Gymnasium on Sunday.

Inability to penetrate Burnaby's inside defences and a sudden cooling of Victoria's offense made the Bullets' series comeback look easy.

"We're not the kind of team that can shoot consistently from the outside," was Victoria coach Don Burrows' summation. "Burnaby used its height to control the boards. . .and we were in trouble.

"In addition, Burnaby was a far different team than last week," Burrows added.

The Tom Bell-coached Bullets now will represent B.C. in the Canadian final, to be played in Regina March 17-19.

While Bell got good mileage out of his team's height and balance, Victoria's poor shooting performance was the telling factor in Sunday's deciding game. DataTech hit on only 30 per cent of shots from the field in the first half and didn't enjoy much improvement in the second half.

Victoria kept in contention for most of the first half. In the final minutes, however, DataTech shooting abruptly soured. Burnaby was protecting a 33-30 lead when the Bullets outscored Victoria 15-2 in the final brief stretch to take a 48-32 half-time lead. DataTech never recovered.

Burnaby's balance was reflected in the scoring. Jan Bohn (20), Bob Wright (16), Kim O'Leary (16), Werner Spann (15) and Neal Bieker (14) all hit for double figures, contributing from the outside as well as the inside.

Bob Burrows paced DataTech with 19 points. Ken Shields and Dave Mulcahy each hit for 12.

Victoria's frustration showed when, with about four minutes remaining, DataTech's Chris Hall and O'Leary were chased from the game for fighting.

With Burnaby obviously in command, O'Leary goaded Hall into committing a checking foul. Again taunted after taking the foul, Hall went swinging at O'Leary and both players were ejected.

BURNABY (93) — David Craig 2, Bob Wright 16, Kim O'Leary 16, Neal Bieker 14, Russ Pearson 3, Jan Bohn 20, Werner Spann 15, Ken Olynyk, Rick Kazanowski 5, Larry Street 2; VICTORIA (73) — Bob Burrows 19, Ken Shields 12, Gord Hoshal 8, Jim Duddridge 8, Brent Mullin 4, Mike Gains 6, Mike Bishop 2, Chris Hall 2, Brian MacKenzie, Dave Mulcahy 12.

VEES MAKE IT FOUR

CALGARY (CP) — Laurentian University Vees became the Canadian collegiate women's basketball champions for the fourth time in a row by defeating the Winnipeg Wesmen 69-54 Saturday in a rematch of the 1977 final.

Vees were paced by Jan Trembly with 23 points whileDonna Posinick scored 12 for Winnipeg.

Laurentian took control of the game with a 20-2 burst in the last eight minutes of the first half.

Bishop's University Gaiterettes of Lennoxville, Que., captured the consolation title with a 71-65 decision over University of New Brunswick Red Bloomers of Fredericton, N.B.

Debbie Huband, who hit on 12 of 17 shots from the field, pulled down 10 rebounds and scored 29 points to lead Bishop's in the consolation final, was named tournament's most-valuable player in a ballot conducted by coachesand team captains.

Named to the all-star team were Chris Critelli and Trembly, both of Laurentian; Cathy Dubesky and Gail Winston, both of Winnipeg, and Carol Turney of Victoria Vikettes.

Retiring Victoria coach Mike Gallo was named coach-of-the-year for 1978.

Shocker In Soccer: Victoria West Falls

The Vancouver Island Soccer League was still reverberating today from one of the most stunning upsets ever recorded locally.

Castaways, a second division club, shocked highly-favored Victoria West 1-0 in third-round Jackson Cup play Sunday.

"A whole season goes down the drain," said a visibly-upset Doug Hill, the Wests' coach.

It was an obvious reference to Vic West's elimination from consideration for the provincial and Canadian championships. Only the Jackson Cup finalists qualify as Vancouver Island's representatives in the Province Cup competition.

Wests, Canadian senior champions in 1976, bowed in overtime to Vancouver Columbus in last year's provincial final. The mainland team went on to succeed Wests as national champions.

Wests clearly were aiming at a return to the B.C. final. Beaten only twice in league play (by University of Victoria Vikings and Duncan Powel's), Wests lead the toughPremier Division by six points. The team also won the McGavin Cup, a knockout competition organized to raise funds for the league's injured players' fund, earlier this year.

But past records and respect didn't mean a thing to Castaways, formed only two years ago by a group of players who entered the league "for fun."

A penalty goal by Steve Vigor at the 20-minute mark accounted for the game's only goal. But Vigor had to share the limelight with goalkeeper Cal Young, who was oustanding in blanking the Wests. Young rose to greatest heights five minutes before Vigor's goal when he stopped Garnet Moen on a penalty kick.

Castaways' victory overshadowed another near upset. Nanaimo United, another second division team, threw a big scare into the Vikings Saturday before bowing to penalty kicks.

Tied 1-1 after regulation time, Vikings outscored Nanaimo 4-2 in the kicking shootout.

Joining Vikings and Castaways into the advance to the quarter-finals were Victoria Athletics, Cosmopolitan Royals, fourth-division Port Alberni, Duncan Powel's, Powell River and Gorge Molsons.

TOWNSEND TOP PLAYER

Mark Townsend, a quarterback for the B.C. Big Four Junior Football League's Victoria Dolphins, was named the outstanding player during awards presentations as the B.C. Lions development camp concluded Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

Other trophy winners were Brian Scotney, Greg Mohr, Glen Pettinger and Ken Munroe, all from Saanich Hornets of the Vancouver Island Juvenile League.

The trophy winners and another 17 other players were selected to attend a week-long Lions camp in Vancouver over the Easter school break.

Others picked for the camp were Bernie Kidd, Russ Hafer, Gord Campbell, Murray Clark, Eric Iverson, Derrick Ash, James Bateman, Greg Mitchell, Tod Peterson, Tom Graham, Tom Neilson, Greg Frame, Steve Bristow, Dave Purves, Bob McKeachie, Ken Kirzinger, Joe Kadar and Rob Lefevre.

The camp, co-ordinated by Roy Vollinger, was conducted by Vic Rapp, head coch of the Lions who earned coach-of-the-year honors last season in the Canadian Football League.

Double Takeout Rescues Sparkes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Skip Bernie Sparkes and his British Columbia rink snapped Newfoundland's two-year hex against western opponents in the Canadian men's curling championship Sunday.

However, the Newfoundland foursome, skipped by Bob Rowe of Goose Bay, put up a struggle against the Vancouver rink before Sparkes made a clutch double takeout with his last stone on the 11th end to win 8-7.

It was the first time a western rink has defeated Newfoundland since the 1975 round-robin tournament. Newfoundland, which won the 1976 Canadian title with Jack MacDuff of St. John's, had an 8-0 record against western opposition before Sparkes took over.

"It was a nerve-wracking game," said Sparkes, making his ninth national men's appearance and seeking his fourth Canadian title. "They (Newfoundland) will beat a lot of rinks before this is over."

Sparkes, who won three national crowns as a member of Ron Northcott's rink from Calgary, said he didn't think he was that sharp, but "he (Rowe) was."

Alberta, skipped by third Mike Chernoff of Medicine Hat, won its opening-round game with a 9-3 decision over Doug Harrison of Winnipeg. Saskatchewan's Rick Folk of Saskatoon had a tough game but defeated Peter Murray of Charlottetown 6-4, while Howie Brazeau of Fort Smith, representing the Territories, beat defending champion Quebec, headed by Steve Ducat of Montreal, 7-2.

In other games, Nova Scotia's Alan Darragh of Dartmouth stole a total of five points to defeat Peter Murray of Saint John 8-4 and Northern Ontario's Barry Mutrie of Kapuskasing got a three-ender on the first end to help him beat Ontario's Gerry Hodgson of London 9-6.

Jim Ursel of Montreal won the 1977 championship but he was eliminated this year in provincial playoffs.

The 12 rinks will compete in two draws today in the 15,570-seat Pacific Coliseum with B.C. and Alberta meeting in a key match in the afternoon.

"My miss on the 10th was a bad one," said the 36-year-old Sparkes, blaming that miscue which allowed Newfoundland to tie the score 7-7 with two points when Rowe made a cold draw to the four foot.

"I was inside and we couldn't hold it with the sweeping . . . The ice was pretty straight. I even took the wrong ice on my first shot in the extra end."

It appeared that mistake was going to set up Rowe for an upset victory but Sparkes made up for it with his double takeout, while staying in the house for the winning point before a paid attendance of 6,465.

PLAYLAND CURLERS ENTER GUINNESS BOOK

Eight young Victoria curlers have earned a spot in the Guinness World Book of Records.

Members of the Playland Curling Club, the eight have laid claim to the longest curling game ever played. Starting at 8 a.m. Friday, they finished their game just before 8 p.m. Sunday for an official accumulated time of 61 hours, 20 minutes.

The previous record was 60 hours, set at the Glendale Club in Hamilton, Ont., April 2-4, 1976.

The eight — Bob Mabee, Jeff Oulton, Cole Kirby, Ernie Hawkins, Gord Macauley, Bill Foster, Tony Anslow and Rocky Brooks — played 344 ends.

Regulations allow a five-minute break after each hour and the curlers accumulated time for one brief rest early Sunday.

Sharing in the unique achievement was the G.R. Pearkes Clinic for Crippled Children. The clinic will receive about $3,000, the result of pledges taken by the curlers for their non-stop performance.

Win Over Canucks A Chance to Brag?

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins coach Don Cherry, scheduled as color commentator for tonight's televised National Hockey League matchup between Buffalo Sabres and Montreal Canadiens, picked up some ammunition Sunday night.

The Bruins beat Vancouver Canucks 6-3 to move into sole possession of the Adams Division lead ahead of the Sabres.

"I'm happy we won tonight so I can go on TV tomorrow night in first place and I can brag," said Cherry.

"I'll never be asked back."

In other NHL action Sunday, Toronto Maple Leafs beat New York Rangers 4-1, Philadelphia Flyers whipped St. Louis Blues 7-1, Detroit Red Wings edged Minnesota North Stars 4-3, Pittsburgh Penguins tied New York Islanders 3-3 and Chicago Black Hawks tied 2-2 with Colorado Rockies. (Summaries, standings on page 20).

The Bruins started a successful weekend by belting the Sabres 7-3.

The pair of weekend victories moved the Bruins two points ahead of the Sabres in the Adams Division race.

Sunday's game got off to a rousing start, with early first-period scores by Vancouver's Dennis Ververgaert and Rick Blight and a flurry of goals by the Bruins, who picked up five straight in seven minutes and 48 seconds.

Stan Jonathan started the scoring spree with a goal at 6:00, followed by a power-play goal by Peter McNab and a pair by John Wensink before Rick Middleton wound it up at 13:48.

Canucks coach Orland Kurtenbach said his players "fell apart" for the period, and just couldn't get back in the game.

At New York, Leafs captain Darryl Sittler set up two goals to run his string to 17 consecutive games with at least one point a game.

"I don't really keep track of that stuff," Sittler said after setting up second-period goals by Lanny McDonald and Ian Turnbull and helping the Leafs defeat the Rangers.

"I just try to go out and play the best I can. If the team wins and I don't get any points, that's fine."

Breakers, Bruins Gain In Hot Playoff Struggle

Seattle Breakers have used up their once-ample supply of games in hand over the Victoria Cougars, New Westminster Bruins have three to go.

Only four points separate the three teams, and it is quite obvious the Western Canada Hockey League entries are going to determine the final two playoff berths in the Western Division in the final stretch.

The Breakers managed only one point, Saturday's 5-5 tie with Portland Winter Hawks, and pulled two points ahead of the idle Cougars. A 2-2 draw in Calgary Sunday enabled the fourth-place Bruins to edge to within two points of Victoria.

Home ice didn't help Seattle on Sunday. Portland exploded for all of its goals in the first period and held on to edge the Breakers 5-4.

The torrid scramble for playoff spots continues Tuesday when the Cougars will be at home to Portland while the touring Bruins play in Billings.

The Bruins also scored all their goals in the opening period at Calgary and the Wranglers came back in the their period to salvage the draw.

In other games Sunday, Bill Derlago's three goals powered Brandon Wheat Kings to a 6-1 victory over Billings, Saskatoon out-lasted Regina 9-7 and Lethbridge tripped Medicine Hat 4-2.

Peterson Snatches Victory

JOHANNESBURG, (Reuter) — Hard-luck stories abound in the fiercely-competitive world of Grand Prix auto racing, but there can be few to match the poignancy of Patrick Depailler's tale of woe in the South African Grand Prix on Saturday.

The 33-year-old Frenchman, a veteran of 66 Grand Prix races, looked set to win his first championship race when he took the lead 15 laps from home and held it until a few hundred metres from the checker flag.

But that jinx stayed with the unfortunate Depailler. His Tyrrell had begun to misfire when the oil pump hosing cracked and Ronnie Peterson surged past on the final S-bend to snatch a last-gasp victory.

But there was some consolation for the Frenchman. The points he gained for second place moved him up to joint third position in the battle for the drivers' championship.

Depailler's problems followed a series of hard-luck stories by fancied drivers.

South African Jody Scheckter, who led early on, was another victim of engine trouble when his Wolf stalled and spun.

And the lone Canadian, Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que., had to retire on lap 54 with a blown engine.

UVIC JAYVEES WIN PROVINCIAL TITLE

University of Victoria Jayvees, coached by Karen Bigelow, brushed aside UBC Jayvees in straight games at the weekend to capture the British Columbia junior women's basketball championship.

Winners of Friday's opener by 19 points, UVic wrapped up the best-of-three final with a 39-31 victory Saturday in the McKinnon gymnasium at UVic.

Susan Shaw (12 points), Janie Boe (10) and Cathy Raymond (9) sparked UVic in the deciding game.

There are no national playoffs for junior women.

"How come I never hear you say 'please' and 'thank-you'."

Timely Tallies

CHEMAINUS — Bruce Tuck came up with two timely goals Sunday to give Saanich Braves a 5-4 overtime decision over Fuller Lake Flyers and a stranglehold on the best-of-seven Patterson Division playoff final in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

Tuck capped a comeback effort for Braves at Fuller Lake Arena by scoring the tying goal at 18:35 of the third period, then slapped in the winner from a faceoff circle inside Flyer territory during the sudden-death half of the overtime period, at 15:42.

Other goals for Braves, now leading the series 3-0, were scored by John Brown, Ed Beauchemin and Scott Connors.

Tim Hollett scored twice to lead the Flyers, who held period leads of 1-0 and 4-2.

The fourth game of the series is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Pearkes Arena.

Juan de Fuca King John's Gulls, who lead the Peart Division playoff series 2-0, will continue the struggle against Lake Cowichan tonight at 8 in Juan de Fuca Arena.

Leads Boosted

Esquimalt Maple Leafs and Chemainus Blues took 2-0 leads in their best-of-five South Island Big Six Hockey League playoff semi-final series on Saturday.

The league-champion Leafs trampled Western Homes Buckaroos 9-3 at Memorial Arena and Blues downed Victoria Athletics 5-1 at Lake Cowichan Arena.

Dale McLaughlin and Bob Martin led the Leaf attack with two goals each.

Rod Hunter and Rick Boyd also notched two tallies apiece as they set the scoring pace for the Blues.

The third games of each series are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Tuesday at Esquimalt Sports Centre (Leafs-Bucks) and 8:25 p.m. Thursday at Pearkes Arena (Blues-Athletics).

Bays, Island Champs Eye Another Rematch

Special to the Times

NANAIMO — Nanaimo Islanders packed away their first Vancouver Island high school boys' basketball championship at the weekend and set their sights on bigger things.

The north Island champions downed defending-champion Oak Bay Bays 77-70 before a capacity crowd of 2,000 Saturday night at Malaspina College gymnasium and maintained their role as favorites for the provincial championships March 16-19 at Vancouver.

Nanaimo is ranked No. 1 in British Columbia; the Bays, who are the reigning provincial champions, are No. 2; and Cowichan Thunderbirds, third-place finishers in the Island tourney with a 70-63 decision over Campbell River Tyees, are No. 3.

All three teams are going to the provincial playoff.

Both Nanaimo coach John Levering and Oak Bay coach Don Horwood expect to meet in the final of the 16-team B.C. tournament.

"We only want to beat them once this year," said Horwood following his club's loss to the Islanders.

Nanaimo, who earlier in the season beat Bays in the final of the Islander invitational and Oakleaf classic tourneys, completely dominated the floor for three quarters of Saturday's final.

The Islanders outplayed the Bays in every area, dominating the boards, applying greater pressure on defence and holding a wide edge in shooting percentage. It appeared that Nanaimo was bringing the great Oak Bay dynasty to its knees but the Bays regained respect with a tremendous fourth-quarter rally.

Gerald Kazanowski scored 11 of his 13 points in the first quarter as Nanaimo pulled away to a 17-14 lead and brother Greg, who received the Victoria Times Trophy as the outstanding player of the tournament, scored 10 of his 20 points in the second quarter as the Islanders built a 41-24 halftime lead.

Levering wasn't surprised that his team built a big lead and he wasn't surprised that Oak Bay fought back by relying on half-trap plays.

"They're a good team and that school has a 15-year history of winning basketball," said the Nanaimo coach.

"We've played the half-trap before and the players know how to beat it, but they didn't tonight," said Levering. "We'll have to do some work on it before the B.C. tournament."

Aside from the victory, Levering was pleased with the over-all success of the Island tournament, the first held in Nanaimo since 1963 and the first in the North Island since 1966.

Greg, who scored 69 points in three games, and Gerald Kazanowski were selected to the all-star team along with Ken Kirzinger and Wayne Andrews of the Bays and Jay Fiddick of Cowichan. Runners-up in the all-star voting were John Kazanowski and Nanaimo teammate Paul Davis, Kelly Dukeshire of Oak Bay, Dan Beaumont of Cowichan and Jamie Boulding of Campbell River.

All of the all-stars and runners-up received awards donated by the Times.

Fiddick and Beaumont led Thunderbirds to their first provincial playoff berth since 1968.

Fiddick, a six-foot-two guard, scored 33 points against Campbell River after the Thunderbirds reached the consolation final by eliminating Parkland Panthers 76-63 when Fiddick scored 37 to set a single-game scoring record.

He broke the record of 35 points set by six-foot-eight Esquimalt centre Bill Dobbie in 1953 and finished with an over-all total of 120 points for the tournament, smashing another mark of 85 set by Nanaimo's Buzz Jacklin in 1952.

Campbell River had gained a shot at third place by ousting Mt. Douglas Rams, 71-54.

Pearson Wins Carolina 500

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — David Pearson came back from a spin-out 40 miles from the finish to take a 1.3-second victory Sunday in the $145,000 Carolina 500 Grand National stock car race, the 100th triumph of his career.

Donnie Allison, in relief of his brother Bobby, edged Benny Parsons by a car length for second.

Richard Petty salvaged fourth place, after falling two laps behind with handling problems. Lennie Pond was right behind Petty in fifth.

The four hour, 17-minute race was slowed by caution periods eight times for a total of 62 laps.

Esquimalt Skater Hurt

ABBOTSFORD — An Esquimalt skater was seriously injured and several others suffered minor injuries at the British Columbia indoor speedskating championships held here during the weekend.

Rod Phillips of the Esquimalt Speedskating Club suffered a possible crushed disc in his spinal column when he crashed into the padded boards of the arena during the junior men's 1,100-metre final Sunday. He was taken to Vancouver General Hospital for treatment.

An official of the Esquimalt team said later however that the injury may not be as serious as originally diagnosed. He said that the doctors, while not ruling out the possibility of disc damage, feel the problem might be torn muscles and severe bruises.

Phillips was to undergo examination by a specialist today.

Bobby Dyer of Fort St. John also was taken to hospital after a fall, but was released in time to skate his last race of the meet.

The skaters raced on a new 110-metre oval track, instead of the 100-metre safety track, to conform with international standards.

David Shields of Esquimalt, winner of the Canadian outdoor junior Olympic men's title earlier this season, set four B.C. records in winning the over-all senior men's title.

He skated the 440 metres in 47 seconds compared to the old record of 47.5, the 1,650 in 3:15.9 compared to 3:27.6, the 880 in 1:42.9 compared to 1:43.8, the 3,300 in 7:09.5 compared to 7:34.2, winning all those events.

He finished third in the 1,100 metres, but his time was 2:09.8, less than the old record of 2:23.5, Bill Overend of Mission won that event in 2:01.6.

Wilson Louie of Esquimalt won four events in the juvenile division, setting records in all of them.

Winners in the women's categories were: Debbie Diediker of Burnaby, senior; Dawn McMahon of Calgary, intermediate; Sandi Vyse of Dawson Creek, junior; Brenda Shields of Esquimalt, juvenile; Patty Johnson of Fort St. John, midget; Debbie Johnson of Fort St. John, bantam; Eden Donatelli of Mission, peewee.

Other men's winners were: Lido Guido Vanduyen of Burnaby, intermediate; Stuart Black of Mission, midget; Martin Betts of Mission, bantam; Geoff Desmoulin of Mission, peewee.

Brenda Shields also matched the four-record performances of her brother and Louie on ger way to winning the juvenile girls' championship to give Esquimalt a total of 12 records.

Marla Parsons and Jim Chamberlain swept the "B" juvenile titles for Esquimalt while clubmate Greg Klassen won the junior boys' event.

Medal-winners included Brenda Dietiker, Keith Robinson, Gary Elander, Marli-Jo Coutts and Reggie Parsons.

SCHETTERER TAKES TITLE

PORT COQUITLAM — Rolf Schetterer of Spectrum, winner in the heavyweight division, was the lone Vancouver Island contestant to earn a title Saturday at the British Columbia schoolboy wrestling championships.

Chris Rinke of Port Coquitlam, champion in the 168-pound class, was voted outstanding wrestler of the meet, in which Brittania of Vancouver captured team honors with five victories and three second-place finishes.

Templeton of Vancouver was second, followed by New Westminster.

KIWIS DISMISSED FOR 315

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuter) — England's Ian Botham turned in a five-wicket bowling spell Sunday to help dismiss New Zealand for 315 on the second day of the third cricket test.

At close of play, England was 30 for no wicket in reply after openers Geoff Boycott and Derek Randall easily survived 40 minutes from the New Zealand pace attack.

Botham's figures of five for 109 in 34 overs played a major part in containing the New Zealand batsmen.

Third Welsh Triple

LONDON (Reuter) — Wales became the first country to win the triple crown for three consecutive seasons and Scotland suffered its first whitewash in 10 years after another round of the Five-Nations Rugby Union championship Saturday.

In Dublin, Wales clinched another triple crown — victory over the three other British Isles teams in the tournament — with a hard-fought 20-16 victory over Ireland, while England achieved a predictable 15-0 win against luckless Scotland in Edinburgh.

Centre Steve Fenwick scored all but four of the Welsh points through four penalty goals and a try.

England, with two, scored is first tries in a year while crushing Scotland.

James Bay Romps Into Top-Berth Tie

James Bay Athletic Association created a three-way tie for first place in the first division of the Vancouver Island Rugby Union by bouncing Cowichan 23-3 Sunday at Macdonald Park.

Barry Robbins set the scoring pace for James Bay, which moved even with both Cowichan and Oak Bay Wanderers, as he collected a try, a penalty goal and a conversion.

In first division matches Saturday, Wanderers topped Saanich Velox 24-13 at Windsor Park and University of Victoria Vikings blasted Castaways 23-4 at Carnarvon Park.

Standings, scoring and results in weekend matches:

KICKER EXPECTS PACT WITH RAMS

TORONTO (CP) — Zenon Andrusyshyn, former Toronto Argonauts kicker, says he expects to sign a three or four-year contract with Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

The seven-year Canadian Football League veteran, who generally handled all the kicking chores for the Argos, is scheduled to visit Los Angeles with his agent this week to put on a kicking display for Rams coach George Allen.

Andrusyshyn, 31, bought the option year of his Argos coltract a few months ago in order to escape the CFL.

PHILIP DELESALLE

Delesalle Dominates

MONTREAL (CP) — Philip Delesalle of Victoria furthered his reputation as Canada's top gymnast during the weekend as he dominated the national gymnastics trials.

Delesalle posted a score of 111.15 in the men's senior category, including compulsory and optional exercises. Jean Choquette of Montreal was runner-up with 109.50.

Elfie Schlegel of Toronto paced the women's open class with a compulsory and optional total of 70.65 points.

This meet, combined with results of the Canadian championships in Ottawa at the end of May, will form the basis of selection of Canada's team for the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton in August and the world championships at Strasbourg, France, in October.

Skaters Bicker

HELSINKI (CP) — Canada's speedskating team returns home today after a poor showing in both the men's and women's world championships and amid reports of team dissension.

Sylvia Burka of Winnipeg, a former world champion, was the only Canadian to win a medal with a bronze in the 1,000-metre race. She was sixth over all.

Kathy Vogt of Winnipeg turned in the next best effort and 16th in the final over-all placings.

Last week in Sweden, Canada's best was a 21st and because of its poor showing at the two competitions, Canada will be allowed to send only one man and three women to next year's world championship. This year, the Canadians had two men and four women.

All of the team members admitted there was friction with coach Paul Enock of Vancouver and Enock, once a competitive skater, admitted he was fed up with the bickering.

"Frankly, I'm sick and tired about hearing about Canada's problems which I have been listening to since I was competing in the sixties.

"The day Canadian skaters learn to skate and not coach, the Canadian team will function as a unit like the Europeans. As long as we have skaters who are critical of whoever is coaching, we will have problems."

Enock skated around the issue of possible problems with Burka, saying in one breath that there was friction between him and the skater and in the other that he wished some skaters would skate and try not to coach.

Burka plans to write a report to the speedskating association when she gets back, as will Enock.

"We can't say it's all the coach's fault," said Burka. "We have to share the blame 50-50. A lot of things have happened in Europe, but the way to correct them is through the association.

"I have a lot of respect for our technical director, Jack Walters, and the people in Sports Canada. You can't have crap like his floating around in the press so that they can write anything they want. It's not fair to the people at home."

Riders Sign Two

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League have announced the signing of veteran import safety Ted Provost and rookie Canadian safety Gary Gaska to 1978 contracts.

BLAND, SMYTHE WIN

EDMONTON (CP) — British Columbia players earned nine spots Sunday in the national junior indoor tennis championships scheduled April 21 in Toronto.

Peter Smythe of Victoria and John Gillis, Mike Kerr, Arthur Juang and Arnold Kettenacker of Vancouver were named to the boys' team along with Paul Donoghue and Steve Kirk of Edmonton and Dan Mida of Winnipeg. Selected to the women's team for the east-west competition were Susanne Mathews, Ruth Kilgour and Karen Kettenacker of Vancouver, Jennifer Bland of Victoria and Mary Potter and Sherry Law of Edmonton.

Smythe defeated O'Donoghue 1-6, 6-3, 6-4 in the under-18 men's singles while Bland downed Mathews 6-3, 6-3 in the women's division.

Metcalf Signed By Argos

TORONTO (CP) — Running back Terry Metcalf, unloved by the fans of St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League, has signed a multi-year contract with Toronto Argonauts, the Canadian Football League club announced today.

Terms of the agreement were not disclosed, but one report said Metcalf, 26, has a seven-year deal and if he can collect on all the bonuses in the contract, he will earn more than $250,000 a season.

An Argo official refused to discuss details of the contract other than to say it was "a contract for life; it should be good for 10 or 11 years."

Metcalf played out his option with the Cardinals last season, his fifth with the club after graduating from California State University at Long Beach.

"Terry Metcalf is an exceptionally exciting football player," said Dick Shatto, Toronto's general manager. "I know he will impress Argo fans.

"He's a leader who gives you 150 per cent everytime he's on the playing field.

"Metcalf can do it all. He can run the football. He can catch it. Metcalf capably handles both kickoff and punt returns."

Duncan Captures Island Hoop Title

COURTENAY — The point spread had to resolve the difference as Duncan captured the Vancouver Island senior "B" women's basketball championship here at the weekend.

Beaten 65-59 by Courtenay in the final game of the three-team, double-round robin, Duncan finished with a 3-1, won-lost record. So did Courtenay, which dropped a 66-59 verdict to Duncan in the opening game Saturday.

The point spread between the two teams broke the deadlock. Duncan now advances to the provincial final at Salmon Arm March 17-19.

Weekend scores:

Courtenay 59, Duncan 66; Courtenay 62, Victoria Alley Cats 42; Duncan 66, Alley Cats 49; Courtenay 44, Alley Cats 39; Duncan 81, Alley Cats 46; Courtenay 65, Duncan 59.

Slump Time For Jets

By The Canadian Press

The standings have suddenly become useless as a form chart in the World Hockey Association.

Winnipeg Jets, the league leaders who had a record 15-game winning streak going until last week, suffered their fourth straight loss Sunday night, 4-3 to Houston Aeros.

And last-place Indianapolis Racers are suddenly on a five-game winning string, including an 8-6 decision over the Jets on Saturday and a 4-2 win over Cincinnati Stingers on Sunday.

In other Sunday games, Quebec Nordiques edged New England Whalers 2-1 and Edmonton Oilers beat Birmingham Bulls 4-3.

The Whalers, leaders through most of the season until the Jets overtook them during the 15-game win streak, also are on another tailspin, losing their last four in a row.

Larry Lund scored his eighth goal of the season at 12:12 of the third period to break a 3-3 tie and give Houston the win at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg left winger Bobby Hull, seeking the 1,000th goal of his pro career, was held scoreless through the weekend although he did pick up an assist in Saturday's game at Indianapolis.

Hull's next chance comes Thursday when Winnipeg plays host to Indianapolis.

The Racers continued their winning streak with Rich Leduc scoring twice—his 30th and 31st goals of the season. Indianapolis went ahead 4-0 before the Stingers got back with two goals in the last seven minutes.

LANSDOWNE DEFENDS ISLAND TITLE

Lansdowne Flyers successfully defended the Vancouver Island junior high school girls' basketball championship Saturday by defeating A.W. Neil of Port Alberni 60-45.

Diana Thornton fired 21 points while Sue Dornik and Marina Scott both added 14 to spark Lansdowne in the tournament final at Dunsmuir. Jennifer Conn of Alberni emerged as the game's high scorer with 23.

Quamichan of Duncan defeated Ucluelet 40-35 to take fifth place while Harbour View was fouth following a 34-31 win over Southgate of Nanaimo.

The victory boosted Lansdowne's won-lost record this season to 28-1 and 54-1 over the past two years.

New Star On Rise

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — Perrine Pelen, a 16-year-old French skier in only her second World Cup season, won the final slalom of the year Sunday, edging team-mate Fabienne Serrat.

Pelen, the daughter of an electrical engineer from Grenoble, captured her third slalom of the season—equalling last year's performance—in one minute, 37.07 seconds. She had runs of 47.36 and 49.71 seconds.

The victory moved Pelen into a tie for fifth place in the combined World Cup standings with Maria Epple of West Germany, but she remained second in the slalom standings behind Hanni Wenzel of Liechtenstein. Wenzel already had clinched the slalom title and is virtually assured of the combined.

Serrat, who has not won a World Cup race since 1976, was second in 1:37.12. The 21-year-old French woman, often called the most glamorous skier on the tour, had runs of 47.38 and 49.74 over the 482-metre course which had a vertical drop of 144 metres.

Third went to Wenzel, 23, who was born in West Germany but now skies for the tiny principality of Liechtenstein, in 1:37.91. Lea Soelkner of Austria, who won the slalom at last month's world alpine championships, took fourth in 1:38.57.

Epple, who won the giant slalom at the world championships, and Cindy Nelson, a 21-year-old from Lutsen, Minn., were tied for fifth in 1:39.08.

On Saturday, Steve Mahre, skiing for the last two years in the shadow of twin brother Phil, burst from obscurity to win his first World Cup race ever, the final men's slalom event on the circuit.

The 20-year-old Steve completed a two-day sweep of this stop on the World Cup circuit by the twins from White Pass, Wash. Phil, the second-ranked skier in the world, won the giant slalom Friday.

Peter Monod of Banff, Alta., finished 25th in 1:57.32 in Saturday's race while Raymond Pratte of Noranda, Que., was 30th in 1:58.20.

'COMPLETE' BIRD ON DREAM TEAM

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Bird, a six-foot-nine forward recognized as one of the most complete players in U.S. college basketball, has been named to the Associated Press all-star team.

Bird, who has a 51-per-cent field goal average and has averaged 30 points and 12 rebounds a game for Indiana State, is joined on the first team by UCLA forward David Greenwood, Minnesota centre Mychal Thompson and guards Phil Ford of North Carolina and Butch Lee of Marquette.

EASY VICTORY was chalked up Sunday by American Debbie Austin (above) in Australian women's golf championship at Sydney. Austin followed two earlier tallies of 70 with one-under-par 73 in final round to win tournament by 10 strokes with 213 total for 54 holes. American Donna Caponi Young was second at 223, one shot ahead of Japan's Chako Higuchi.

Harvey Plans Comeback Bid

HAMILTON (CP) — Running back John Harvey is preparing himself for a comeback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League.

Harvey played one game for the Ticats last season before retiring because of mental and physical fatigue.

Lessons Provide Lots of Goodies

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Mac McLendon, grimly concentrating on putting lessons that turned his game around, held off all challengers with rounds of 69 and 68 and scored his third tour victory Sunday in the double-round windup of the $200,000 Florida Citrus Open golf tournament.

McLendon, who skipped last week's Inverrary Classic to take some putting instructions from his teacher, won by two strokes with a 271 total, 17 shots under par on the rain-soaked, 6,929-yard Rio Pinar Golf Club course.

As usual, the 33-year-old McLendon gave full credit to Jimmy Ballard of Pell City, Ala., who saved his playing life.

He was considering quitting the tour before Ballard's instructions helped him score his first official tour triumph with Hubert Green in the 1974 U.S. team championship. He won again in the Southern Open—with full marks to Ballard—and his victory here, he said, was a direct result of his putting lessons last week.

"My putting had just been awful this year," he said. "I worked with Ballard for a week and the first two rounds this week were the best putting rounds I've ever had."

That staked him to a share of the lead going into Sunday's 36-hole finish. He quickly took the lead alone when David Graham ran into difficulties then held off a flock of challenges in the more than nine hours he spent on the course. The 36-hole finish was necessitated when a thunderstorm washed out Friday's play.

The victory was worth much more than the $40,000 McLendon collected from the total purse of $200,000. It also put him in the Masters, the Tournament of Champions, and put him in position to gain a spot in the World Series of Golf.

Two Canadians in the tournament both missed Saturday's cut for the final two rounds. Dave Barr of Kelowna shot a 73 Saturday for a 145 total and Jim Nelford of Burnaby was another shot back after a second-round 74.

Debbie, Sandra Beaten in Final

REGINA (CP) — Joanne Falardeau of Quebec City and Carolyne Harris of Montreal were triple winners Sunday at the Canadian junior and juvenile badminton championships.

Falardeau defeated Sharon Crawford of Calgary 12-,12-11, to win the women's singles title in the junior (under 19) division.

Falardeau teamed with Linda Cloutier of Quebec city to win the women's doubles. They defeated Sandra Skillings of Vancouver and Debbie Smith of Victoria 15-7, 15-5.

In the mixed doubles, Falardeau and Kevin McQuaid of Toronto beat Susan Hill of Sydenham, Ont., and Stevey McCoy of Hamilton 17-16, 15-6.

Harris earned her three titles in the juvenile (under 16) division. She won the women's singles title by downing Carla Thomas of Calgary 12-11, 9-12, 11-4, shared the women's doubles crown with Claire Allison of Montreal and teamed with David Wowchuk of Toronto to win the mixed doubles final.

In men's singles finals, Jeff Goldsworthy of Kitchener won the junior title and Chris Harrs of Toronto took the juvenile championship.

AND ZONING BY-LAW, 1957, AMENDMENT BY-LAWS (NOS. 121 AND 122), 1978.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a Public Hearing will be held in the Council Chamber, Esquimalt Municipal Hall, 1229 Esquimalt Road, on MONDAY, 13th MARCH, 1978 commencing at 7:00 P.M. for the purpose of affording all persons who deem their interest in property affected by that certain proposed By-law numbered 1592 and cited as "Pine Home Builders (1972) Ltd. Land Use Contract Authorization By-law, 1976, Amendment By-law (No. 2), 1978", an opportunity to be heard on the matters contained in the By-law, the By-law being one to amend the form of Land Use Contract authorized by By-law No. 1547 and cited as "Pine Home Builders (1972) Ltd. Land Use Contract Authorization By-law, 1976;, by extending the time provided for therein for the consolidation of the lands affected thereby and the registration of the said Land Use Contract, and further, by adding thereto certain provisions relating to the sharing of certain costs. The lands affected by the said proposed By-law are:

> Parcel "A" of Lot FIVE (5), Section TWO (2), Esquimalt District, Plan 4351.
> Lot FIVE (5) Except "A", Section TWO (2), Esquimalt District, Plan 4351.
> Lot SIX (6), Section TWO (2), Esquimalt District, Plan 4351.
> (900 block Admirals Road.)

A FURTHER NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that all persons who deem their interest in property affected by the following Zoning By-law, 1957, Amendment By-laws (Nos. 121 and 122), 1978, will be afforded an opportunity to be heard before the Municipal Council on the matters contained therein at the Public Hearing above to be held as aforesaid.

"Zoning By-law, 1957, Amendment By-law (No. 121), 1978". provides for the deletion of the definition "Balcony" under Part 1A of the said By-law and substituting the following:

> "Balcony 1A.5 Balcony shall mean a space having at least one side representing not less than 35% of its perimeter not enclosed other than by a balustrade or railing."

"Zoning By-law, 1957, Amendment By-law (No. 122), 1978". provides for the creation of a new zone to be known as "M-3 Heavy Industrial District", and contains detailed regulations concerning the use of land, construction of buildings and provision for parking applicable to that zone. The draft By-law further provides for the rezoning to the said "M-3 Heavy Industrial District" of certain parcels of land owned by Yarrows Limited and more particularly described as:

Tailoring of Genes Could Solve and Raise Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — "Very powerful, revolutionary and exciting" recombinant DNA techniques may be able to solve fundamental and interesting problems, says Canadian geneticist David Suzuki.

"It may also be the one area in molecular biology which offers a very real possibility of immediate pay-off to human society," the scientist and science commentator said in a speech at Carleton University's international science, literature and contemporary culture conference.

The Vancouver-born geneticist said the techniques, involving the altering and tailoring of genetic material, might be used to splice human genetic material into bacteria in order to produce things like a blood clotting factor which can be administered to hemophiliacs.

"If you could take the gene for blood-clotting from a normal person and stick it into a bacterium you could now get the bacterium to pump out gallons of blood-clotting factor at very low cost," Suzuki said. "And right now blood-clotting factor for transfusion into hemophiliacs is amazingly expensive."

The one-time president of the Canadian Society of Cell Biology said the same could be done with the genes that order production of insulin, used to treat diabetics, or growth hormones.

"There is an endless number of scenarios," he said.

He said the controversy over altering the deoxyribonucleic acid, containing the genetic codes for all living organisms, began about four or five years ago when scientists realized that some experiments involved transferring cancer-causing viruses into E. Coli, a bacteria found in the human intestinal tract.

"The question that arose was, if those bacteria escaped would there be a possibility that the bacteria spread and, say, 20 years later we would discover that people were breaking out in rectal cancer that came originally from this?"

Suzuki said this fear prompted the scientific community to call for a moratorium on certain kinds of research.

Suzuki, 41, a host on both radio and television for the CBC, said the press "played up the monstrous aspect" of such experiments.

However, he said the bacteria used have all kinds of built-in defects.

Cloning Claim Doubted

TORONTO (CP) — Two university biologists say they are sceptical about reports that a human being has been successfully duplicated in a laboratory in the United States.

"I'll guarantee you it wasn't done," Prof. Peter Moens of York University said in an interview.

Lou Siminovitch, of the University of Toronto biomedical section, said: "I suspect it is a hoax."

The report that a human being has been successfully cloned—a process of genetic duplication from a single cell—is contained in a forthcoming book by science writer David Rorvik entitled In His Image: The Cloning of a Man.

Rorvik says the experiment was paid for by a millionaire who wanted an exact duplicate of himself. The baby produced by cloning was born 14 months ago and is perfectly healthy, says Rorvik.

Prof. Moens said that to achieve success, the work of many people would have had to be put together.

"One person cannot do something like this alone," he said.

Prof. Moens added that while salamanders had been successfully cloned from eggs, there had been no success with cells from higher forms of life and certainly not with mammals.

Dr. Robert Salter, recently-retired president of Canada's Royal College of Physicians, said in an interview the report was "very unlikely."

Sask. Programs Just a Rehash

REGINA (CP) — As expected, the brief throne speech which opened the fifth session of the 18th Saskatchewan legislature today contained no surprises.

The 3½-page speech was essentially a rehash of previously-announced government programs mixed with some polite references to special events in the province this year.

Allan Blakeney's New Democratic Party government announced its legislative program in the throne speech last November. The government had to come up with another throne speech today because the session which began in November prorogued in mid-January instead of recessing untill the spring sitting.

The fall sittings were expected to last only about two weeks, but were prolonged by debate over the retroactive income tax applied to the oil industry. Because of the length of the sittings, the House prorogued instead of recessing, resulting in a new session starting today and the need for a throne speech to start it.

By proroguing in January, the 61 MLAs put themselves in a position to each receive an additional $3,270 in sessional indemnity.

The throne speech was read by C. Irwin McIntosh, the province's new lieutenant-governor, who was appointed following the sudden death of Lt.-Gov. George Porteous in February.

No debate is expected on the throne speech in accordance with an all-party agreement. The budget speech will be read Tuesday and a week's debate will follow on that.

The throne speech said the provincial government will continue to press for national measures to stimulate the economy. Saskatchewan will urge governments at all levels to "proceed with the recommendations of the Hall report (on grain handling and transportation); to launch major power projects; (and) to develop our petroleum resources."

McIntosh noted the death of Porteus, the anticipated visit of the Queen and Prince Philip in July and such events as Moose Jaw and Regina marking their 75th anniversaries as cities this year.

CPR Would Move If French 'Forced'

OTTAWA (CP) — Ian Sinclair, chairman of Canadian Pacific, says the company will move its head office from Montreal if the Parti Quebecois tried to force it to operate in French.

"The language of our head office is English, will continue to be English, and must be English," Sinclair said on the CTV program Question Period.

"We're a trans-national corporation and we could not operate our head office in French."

Sinclair said the railway company is having difficulties attracting the right kind of people and the flexibility it needs. But the problem has not become big enough for CP to take the "traumatic" step.

"If we can't operate effectively and efficiently there we'll leave, but we will try every way we can to stay."

CP Rail has already moved its financial operations to Toronto, because Toronto replaced Montreal as the country's financial centre, Sinclair said.

Montreal will never regain its position as Canada's financial centre, he said. "But they must be very very careful not to destroy what I call the head office industry in Quebec."

"It can be destroyed through stupidity, it can be destroyed through not giving a damn, it can be destroyed deliberately," he said.

Sinclair, also a member of the board of Sun Life, said the assurance company was faced with a different problem when it announced its intention to move its head office from Montreal.

"They are selling a piece of paper that says that if you die the kids will be looked after, if you're killed your wife will be paid.'"

Quebec Grits End Debates

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Ryan and Raymond Garneau wound up the last of nine debates in the Quebec Liberal leadership race Sunday, focussing on the constitution, the province's stagnating ecomony and the defects of the Parti Quebecois government.

Both men's speeches were preceded, followed and interrupted numerous times by a crowd of about 3,500 cheering, chanting Liberal supporters who crowded into the gymnasium of a downtown junior college.

Ryan concentrated on what he described as the repressive policies of the PQ government, in particular its "abusive" tendancy to stress "certain so-called collective rights while relegating individual liberties to a lower level of importance."

Garneau concentrated on the economy, saying he would work to promote increased private investment, greater dependence on free enterprise and a renewed respect for the value of hard work.

Both Ryan and Garneau pledged to solve the constitutional problem by throwing the PQ out of office and then negotiating amendments to the British North America Act with the rest of Canada.

Edge on PQ - Poll

MONTREAL (CP) — A poll commissioned by a French-language Montreal weekly says the Quebec Liberal party has a slight edge in popular support over the Parti Quebecois.

The survey, prepared in February by the Quebec Institute of Public Opinion and published by Dimanche-Matin, was based on the answers of 714 people—593 French-speaking and 121 English-speaking.

The poll showed that if an election had been held last month, 27.9 per cent of the respondents would have supported the Liberals, 26.8 per cent the Parti Quebecois, and 10.2 per cent the Union Nationale, while 30.3 per cent were undecided.

The remaining 4.8 per cent would have supported splinter parties.

MOTHERS MILK PROTECTS

BOSTON (AP) — Mother's milk appears to give some protection against congential hypothyroidism, a disease which in its extreme form is known as cretinism, doctors at Massachusetts General Hospital say.

"We have conducted studies which indicate that human breast milk contains sufficient thyroid hormone to lessen congenital hypothyroidism and possibly prevent impaired neurological development," Dr. Hans Bode, a pediatric endocrinologist, said Sunday.

However, Bode said there is no evidence mother's milk can prevent the disease.

Japan Investing In Oil Sands?

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government has agreed to take part in a Canadian oil sand development project with three Canadian companies, the Asahi Shimbun has reported.

The paper did not give any source for the report.

The Asahi said Japan and Petro Canada, a government-run oil firm, Imperial Oil, Exxon's Canadian subsidiary; and Canada City Service will develop a 5,000-square-mile area in Alberta which is estimated to have 160 billion barrels of oil reserves. The developers hope to recover about 30 per cent of the oil in the next 15 years, the paper said.

Japan will put up about $135 million in return for 25 per cent of the concession rights, the paper said.

Twins or Triplets? Help's at Hand

elizabeth forbes

There's a birthday party planned for this month that I believe you should know about.

It's been arranged to mark the fourth anniversary of the Victoria Parents of Twins and Triplets Association, a non-profit organization formed with the express purpose of giving mothers of multiple births an opportunity to discuss problems and ideas with other parents having the same concerns.

Or, as the founder, Edda Thompson, describes it, "to give a lot of support to mothers of twins or triplets and to help them to cope and adjust in the early days after birth."

Her interest in forming such a group reaches back six years, when she and her husband Chuck first learned they were to have twins, exactly one day before those twins arrived.

"I hadn't even done baby sitting in my teens and, as these were our first babies, I had no experience of caring even for one child," she says.

"There was not the equipment available then to let you know long enough ahead to adjust to the idea and there was little or no printed information on the care of twins or triplets and even less in the way of double buggies, baths or anything else in our stores."

As it happened her mother had a friend in the United States with twins, and she wrote there for advice.

Back came a flow of printed material on how to live with and to adjust to having multiples in a family.

Tucked in with that literature was information about twins and triplets organizations that were flourishing in the States.

Right away Mrs. Thompson made up her mind to try and form such a group in Victoria. And when her twins were 18 months old, she succeeded in doing it.

Twelve mothers turned out for the inaugural meeting, four years ago this month.

Shortly afterward Wendy Curry joined and it was learned that by an amazing coincidence, she had given birth to her twins on the same day as Mrs. Thompson, but exactly two years later.

Mrs. Curry is now president of the group and the membership has grown to 37 mothers, all with twins. None to date have triplets.

These mothers meet on the second Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. in Church of Christ, 3460 Shelbourne

They are affiliated with the North West Association thatincludes the northwestern States and British Columbia, also with the Multiple Birth Organization Around the World.

An active liaison is maintained with hospitals and doctors in order to reach, if possible, mothers faced with multiple births, before they happen.

The group has compiled a booket of helpful hints that goes to these mothers, before or after the births.

Visits are made to them in hospital and in follow-ups at home, if they wish.

Mrs. Curry adds that the group is gradually assembling a list of various services open to mothers of multiple births "who need more help and advice that we are equipped to give them."

She also explains "we are slowly gathering a collection of books and pamphlets on various aspects of multiple births and we have named a librarian to take care of this material, to catalogue it and to loan it out to the others."

Members also keep in touch with larger department stores in this area and through continuing efforts, Edda Thompson says, "a much enlarged stock of equipment is now on hand in some of these outlets."

Within the group itself, several sales of used clothing and baby equipment in good condition are held during the year.

Members have the first option of buying and after that the sales are opened to the public.

The association received 10 per cent of the monies for general expenses and to put out a regular newsletter and the helpful hints.

The rest of the money goes to donors of the various items.

Bake sales are held occasionally and a cook book has been compiled "of favorite recipes that are easy to make."

Turning again to the main purpose of the Victoria Twins and Triplets Association, both the founder and the current president say they often are told by those who have never had multiples in the family that there is no difference in bringing up twins and bringing up singles.

"That is completely wrong," they point out, "there is absolutely no comparison!"

Husbands have a big part to play, they tell you.

An understanding husband willing to help when two babies are crying to be fed at the same time, is a blessing.

Wendy Curry added that a husband can also be invaluable "in giving a single child in a family before twins arrive, the warmth and support that child needs when love and attention suddenly has to be shared."

Mrs.Curry was herself a single child until a twin brother and sister came along. The Currys also had a single child before their twins arrived.

Edda Thompson had her twins first, followed by a single child.

They concluded our talk with the emphatic statement that the rewards and joys of hvaing twins in a family far outweigh any concerns or problems.

Any parent or parent-to-be of multiples, or a guardian of multiples, is eligible to attend meetings and to join the Victoria Twins and Triplets Association. Just get in touch with Wendy Curry, phone 479-2487, or the membership chairman, Anne Traill, phone 479-5928.

Postscript — There are 24 Parents of Twins CLubs in Canada, five of them in British Columbia and the others in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec.

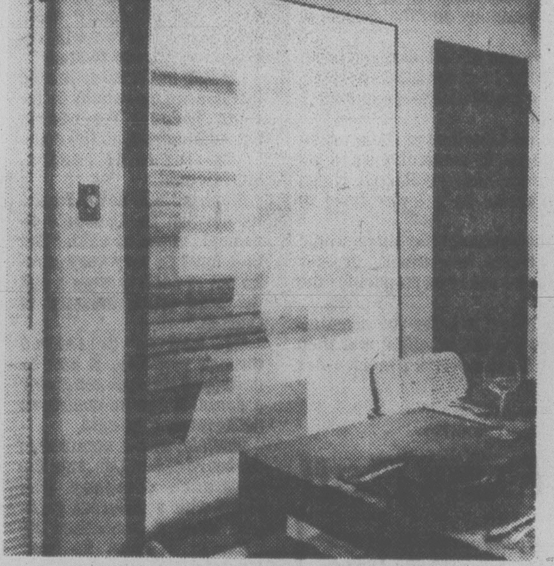
Size Relationships Vital in Furnishing

By PAULINE GRAVES

Scale, the size relationship of furnishings in a room to each other, and to the room itself, is a most important element when planning a house. One school of thought is that a small room requires small furnishings. Other designers prefer to use fewer but larger furniture pieces. As with anything involved in a home, it is a matter of personal taste.

In the dining room shown here, by Ellen Melinkoff, the owner opted for contemporary style, forsaking her previous traditional pieces, which included a large hutch. The hutch filled the wall space beautifully, so far as scale with the room, but neither style-wise nor scale-wise did it function with the contemporary table. Removal of the hutch left an empty wall and not enough space between wall and table for furniture. A large picture offered a successful alternative without blocking traffic.

Because pictures of the size needed are very expensive, the owner created her own, a copy of a small painting by Paul Klee, but with adaptations, particularly in color. With graph paper, a small design can be enlarged. Trace the basic pattern of the small design onto the graph paper. Enlarge the grid to the desired overall size and copy the design you want on the large grid, each line in the same relation to the grid as the smaller counter-parts. In other words, a circle in a ¼-inch square is smaller than one in a 1-inch square, but it has the same relationship to the whole design.



JUST A PAIR OF HOT DOGS

MINOT, N.D. (AP) — Firefighters say the two occupants of a house some eight miles north of Minot apparently caused the fire that destroyed their home when they chewed through the cord of an electrical heater.

Both dogs escaped injury.

Their owner, Mark Wilson, said he had put the heater in the doghouse for the animals' comfort.

What can you do with the sterling spoon damaged in the garbage disposal? If it's not badly damaged, silver plating-repair shop (look in the Yellow Pages) will repair it for considerably less than the cost of a new spoon. Or you can sell it. Scrap silver brings $3 an ounce in some areas, and a spoon can weigh anywhere from half an ounce to two ounces. Or, you can keep it for its silver from which someday you may want to have a piece of jewelry made.

If ever you want to write to a manufacturer and don't have the address, visit the business section of the public library and ask to see one of the directories of manufacturers. The library may also have a directory of toll-free numbers you can call about a product problem, where to buy a product or a replacement part for an old appliance, etc.

Changing a picture frame can make a picture more interesting. But try a new picture mat before you decide on a new frame. A darker, lighter or contrasting mat costs much less and can be just what the old picture needed. Also, if you have an old frame that's too large for a picture you want to hang, buy a mat to fit the frame and tape the picture onto the mat. The cost, again, is less than a new, smaller frame.

If you stew a chicken for only the meat, freeze the broth in an ice cube tray. Place the frozen cubes in a heavy plastic bag and use as many as needed to flavor future recipes. No, the cubes shouldn't stick together.

How cold is your cold-water wash? When the water's below 50 degrees F. the detergent may not dissolve and stick to the clothes. Test faucet water with a meat or candy thermometer. If it's below that, dissolve the detergent in warm water before adding to cold water in the washer. Or add some hot water — or use a liquid detergent.

HAND AROUND THE HOUSE

Do It Shingle-Handed

By A. J. HAND

Copyright 1978, Popular Science

Wind, rain, sleet, hail, snow and the hot summer sun . . . considering all the abuse your roof has to withstand, it's a wonder the shingles have a life of 15 to 30 years. But they do.

Still, now and then, a shingle here and there can't take the strain. It may dry out with age and crack when flexed by a gale force wind. Or a branch might fall on it, punching a hole or breaking off a tab.

When that happens, a quick repair is in order.

Two or three times a year, and after any heavy storm, take binoculars out in the yard and give your roof a careful scan. If you spot trouble, try to fix it the first warm day that comes along. A warm roof is more pliable than a cold roof.

Before you go up on the roof, slip on some rubber-soled shoes. If your roof is steep, rig a ladder as shown in the sketch, and hook it over the peak of the roof. This will provide a secure perch, and also spreadyour weight evenly over the roof, protecting the shingles.

Curled shingles are your easiest repair. You simply load a caulking gun with a cartridge of shingle cement. Squirt a bead of the sticky stuff under any lifted or curled tabs. Then press them down into the cement.

Cracks and tears are almost as easy. You can fix a cracked shingle with roofing cement. Trowel some under the crack if you can. But if the shingle is stuck down and brittle, forget about putting cement under it. In any case, do trowel a coat of cement over and into the crack using putty knife.

If the shingle is torn, you will be able to trowel cement under the tear. When that's done, nail along both edges of the tear with one-inch galvanized roofing nails. Then trowel a coat of roofing cement over the tear and the exposed nail heads.

If a shingle is badly damaged, it's best to replace it. Start by removing the damaged shingle. To do this, carefully raise the tabs of the shingles in the row directly above the damaged shingle. Slip a thin prybar under those raised tabs and pull any nails you see holding the damaged shingle in place.

Now try to pull the damaged shingle free. It may still be held in place by another row of nails (under the shingles two rows up the roof) but never mind. You should be able to pull the shingle free anyway; that second row of nails is very close to the edge of the shingle so it will tear free.

Save that shingle. If indeed you did have to tear it free you can use it as a pattern to cut notches in the edge of the replacement shingle. These notches will go where the second row of nails would pass through this shingle. They allow you to slip the new shingle into place around those nails.

That's your next step. Slip the new shingle into place. Raise the flaps of the shingles above the new shingle and nail it in place. Put one nail at each edge of the new shingle, and one about ¾ inch above each of the tab cutouts. Cement the tabs of the new shingle in place, and recement any tabs you raised on shingles above the repair shingle.

dear abby

Is Rabbi Wrong?

DEAR ABBY: CRAVING AFFECTION complained because her husband of 12 years would accommodate her sexual desires only three times a year. She consulted her rabbi, who told her that as long as her husband didn't mistreat her she has nothing to complain about.

Abby, I think that woman should find herself another rabbi. It is a fact one of the 613 mitzvahs (rules in the Jewish code of conduct) states that a husband has a moral obligation to satisfy his wife sexually once a week.

My information comes from the Yeshiva University of Los Angeles. Sign me . . . — "KNOWLEDGEABLE GOY"

DEAR GOY: According to the Bible (Exodus 21:10), a husband is responsible for his wife's food, clothing and "conjugal rights" — which includes sex.

A man cannot be "commanded" by Jewish law (or any other law) to "satisfy" his wife sexually. But he has an obligation to try.

DEAR ABBY: Eight years ago I had an affair with a co-worker, and like a fool, I told my husband everything. My life has been a living hell ever since.

I can't take the car without him checking the mileage. I can't use the phone without him adjusting the cord to see if it's been moved. Every time we have a disagreement, he brings up the affair and says I have to put up with anything he dishes out and I should consider myself lucky that he's still here.

We have one son, and my husband keeps telling me he will tell the boy all about me as soon as he's old enough to understand. (Abby, the boy wasn't even born at the time of my mistake!)

Every time we receive a wrong number, he swears I'm fooling around. This has been going on for over six years and I can't take any more of it, but what can I do? TOO HONEST

DEAR HONEST: Give your husband an ultimatum. Tell him that unless he goes with you to a clergyman, marriage counselor or a mental health clinic, you will take your child and leave!

Perhaps with therapy he can be made to realize how cruel and sick his thinking is.

The Bridge Expert

A few years ago, a new inmate at La Tuna Prison in West Texas arrived for the weekly duplicate game at that institution. He asked the director if it would be OK if he and his partner could use the "Super Precision" System of Bidding (a highly complex artificial system devised by Benito Garozzo, a member of the world championship Italian team). The director denied the request, pointing out that the other players were far from sophisticated, and that the employment of the system would give its users an unfair advantage over the rest of the field.

Opening lead: Four of ♣.

The inmate was indignant: "I don't see why we can't use it," he retorted. "They let us use it at Leavenworth."

A glimpse into the artificiality of the "Super Precision" System can be observed in today's deal. It was played in the 1974 World Championships, which was won by Italy. Sitting South was Benito Garozzo. North was Giorgio Belladonna.

Garozzo's opening one-club bid showed 16 or more high-card points, and was forcing. Belladonna's one-diamond response was negative, and announced 0-7 points.

South's rebid of one no-trump stated that he possessed 17-19 high-card points. North's two-heart rebid was what is known as a "transfer" bid, and commanded South to bid the next higher-ranking suit, spades (had North's six spades been six hearts, he would have bid two diamonds, commanding South to bid the next higher-ranking suit, hearts).

The play presented no problem. Dummy's ten of clubs was put up on the opening lead. East covered with the jack, and South won the trick with his queen. To trick two the queen of spades was led, and it was permitted to win the trick. Then came another spade, with a low one being played from dummy. East's jack took the trick.

When play had ended, declarer had made four trump tricks, one diamond and three clubs, to fulfill his contract.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, March 7
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You're not being given complete story—decision has been reached and someone apparently wants you to be the last to know. You can earn respect of one temporarily incapacitated. Visit. Remember special occasion, anniversary. You'll be glad you did!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Emphasis on breakthrough, fresh opportunity, relationship that is more than a friendship. Highlight independence, originality, pioneering spirit. Leo, Aquarius figure in scenario. If you speculate, stick with number 1.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are presented with facts—what you do as result is up to you. Key is to stand tall for community, principles, to accept civic responsibility. Political favor will be repaid. Red tape is removed—you are surprised by favorable decision.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Good lunar aspect coincides now with journey, reading, writing, advertising. You're on the move, experimenting, giving full play to intellectual curiosity. You're more popular than suspected—messages, calls, and telegrams help prove that point.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Break free from one who wants to "write your script." You are a free agent in real sense—refuse to be a puppet for any person. Be aware of fine print, read between the lines, detect subtle nuances. Accent on financial matters relating to partner, mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on marriage, public relations, significant communications. If single, a relationship may be moving towards a "contractural arrangement." If married, travel plans are in offing. Married or single, this is an active, creative time. Enjoy it!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go slow—familiarize yourself with basic material. Home life, domestic issues, costs of remodeling command attention. Moderate pace is essential. If you try to go too fast, you lose control and money. Word to wise here should be sufficient. Taurus, Scorpio figure in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emotions dominate—be sure logic gets equal chance. Romance, illusion, creativity figure prominently. You are regarded as glamorous, mysterious, intriguing—what a day! Enjoy without believing your own press releases. You can float gracefully back to earth with no loss of face.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Practical matters dominate, including costs, time and motion, responsibility, relationship that leaves kindergarten stage and becomes serious. Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently—and so does the number 8. Key is organization, bringing priorities up front where they can be analyzed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Messages, communication, relatives in transit—these crowd their way into a part of your personal scenario. Aries, Libra figure prominently. You finish major task—key is to know when mission has been completed. Let go of past!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New money deal is on agenda. Stress greater independence, freedom to operate under policy that allows for originality, creativity. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently — so does the number 1. Yes, lost object will be found—you have reason to be optimistic. Love also is in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Highlight bright colors, personal appearances, personality, taking initiative, trusting judgment and intuition. You learn by teaching—you rise above red tape, petty details. Aquarius, Cancer, Leo figure in scenario.

IF MARCH 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are a perfectionist, an idealist, introspctive, sensitive, psychic, fascinated with comparative region, survival of human personality after bodily death. You love a mystery. You are temperamental, glamorous, mystical. This is to be one of your most productive, significant years in a decade. September will be memorable. If single, you marry. If married, there could be an addition to family. You go into business you have more authority, resonsibility and you earn more money. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"That new pet shop might have one," said Peter. "I was in there last week."

Vera nodded. "I'll give them a try. Did they have a good selection?"

"Just birds, hamsters and three snakes," Peter replied. "While I was waiting I checked the stock just for fun. 39 heads and 100 feet."

Herbs Ideal for Balcony

The hardy herb plants are among the earliest that can be added to the garden in March. They also will give the balcony or patio tubs a new look that will last for several years.

It is a strange fact that fashion plays an important part in popularity of plants. If we look for a reason we may find that fashion has its roots in needs of the times.

Aromatic herbs and spices played a big part in commerce among European and Eastern nations during the 19th century when the use of domestic meat and fish reached a new peak. With limited storage facilities and no processing except that of drying and smoking, meat and fish would develop unpalatable odors and flavors.

The monasteries of Europe were the gardens; the monks were the gardeners who experimented with plants, and the plants they collected and grew had at least two uses. They were either medicinal or just plain edible. Often the uses overlapped. Some that they called culinary herbs gave additional flavor to meat and fish, disguised unwanted flavor and made the food safer to eat.

Aids to digestion of these protein foods were linked to the flavoring by certain herbs so that traditionally they are still used in the same combinations by trained chefs.

Today's returning fashion in culinary herbs perhaps depends on current sophisticated methods of processing which prevent spoilation completely, but the long storage periods now possible render the meat and fish almost tasteless after exposure to air for even a short time.

So again we turn to herbs for adding new flavors, not only to meat and fish dishes but to vegetables. Today we like to think also in terms of visual beauty when we choose our herb plants.

In the garden or on balcony or patio, the plants we choose must have an appeal of foilage and form as well as fragrance and flavor — culinary herbs have all.

Sage and thyme plants are well known. That they both bear mauve flowers in early summer may not be common knowledge as the frequent cutting of leaves for kitchen use prevents flowering.

Rosemary is as decorative as its name "Rosmarinus" which translates to "dew of the sea;" it does indeed grow best within a few miles of salt water. The plant grows into a delightful small evergreen shrub on sunny balcony or patio, yielding plentiful flowers in May and enough leaves for flavoring. Used sparingly, they have a warm nutmeg flavor.

A large tub will grow a root of Angelica, a spectacular sight at three to four feet restricted by container. Leaves are on the tall branching stems. If allowed to flower, the plant may reach to five feet but will then die down in fall, since it is either annual, or at most biennial.

With the flower stem removed as soon as visible, Angelica can be kept for several years to yield the leaves (in tiny quantities of a half teaspoon at a time) to use when cooking fruits, thus lessening the need for vast amounts of sugar. Another fashion-prompted use of an herb.

These and other less well-known herbs do well here, so look for them now from local growers.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our relatives and friends for their kind expressions of sympathy during the recent loss of our dear husband and father, Pat. — Bernice Murray and Family.

Mrs. J. W. Peck and family wish to express to the many friends their heartfelt thanks for the tokens of sympathy extended to them at the death of a beloved husband and father.

To all those who attended our Mother's funeral and to all those who sent cards and letters of sympathy a sincere thank you from the Frankham family.

309 IN MEMORIAM

ARMSTRONG — In loving memory of my husband Arthur who left us March 3, 1976.
We think of you always.
—Your dear wife, Queenie and daughters, Patricia, Barbara, Mary and Betty.

McLEAN — In loving memory of our wife, mother and grandmother, Olive who passed away March 6, 1976.
Loving and kind in all her ways.
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sncere and true, in her heart and mind.
Beautiful memories she left behind.
Ed, Pat, Win, David, John and Christine.

WILKINSON—In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother Agnas Wilkinson, who passed away March 6, 1977.
Deep in our hearts you are fondly remembered,
Sweet, happy memories cling 'round your name;
True hearts that loved you with deepest affection.
Always will love you
Just the same.
—Always remembered by her children and grandchildren, The Costins and Wilkinsons.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available for those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can offer with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or services you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Russian Movie Not Censored

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

It took long negotiation and some quirk or crack in Soviet bureacracy before Theodore Holcomb got word he would be allowed provisional freedom to make an objective film documentary on Russia.

"There are always cracks in any big bureacracy," he says. "In Russia certainly the right hand doesn't always appear to know what the left is doing."

Holcomb, in Victoria for the double showing of his much praised, award-winning film, The New Russia, says there were some uneasy moments during his progress through the Soviet Union.

The worst came when he was leaving the country after several months of work, and the Soviet Secret Police (KGB) decided to destroy by X-ray all the film that had been taken.

"Either they were putting up a front or the x-ray equipment malfunctioned — equipment is always breaking down in Russia," says Holcomb.

"At any rate, while some fogging occurred, the damage was not irreparable."

The New Russia will be shown at McPherson Playhouse tonight at 6 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. It joins a string of notable documentaries that have brought Holcomb a reputation as one of the best film-makers in America, winning the Hollywood Film Critics prize for Best Documentary of the year.

Holcomb will introduce the film at tonight's showings and a question and answer period will follow. The film runs approximately one hour and has narration by Pulitzer Prize-winning author, Harrison Salisbury.

He describes the film as "a pictorial"; Leningrad is filmed against a blaze of fall color that is an effective backdrop to the city's amazing architecture. The contrast of pre-revolutionary splendor in architecture and art, with contemporary Soviet life is highlighted. The camera's eye spans 17,000 miles, revealing the gigantic growth of what is in effect, still, and more than ever, a Russian empire, enveloping 60 nationalities within the Soviet dominion.

"The Russian people are warm, friendly, good-humored," says Holcomb.

"They like us, they're at ease with us. Of course all official observations emphasize the decadence of the west, the breakdown of western society; but the intelligentsia recognize this for what it is."

Holcomb points out that only six per cent of the Russian people are party members. "But there is no way the rest will make any attempt to rock the boat."

PORT ALBERNI SHIFT DISPUTE

PORT ALBERNI — About 400 day-shift employees at MacMillan Bloedel's Somass sawmill reported for work this morning, after 200 employees on the graveyard shift walked off the job an hour early in a dispute over starting time and night pay differential.

A company spokesman said the contentious point, which went to a Vancouver judge today for ruling, centres on what constitutes the graveyard shift.

He said normal interpretation is that the shift starts at 12.01 a.m. But for the last 25 years the Somass employees have been coming to work at 1 a.m., working six and a half hours but receiving pay for seven and a half hours.

Last October the company informed the men that they would be paid only for the time actually worked, and the dispute has been simmering ever since.

'So Long, Chicago'

CHICAGO (AP) — The final editions of the Chicago Daily News rolled off the presses and into history Saturday, ending the newspaper's 102-year career which served as the model for green eye-shaded editors and snap brim-hatted, hard drinking reporters.

The classic play about U.S. journalism — The Front Page — was written by onetime staffer Ben Hecht and another Chicago newsman, Charles MacArthur. It dramatized the city's journalism of the 1920s at its most comic and colorful.

The newspaper, winner of 15 Pulitzer Prizes, typified the sprightly world of Chicago journalism. It was also known for its political reporting and its foreign coverage. The Daily News foreign service, started in 1898, was terminated in 1976 because of the newspaper's financial problems.

"So long, Chicago" read the News' banner headline on Saturday, the city's 141st birthday.

The News, born in 1875, died of decreasing circulation, down to 327,000 a day. Its highest circulation was 614,000 in 1957 and on its last day more than 450,000 copies were run off the presses. Field Enterprises Inc. said last month the paper had lost $11 million in the last year.

When the final edition ran the newspaper was the sixth largest in the United States in circulation.

But television, reader apathy, tough competition from city and suburban dailies, expressways that siphoned newspaper-reading riders from trains and buses and even its editorial aggressiveness were also blamed for the News' death.

"If it had been a cheap rag, its death would have been easier to take," wrote Pulitzer Prize-winning Mike Royko in a front page column Saturday. "But the Daily News, while it had some bad days, was still one of the best papers in this country."

Saturday's edition was a retrospective on the last years of the city, its arts, sports and entertainment and on the Daily News itself.

"The Chicago Daily News, the writers' newspaper, ends as it began —a momentous Book of Life. It took 102 years to finish, and these are the final pages," wrote M. W. Newman, editor of the Daily News' weekly arts section, Panorama.

Despite the death in 1974 of its lone afternoon competitor, Chicago Today, and an aggressive advertising and promotion campaign launched in 1976, the Daily News failed "to earn the revenues needed for any healthy, sound business operation," publisher Marshall Field wrote in the final edition.

Cow Donated To Show Cost

REGINA (CP) — A federal agriculture official will be given a cow so he can see for himself how much it costs to raise it, says Evans Thordarson, president of the Western Canada Cow-Calf Association.

Thordarson said in an interview during the weekend his organization would send the cow to Gaetan Lussier, deputy minister of the federal department of agriculture.

Thordarson said the decision was made after Lussier was quoted as saying a federal study showed beef could be produced for 35 cents a pound. The cow-calf group's study shows the cost of production is about 70 cents a pound.

Thordarson said it is obvious the federal department is out of touch with farming and "it is high time they start to realize what agriculture is."

The cow, donated by William Kruczko of Maple Creek, Sask., will be shipped f.o.b. from Maple Creek to Ottawa so the deputy minister can also see the high freight charges of shipping cattle east.

Thordarson said the association also telegramed Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan asking that he have Lussier retract the statement or provide the formula that resulted in the 35-cent figure.

Larry Flynt Shot

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Larry Flynt, owner of Hustler magazine, was shot in the stomach today while walking on a street outside a courtroom where he is on trial on charges of distributing obscene materials, the Georgia state patrol reported.

The patrol said Flynt was taken to hospital and was expected to survive the attack.

Crisis Hits Historic Enclave

SAN MARINO (AP) — Leaders of this Italian mountaintop enclave, the world's oldest republic, will decide today when to hold elections in an attempt to end San Marino's longest post-war political crisis.

Crucial to the election are the estimated 6,000 of San Marino's 19,000 voters who are scattered around the globe. Many are U.S. immigrants.

Crisis is unfamiliar to this 100-square-kilometre country, which traces its origins back 17 centuries to a Christian colony led by a stonecutter named Marinus.

For the past century finely designed postage stamps and limited mintings of coins have helped balance San Marino's annual budget, currently $40 million. Unemployment has been ruled illegal, and health care has been free for the past 20 years. And the centuries of history have attracted 2.5 million tourists a year to the three medieval castles perched on a rocky mountain 19 kilometres inland from the Adriatic coast.

But lately the honeymoon has turned sour, many San Marinese claim, contaminated by neighboring Italy's turbulent politics and economic doldrums.

Despite denials from the government, 600 persons reportedly are unemployed, and more than 1,000 youths soon will graduate from high school with few job prospects besides manual work on state projects. The state payroll has ballooned to more than 60 per cent of the budget, while top officials have fled to more lucrative private jobs.

Agriculture has practically vanished from this tiny country of 20,000 people, and leftist labor union activity has intensified, leading to the breakup in a three-year-old ruling coalition of Christian Democrats and Socialists.

San Marino's Communisty party, like its Italian countepart, has been clamoring for a greater voice in government.

During the 110-day crisis leading to the call for early elections, both Socialists and Communists tried to patch together the kind of left-wing popular front that ruled the country from 1945 to 1957.

But their efforts failed bcause of the death of a Socialist member of the 60-seat Great and General Council, San Marino's parliament, reducing the numbers of left-leaning members to 29.

Yacht Deaths Probed

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — FBI and coast guard officials from Honolulu met Sunday with Gary Edwards as they began their investigation into the deaths of Edwards' father and stepmother aboard the yacht Spellbound.

French authorities have sealed off the 54-foot ketch at its moorage in Rangiroa, about 100 miles from Tahiti.

There was no immediate word on the substance of the conversation with Edwards.

Loren Edwards, 50, and his wife Jody, 43, both of Kirkland, Wash., died aboard the yacht more than a week ago. Gary Edwards has told reporters his father was killed Feb. 24 when he fell in the cockpit and hit his head.

Gary said his stepmother committed suicide about 24 hours later with a weapon she apparently had concealed.

Gary, 27, and Larry Edwards, another brother who flew to Tahiti from Seattle, did not go to Rangiroa to pick up the boat on Friday as they originally had planned. The brothers planned to bring the boat to Tahiti and sell it, but French authorities told them not to move it.

French authorities have said they are turning over jurisdiction in the case to U.S. officials.

Kerry Edwards, 20, the Edwards' daughter, flew back to Seattle last week from Tahiti with Lori Huey, 21, a close family friend who was the fifth person aboard the Spellbound.

Ms. Edwards underwent surgery Friday in a Bellevue, Wash., hospital for a head injury she received on the Spellbound and was reported in satisfactory condition. She reportedly hit her head on the day her father died.

The Seattle office of the FBI also entered the case late last week.

U.S. to Raise 'Mistreatment'

GENEVA (Reuter) — The United States will raise the question of alleged Soviet mistreatment of dissidents before the United Nations Human Rights Commission this week, U.S. sources said here Sunday.

The sources said the U.S. decided to raise the issue in the 32-member commission after the Soviet Union blocked U.S. efforts to have a statement on human rights included in the final declaration of the Belgrade East-West conference.

Edward Mezvinsky, chief U.S. delegate, told reporters at the start of the commission's annual session here last month that the Belgrade conference would be the primary focus of U.S. moves on human rights in the Soviet Union.

His delegation would first watch how much progress was made in Belgrade before deciding whether to raise the issue here of Soviet dissidents, he said.

The United States, reflecting President Carter's new human rights campaign, raised allegations of human rights violations in the Soviet Union at last year's commission session.

But its proposal that the commission ask the Soviet Union for details of reported arrests of dissidents was blocked by the Soviet delegation.

Soviets Go All Out to Lay Track across Taiga

By KEVIN KLOSE
Washington Post

GOUDZHEKIT, U.S.S.R. — In a mythic setting of remote wilderness forest, sinewy Russian workers are steadily making reality of a long-held Soviet dream to open central Siberia's riches to world markets via a remarkable, costly new railroad.

Each day, crews of dynamiters, tunnellers, masons, welders, and truck and heavy machinery operators move out in bitter cold from this isolated log cabin settlement to carve an immense tunnel through a nearby granite mountain. The Baikalski tunnel, now 1,300 feet into the base of the four-mile-wide peak, is just one of the many crucial construction points along the 2,000-mile path of the new Baikal-Amur-Mainline railway, or "BAM" as it is known throughout the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Union is accustomed to massive projects, such as the 18-year struggle to exploit the West Siberian oilfields near Tyumen, or the pioneering project to build an all-scientific research city near Novosibirsk. But BAM is perhaps the most challenging. Official progaganda calls it "the hero project of the century." One might well wonder if this is not accurate.

BAM will cross the deserted, pine-covered peaks and valleys of three major mountain ranges, traverse more than 500 miles of seismically active earth, run across hundreds of miles of swamps virtually imprenetable when unfrozen in the summer, and bore through six mountains along the way for a total of almost 17 miles. Everywhere there is permafrost, requiring special insulation against heat from passing trains that could melt the frost and sink the track.

Millions of trees will be felled, log towns will spring up overnight to service the laborers, to be dismantled and moved to new sites or made permanent stations or repair and supply depots. Hundreds of miles of roads, electric lines, bridges and trackbed have already been webbed across the taiga. In all, the project will cost about $8.5 billion, according to latest estimates. In a sense, however, cost is no object. The leadership wants the BAM and it will get it.

How soon and at what cost trains can begin their journey will in large measure be determined by the pace of work here and at the other sites. Initial completion date is now scheduled for 1983 and all work will be finished by 1985, officials say. With the scheduls now being met after some early delays, they expect the trains to be running the full length of the BAM by 1983.

Soviet officials, obviously pleased at the progress, recently brought a group of foreign correspondents for the first time to a corner of the Buryat Autonomous Republic in eastern Siberia to see for themselves how the much-ballyhooed project is doing.

Begun only three years ago, the right-of-way from the central Siberian railhead of Ust-Kut, northwest of Lake Baikal, to the city of Komsomolsk near the Pacific coast now teams with thousands of workers. Through a combination of propaganda, extraordinarily high pay and outright edict they have been gathered by the Soviet command economy to lay siege to the vast taiga, or pine forests, where bear, reindeer, sable and wolf abound.

In an age of dwindling frontiers, a visit here yields a refershing taste of an appealing, rough-and-ready life of privation, isolation and purposeful manual labor, in return for an array of special incentives designed to attract — and hopefully keep — thousands here.

This settlement of 1,300 has endured winter snow accumulations of 12 feet, and cold — down to —45 Faharenheit — so intense that nails snap, hammers break and spectacles shatter. In summer, temperatures soar above a hundred degrees and fearsome swarms of disease-laden mosquitoes attack unceasingly. The work goes on.

Since the first handful of workers helicoptered in here three years ago to begin laying a road back to civilization, much has been accomplished. The main tunnel, about 28 feet in diameter, is now progressing at the rate of 10 feet a day beneath the Davan or "mountain pass" as the steep, granite peak is known in the native language of Buryat. When completed in about six more years, it will be 4.1 miles long, wide enough for a single track.

Long Distance Love is Costly

MANCHESTER, England (CP) — A pretty blue-eyed air hostess, 25-year-old Catherine Conroy, paid the price of love twice over.

First she waited nine hours for a phone call to her boyfriend in Pakistan to tell him their dinner date had to be cancelled. Then she got the bill for the four-minute call — £24 ($48).

"I was flabbergasted," Catherine said. "All I wanted to say was that I had been delayed and I wouldn't be able to make it for dinner in Karachi, where we had arranged to meet."

The basic cost of the call was £10 ($20) plus a 2 person-to-person fee. But the hotel where she was staying doubled the bill as a charge for handling the call.

"The 100-per-cent mark-up is normal to cover the cost of staff and the installation of expensive equipment," the hotel manager said.

PORTLAND, Ore. — The niece of the late comedian Jack Benny has filed a $1-million damage suit claiming some people tried to brainwash her into renouncing the Church of Scientology.

Jessica Marks, 26, said in the suit she was forcibly imprisoned and restrained "for the malicious purpose of interfering with religious beliefs."

TOKYO — Toshiko Higashikuni, a daughter of the late Japanese Emperor Meiji who ruled from 1868 until 1912, died early Sunday. She was 81.

LONDON — It was no accident that actress Maggie Wright suddenly began receiving dozens of calls for a prostitute named Gloria. She played Gloria in a television program titled The Professionals and when the script called for her to give a phone number she used the first one that came into her head: her own.

The post office is now intercepting all the calls.

NEW YORK — Betty Ford, wife of former president Gerald Ford, once said in a television interview she wouldn't be shocked if her daughter, Susan, had an affair.

But Susan, in an interview with People magazine, says she hasn't had an affair yet. She defines an affair as "fooling around with a married man."

DAYTON, Ky. — It was a marriage made in Roller Haven.

The entire wedding party, including the minister, wheeled into the roller rink on skates for the marriage ceremony of Sharon and John Norris.

John, 26, and Sharon, 23, first met at Dave and Deb's Roller Haven, where the marriage ceremony took place Saturday. John was 16 and Sharon was 12 at the time they met.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — Daredevils have been going over Niagara Falls in a barrel since the turn of the century, but a Portland, Me., man has an Evel Knievel-style twist planned.

Perry Kerry plans to jump across the falls in a "steam-powered" snowmobile on Aug. 18.

SALT LAKE CITY — Willis Ritter, the irascible U.S. chief federal judge whose last months on the bench were spent trying to stay there against mounting criticism of his rulings, is dead of heart failure.

WEST BERLIN — Craig Russell of Toronto, Canada's best-known female impersonator, won the best actor award at the 28th Berlin film festival Sunday for his role as a homosexual hairdresser in Outrageous.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Joe Marsala, a leading clarinetist of the swing era and leader of a band that brought many jazz stars to prominence, has died of cancer at age 71.

His death in Santa Barbara on Friday came five months after doctors discovered a malignant tumor. Marsala had been recovering from a stroke he suffered two years ago.

Dead 'Speaks', Gets Killer

CHICAGO (AP) — A doctor who said he heard a "voice from the grave" led Chicago police to a man who has since been charged with the murder of the woman who "spoke," the Chicago Tribune reported Sunday.

Quoting court records, the Tribune said Dr. Jose Chua told police that a voice identifying itself as Teresita Basa entered the body of his wife, Remibias, last August.

Miss Basa, 48, a respiratory specialist at a Chicago hospital, had been found dead and naked, a butcher knife embedded in her chest, beneath a pile of smoldering clothes by firefighters answering a call to her apartment on Feb. 21, 1977.

She was buried in her native Philippines.

Chua told police he didn't know Miss Basa but later learned that his wife had worked with her at the hospital.

According to the court records quoted by the Tribune, the voice spoke in the national language of the Philippines and told Chua that the murderer was Allen Showery.

The account said the voice returned twice, throwing Mrs. Chua's body into a comatose state each time as it pleaded with Chua to contact police with the information.

It also told of jewelry that had been stolen by the killer. Authorities said the jewelry later was found and used as evidence against Showery, 31, of Chicago.

A spokesman for state's attorney Bernard Carey said the voice's testimony will not be used in prosecuting Showery. But the spokesman said that the murder charge would not have been placed if the voice had not led police to him.

MONOPOLY RECORD SET

CHADRON, Neb. (AP) — Monopoly is a game with its ups and downs, a group of students at Chadron State College are finding. The 20 students say they have broken the record for playing the game in an elevator.

The elevator is located in the 11-storey women's high-rise dormitory.

Members of Theta Chi fraternity said the manufacturer, Parker Brothers, told them the old record was 12 days. The 10 men and 10 women have played the game since Feb. 19, or 15 days, and finished at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Cossitt Remains Mum: 'Victim of Vendetta'

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MP Tom Cossitt (Leeds) said today he is the victim of a government vendetta and that he has no intention of revealing the source of secret security documents he possesses.

He told reporters that he has tentatively decided how he will react to a government order that he turn the documents over to the government and the RCMP security service.

But he would make no further comment until the Commons met.

Cossitt, looking drawn and agitated, said he was followed throughout the weekend by the RCMP. He said he plans to protect his sources, but would not say whether he will turn the documents over.

Cossitt said he has no idea if he will be charged for his actions.

While he spoke, RCMP investigators gave the justice department evidence they had gathered during a weekend of interviews—many with reporters—concerning the case.

Deputy Justice Minister Roger Tasse was handed the RCMP findings, and Justice Minister Ron Basford will decide whether there is enough evidence to prosecute Cossitt under the Official Secrets Act for possessing secret documents.

"It's a vendetta for which I do not blame the Mounted Police," Cossitt said. The force was acting on orders from Solicitor-General J. J. Blais and Prime Minister Trudeau.

Trudeau, he said, "is obviously extremely vindictive."

"He wants to get rid of Tom Cossitt."

Cossitt said Opposition Leader Joe Clark is supporting him. He denied reports that he is not getting adequate backing from the Conservative leader.

But Stanley Knowles, veteran New Democratic MP for Winnipeg North Centre and party House leader, suggested in a telephone interview Sunday that Cossitt's Commons statement today may be the last heard of the affair in the Commons.

"There is really nothing to debate," Knowled said. "Not even Cossitt has made a motion regarding a possible breach of his privileges as an MP."

"It appears now to be a matter strictly between him (Cossitt) and the police."

"It seems to me if he gives up the document, he probably will be revealing his source through the document.

"The whole thing could just blow over."

A ROSE BY ANY OTHER NAME. . .

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — South African government leaders are discussing whether to change the country's name, the Sunday Times newspaper reports.

One name canvassed, the paper said, is the Republic of Good Hope. Another is Azania, the black nationalist name for South Africa.

The Sunday Times said the proposal to change the name is inspired by Connie Mulder, minister of plural relations, whose portfolio covers black administration.

Dr. Mulder was not immediately available for comment.

Strait Tanker Curbs Killed

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court today struck down most provisions of a Washington state law limiting the size of oil tankers on Puget Sound and other state inland waters.

The decision means bigger tankers may be pressed into service off Vancouver Island's coast almost immediately.

Justice Byron White, writing for the court, said existing federal laws show that "Congress intended uniform national standards for design and construction of tankers that would foreclose the imposition of different or more stringent state requirements."

In Victoria, B.C. Wildlife Federation oil ports expert David Anderson said the court decision means that "oil companies will almost immediately put larger ships into operation and tankers of 180,000 tons — perhaps up to 220,000 tons — will be coming into our waters."

Anderson, however, said that although oil companies will now be able to almost double the size of their vessels "it isn't as bad as it sounds because it doesn't necessarily double the risk."

Although the vessels will be larger there will be fewer of them.

Anderson said that the bigger tankers aren't more hazardous than smaller ones and the difference between 100,000 tons of oil being spilled and 200,000 tons "is the difference between you being blown up with five sticks of dynamite or ten sticks — not much."

He said perhaps the most significant thing about the court decision is that it may lessen the enthusiasm oil companies have been feeling for proposals to build a superport at Port Angeles.

Before the Washington State law was knocked down Port Angeles was the only possible spot supertankers could dock. Now they may be able to continue using Cherry Point.

Anderson said the Wildlife Federation is opposed to Cherry Point and in favor of the Port Angeles proposal because studies have shown that "there would be one third as many accidents and half as much environmental damage at Port Angeles as compared to Cherry Point."

In Washington State Frustration and disappointment were the words used by legislators to express their reaction.

"I'm just plain frustrated," said Representative King Lysen, chairman of the House Energy and Utilities Committee.

"Here's a case where the Legislature has taken action

Carter Acts To End Coal Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, invoking the Taft-Hartley Act to end the U.S. coal mine shutdown and a worsening energy crisis, said today he will ask the courts to order striking miners back to work.

"The time has come for me to take action," he said after conferring with Congressional leaders.

Carter's decision was announced amid predictions that the drawn-out work stoppage might force more power cuts and millions of layoffs.

He called the cabinet and congressional leaders to the White House for separate meetings to review with them the latest developments in the strike and what he considered "the likely events of the next few days and weeks."

Today's action might find miners ordered back to the pits within a few days. One official said a federal judge could get the government's request to order an 80-day "cooling-off" period by Wednesday.

But there were indications that some miners, following their overwhelming rejection of a contract to end the longest mine walkout in the U.S., would not obey a back-to-work order.

Even if the miners return, the first trainloads of coal would not enter the energy pipeline for one week to two weeks, depending on the condition of the mines, said coal industry spokesmen.

As the strike, which began Dec. 6, went into its fourth month today, Carter scheduled his announcement after planned meetings with congressional leaders and his cabinet.

With returns in from 88 per cent of the United Mine Workers 794 locals, the vote was 79,753 to 34,689 against the pact, a margin of more than 2 to 1.

Some predicted the strike will continue.

"I think we've got no choice but to stay out on strike," the president of a West Virginia local said.

While a Kentucky miner predicted federal action would not succeed unless Carter coupled Taft-Hartley with government seizure of the mines, a Virginia UMW official predicted that tactic would also fail: "If that's his

Action Rallies Dollar

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar rallied on European money markets today when it became clear that President Carter would invoke the Taft-Hartley Act to force striking coal miners back to work.

European dealers marked the dollar down against all currencies at the start of trading after it fell to a record low in Tokyo, but it rebounded and passed Friday's closing figures for everything but the British pound.

In Victoria today, U.S. dollars cost 1.1105 in Canadian funds. The rate in Montreal was up 1-100 at $1.1202 Canadian.

The dollar dropped nearly two yen in Tokyo to close at 235.175 yen despite an estimated $400 million in intervention buying by the Bank of Japan in an effort to stem the slide. It had closed Friday at 237.125.

The opening price in Frankfurt was 2.0030 marks, nearly two pfennigs below its closing rate of 2.0222 marks in New York Friday. Then it advanced to 2.0310 marks.

Gold also rose, as it usually does when currencies fluctuate. The opening price in London was fixed at $184.10 an ounce, up from $183.80 at Friday's close. Bullion gained $1 in Zurich, the other major European trading centre for gold, and was quoted at $184.125 an ounce.

In Saudi Arabia an official says oil exporters may increase their prices because of the U.S. dollar's fall on currency markets, but they will not abandon it as the currency in which oil payments are made.

ICBC GETS ITS MAN: SHERRELL PASSES

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. has finally got its $80,000 a year man.

Education Minister Pat McGeer, the minister responsible for ICBC, announced today that federal authorities have had a change of heart and will allow Robbie Sherrell to take over the presidency of the corporation.

McGeer was informed of the decision in a telegram from federal Manpower Minister Bud Cullen.

Cullen, who met late last week in Ottawa with ICBC officials, said in view of the special skills required by the corporation and the fact a Canadian is chairman of the board, he will recommend an order-in-council be issued authorizing Sherrell's admission to Canada as an immigrant.

Cullen said this will take some weeks, but in the meantime he will issue a minister's permit authorizing Sherrell's entry into Canada.

Sherrell is expected to arrive in B.C. shortly.

McGeer said he does not expect Sherrell to have any difficulties with his new job despite the controversy surrounding his appointment.

"Sherrell's a very talented man," McGeer said. "We sought the best and I believe the best has been found."

The news that Sherrell will be allowed to come to B.C. ends weeks of controversy over the appointment.

Hydro Sides Talk

A number of meetings today may determine whether a series of contract disputes between B.C. Hydro unions and the Crown corporation will end up in strike situations.

Representatives of the Amalgamated Transit Union met with Hydro officials this morning and made what was termed a union counter-proposal.

Al Ashton, spokesman for the ATU, did not reveal details but said the Hydro representatives were taking it back to top corporation officials and would likely get back to the union later today.

ATU officials were also slated to meet with spokesmen for Local 213 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Office and Technical Employees' Union to discuss strategy.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Parts of the United States and Canada "sailed" from the area of the equator in a 1,000-year voyage to their present locations along North America's West Coast, scientific evidence released today reports.

The land mass, about 40,000 square miles in all, broke up while drifting and settled in areas ranging from inland areas of the western United States through Vancouver Island to Alaska.

Scientists of the United States Geological Survey said in a paper released today that the displaced block of earth, known as Wrangellia after a mountain range in Alaska, was discovered because it has a different geological formation than the surrounding terrain.

In fact, it is remarkably similar to geological formations found in equatorial regions and supports the new and broadly accepted theory of plate tectonics, the report said.

According to this theory, which would explain many formerly puzzling geological features of the world, there was only one continent about 200,000 years ago.

A skin shell on the earth's molten core, it began to drift apart and eventually came to form the present continents.

Among other things, this theory helps explain the fact that similar fossil remains have been discovered on different continents.

"We're not sure yet how Wrangellia fits into the over-all theory of plate tectonics, or how the chunks of Wrangellia broke up and were locked into their present location," said Dr. David Jones, a senior member of the research team.

"Right now it represents another interesting piece of the geologic puzzle that we are trying to rearrange and put together."

He said that so far chunks of Wrangellia have been found in the Hells Canyon region of Oregon, Washington and Idaho; Vancouver Island and the Prince Charlotte Islands in the Canadian North Pacific and in the Wrangell Mountains of Alaska.

The chunks are "quite different from the rocks they now butt against," said Dr. Jones.

BUGS IMPORTED TO FIGHT WORM

British bumble bees and flies will be buzzed into the Greater Victoria area to do battle with a mysterious worm that has been chomping its way through Saanich and Victoria trees for the past seven years.

The worm, which in moth form, has ravaged the tender buds on the fruit trees to the complete bafflement of scientists, was only recently identified by a graduate biology student.

Agriculture Canada plant quarantine division spokesman John Fitz-Gerald says David Gillespie's positive identification came despite the fact federal officials in Ottawa insisted the tree-muncher was a Bruce span worm, a cousin to the winter moth.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market reversed an earlier loss to edge fractionally higher in active mid-afternoon trading.

Combined Metal Mines Ltd. was unchanged at 21 cents a share on the sale of 268,800 shares following its resumption at the opening after the announcement of a gas discovery in Pennsylvania.

Among industrials, Andres Wines gained ⅝ to $14⅞, Allarco Developments ½ to $20½, New Brunswick Telephone ½ to $20½, Nu-West Development A ½ to $13 and Texaco Canada ⅜ to $39.

Pacific Petroleums fell ⅝ to $38, Home Oil A ⅜ to $38, Calgary Power A ⅜ to $36⅞, Canadian Tire A ⅜ to $21⅝ and Canadian Imperial Bank ⅛ to $26½.

Teck Corp B advanced 15 cents to $5.00, Giant Yellowknife Mines ⅛ to $13⅜ and Roman Corp. ⅛ to $23⅝. Rio Algom was down ¾ to $26¼ and Denison Mines ¼ to $59.

Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum climbed ⅞ to $38, Canadian Superior Oil ⅞ to $53⅜ and Numac Oil and Gas ⅝ to $19. Siebens Oil and Gas slipped ¼ to $30 and Trans-Canada Resources nine cents to $2.20.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were fractionally higher in light to moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EST was 164,900 shares, compared with 272,100 shares traded up to the same time Friday.

Bell Canada climbed ⅛ to $55¼, Gulf Oil Canada ⅛ to $26⅜, Velcro ⅛ to $10⅜ and Abitibi ⅛ to $11⅝. IU International Corp. dipped ⅛ to $12⅝, CP Ltd. ⅛ to $16¾ and Provigo ¼ to $16¼.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slowly as investors awaited the results of action by President Carter to get struck coal mines back in operation.

Trading was light.

In a weekend vote, members of the United Mine Workers rejected a contract proposal to end the three-month old coal strike.

President Carter invoked the Taft-Hartley Act Monday, setting in motion steps toward obtaining an 80-day back-to-work order.

But union leaders have warned of the likelihood of resistance to any such step among the miners. And market analysts said many traders seemed to be holding back today to see how the Taft-Hartley process would go.

Tropicana Products jumped 10½ to $44⅜. Beatrice Foods agree to acquire the company, paying $52 a share in cash for some of the stock and exchanging convertible preferred stock for the rest.

The NYSE's composite index dropped 0.32 to 48.35.

London

LONDON (CP) — Economic concerns kept prices only fractionally higher near the close of light trading on the London stock market.

The London Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 442.8, up 6.6.

Leading equities moved higher after earlier mixed trading, while gold issues recorded fractional gains.

Canadian stocks were mixed.

CATTLE

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 75 head, mainly slaughter cows.

Trade was moderate with a good local demand. There were no slaughter steers or heifers on offer. D3-5 cows sold steady.

Slaughter cattle D3-5 cows 27.50-31.50.

Prices quoted for feeder cattle and stock calves are Friday's close: feeder steers over 800 pounds 45-51.50; 600-700 pounds 46-53.50; good feeder heifers over 700 pounds 42-46; 500-600 pounds 42-47; feeder cows 29-37.50.

Stock steer calves 500-600 pounds 48-55.30. Good stock heifer calves 400-500 pounds 42-46.

Livestock reporter Gary Sparshu said the beef boycott by the Canadian Agriculture Movement appeared to be having some affect on deliveries although there were no pickets at the Calgary yards.

"I think its having some affect now," he said. "People are just holding back and seeing what happens."

He said last week's offerings were half the normal run but he could not say what a normal Monday's offering would be. Last Monday, there were 150 head of cattle on offer.

JAPANESE TVS SLIP

TOKYO (Reuter) — Exports of Japanese color television sets fell 23.9 per cent to 242,000 sets in January from 318,000 sets in December, the Japan Electronic Industries Association said today.

The figure was off 16.1 per cent from 288,500 sold in January, 1977.

The association blamed the decline on a U.S.—Japan agreement signed last July under which Japan agreed to limit its exports of color televisions to the U.S., where domestic manufacturers complained that imports were driving them out of business.

Trident: Most Expensive Weapon in History

How Trident evolved from what was originally envisioned as a slow, medium-sized and inexpensive submarine armed with long-range missiles, to be a fast, giant, expensive submarine with shorter range missiles, is a revealing glimpse of the Pentagon decision making process.

By GEORGE WILSON
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The navy's Trident missile submarine has now become the most expensive weapons program in the history of warfare, according to the Pentagon's latest estimates.

Fourteen of these largest-ever submarines — some of which are to be based at Bangor, Wash. — will cost $25.1 billion, or more than the B-1 bomber program President Carter cancelled partly on the ground of cost.

A Pentagon study obtained by the Washington Post warns that the navy will not have enough money to buy the submarines the nation needs unless changes are made.

Adm. James L. Holloway III, chief of naval operations, said in an interview that he sees “no alternative” to Trident, characterizing its high cost as “an industrial problem.”

Critics contended that Trident, the submarine that is supposed to take over the sea-based nuclear deterrent role from the Polaris-Poseidon submarine fleet, got off its intended course when Adm. H. G. Rickover insisted on putting a big nuclear reactor inside it.

The nuclear power plant Rickover designed, they said, is so large that only a mammoth, costly submarine like Trident could accommodate it.

The counter argument, one made in an interview by Adm. Thomas H. Moorer who was chief of naval operations from 1967 to 1970 when Trident was moving from a concept toward a firm design, is that Rickover knows the realities of submarines.

“You can't knock success,” said Moorer in stating that Rickover's nuclear reactors in ships and submarines have never failed in contrast to Soviet reactors which “have blown up and everything else.”

Both Trident critics and backers agree that the new submarine is running way over estimated costs, is behind schedule and will keep the navy strapped for shipbuilding money or a decade.

Although inflation has contributed significantly to making Trident the most expensive weapons program ever, the navy acknowledged publicly in December that its first Trident was running 50 per cent over the estimated cost: $1.2 billion instead of $800 million. The ultimate Trident cost overrun could end up being a new record, exceeding the $2 billion on the air force C-5A cargo plane.

Since December, Pentagon officials have concluded that not only will the first Trident be late and over the target cost but the following four subs of that first group will be late as well.

William J. Perry, director of Pentagon research, told Congress last month that “delays in construction have occurred primarily as a result of inefficiencies and lower than expected productivity.” General Dynamics' Electric Boat Co. yard at Groton, Conn., is building the Trident fleet.

Perry estimated that the first Trident would go to sea in 1981 rather than 1980 as the navy had planned. “It is expected” that Trident will be back on schedule by the time the sixth sub is delivered in December 1982, he added.

Despite the delays and cost problems, the navy has exercised its option with Electric Boat to order an additional two Trident subs on top of the five previously under contract. That contract amounts to $699 million for the two Trident hulls, not counting the missiles and other equipment needed to put it in combat shape.

How the Trident evolved from what originally was envisoned as a slow, medium-sized and inexpensive submarine armed with long-range missiles, to be a fast, giant, expensive submarine, armed with shorter-ranged missiles, is a revealing glimpse of the Pentagon decision-making process.

It is a story of inner-service rivalries, of cozy contractor relationships, and of one Washington bureaucracy anticipating another in an internal process that shapes the super-weapons the nation buys in the interest of “the common defence.”

The launching ramp for Trident was a special panel of the Pentagon commissioned in 1966 to assess the most cost-effective way to hurl extra explosives at Russia in case its anti-ballistic-missile system should prove effective.

Called Strat X for Strategic Experimental, this panel of experts sifted through about 125 ideas, participants recalled, ranging from hiding missiles under swimming pools to deploying them in abandoned coal mines.

Rear-Adm. George H. Miller, then head of the navy's strategic systems office, said in an interview that air force and navy submariners ganged up on him when he pushed the idea of moving Minuteman land missiles into surface ships.

Miller contended the idea made sense both then and now, “but never got a fair trial because the air force and submariners fought me every step of the way for fear of losing missions and money.

The Strat X panel, working under the Institute for Defence Analyses, a Pentagon think tank, filed its top-secret report in August, 1967. It concluded that a new missile submarine would be a cost-effective way to deliver additional nuclear punch.

The Washington Post, under a Freedom of Information Act request, obtained from the defence department a heavily-censored version of that Strat X report. The censored report and interviews with Strat X panel participants give this picture of the submarine that was envisioned:

—Strat X sub. A submarine going about 10 to 15 knots on the strength of the 15,000-horsepower nuclear reactor from the Thresher class submarine. The new sub would be 366 feet long, displace 2,700 tons and carry 24 missiles with a range of up to 6,500 miles.

The panel argued that high speed “is a minor consideration” since quietness and sonar countermeasures are the keys to evading an enemy killer sub.

—Trident. This new sub is expected to go about 20 to 25 knots — still slower than 30-knot Soviet killer subs — on the 90,000-horsepower nuclear reactor designed expressly for it. It will be 560 feet long, five feet higher than the Washington Monument if stood on end, and displace 18,700 tons. Trident will carry 24 missiles with a range of 4,000 miles. (A longer-ranged Trident II missile of 6,000 miles is under consideration for the future.)

Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., chief of naval operations from 1970 to 1974, said in his book, “On Watch,” that Trident (originally called ULMS for underwater long-range missile system) began to take on “a Rickover shape” in 1974 because the admiral was insisting on building a 90,000-horsepower nuclear plant for Trident rather than use an existing one.

“Designing a ship from the power plant out,” said Zumwalt, “never has struck me as an ideal procedure.” But Zumwalt said he gave in to Rickover to hasten the construction of a new sub because Zumwalt feared the State Department bureaucracy was yielding the U.S. strategic edge to the Soviets at the arms limitation talks.

Zumwalt and Strat X participants said the size and weight of the new reactor, plus the navy's decision against positioning the missiles outside the main hull in free-floating capsules, forced Trident into its present giant size.

Robert M. Chapman, formerly an undersea warfare specialist, in a 1976 report warned that “the navy will not sustain its submarine force level objectives” if it keeps building bigger and bigger submarines rather than finding ways to compress both the nuclear power plant and hull.

“The submarine force building program has reached a critical” point where there soon will not be enough money to buy the needed subs “unless a significant change can be achieved in cost-performance relationships of the submarine itself” according to the report.

Because the Polaris and Poseidon fleet is scheduled to wear out before enough Tridents are deployed to match the current force of 656 submarine missiles, a new kind of strategic gap looms ahead for the United States.

Tax Tips '78

Q. I'm a divorced woman. Can I claim the equivalent married exemption of $1,990 for my 13-year-old child?

A. Yes, provided your child lives with you in a “self-contained domestic establishment” maintained by you alone or jointly with some other person, and in which both you and your dependant generally eat and sleep.

Q. I received a scholarship last year and had to move away from home to attend full-time courses at a university. Can I deduct my moving expenses?

A. Yes. If you moved to attend full-time courses at a university or other post-secondary educational institution in Canada you may deduct moving expenses, but only if these are claimed against award income such as scholarships, fellowships, research grants and similar awards and only to the extent that such income is reported on your return. Be sure to include Form T1-M with your income tax return.

Q. Can a university student claim a property tax credit for rent paid during the year?

A. Students who are roomers, tenants or boarders off campus in Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba and Ontario can calculate the rent paid during the year towards the property tax credit, up to a certain maximum. Students must be over 16 and their principal residence cannot be that of someone else who is claiming them as a dependant.

Q. In connection with the capital gains provision, what information should I keep to support values of my farm property as of December 31, 1971?

A. In support of your values, it will be useful to keep the following:

(a) The type of land (arable, bush or scrub).
(b) The type of farming done.
(c) A brief description of the property, including location, lot, building size, date and type of construction.
(d) The cost and date of purchase.
(e) The cost and date of any improvements.
(f) The property assessment for municipal tax purposes, insurance coverage and information on any sales of similar property in your area as of December 31, 1971.

Q. When filing tax returns, are commercial reserves and elevator deductions to be reported as income for the year they were paid out to a farmer?

A. Normally these will have been reported in the year when credited to his account, and would therefore not be included in his income when actually received.

Q. My husband has a farm tractor that he uses, not to earn his living, but to do his farming and a little logging and collecting of firewood. Can he claim any depreciation on this farm tractor?

A. If your husband is a farmer and is reporting income from farming or logging he would be able to claim depreciation on the tractor. However, if he has no income from farming or logging, and the tractor is not being used for the purpose of producing income, he would be unable to claim any depreciation.

Q. I understand that I may be eligible to claim two federal tax reductions this year. Please explain.

A. Everyone is eligible for the general tax reduction which has been increased to 9 per cent of the Basic Federal Tax for 1977. The minimum general tax reduction is either the amount of your basic federal tax or $200, whichever is less.

Beginning this year there is a tax reduction for children. Basically, you can claim an additional tax reduction of $50 for each dependent child living in Canada and under 18 years of age on December 31, 1977. (The number of children that you claim should be shown on line 63 on page 4 of your return.)

The maximum amount you can deduct for the two federal tax reductions is the least of:

a) The total of your general tax reduction and your tax reduction for children
OR
b) Your basic federal tax
OR
c) $500.
